SUPREME COURT DECISION GIVES AID TO NEW DEAL

Upholds Moratorium on Mortgages.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—In a decision looked upon as a possible finger post pointing the way to the constitutional fate of the NRA and other New Deal acts and agencies, the United States Supreme court today upheld the power of a state to suspend and amend contract obligations during a period of emergency such as that caused by the depression.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the court sustained the constitutionality of the Minnesota emergency mortgage moratorium law which provides that, during the emergency declared to exist, courts might step in to halt or delay real estate mortgage sales and extend periods of redemption.

The division of the court was on the now well defined line between the so-called liberals and conservatives.

Hughes Writes Decision.

Chief Justice Hughes handing down the majority opinion, affirming the ruling by which the Minnesota Supreme court held the mortgage act constitutional, had with him Associate Justices Brandeis, Stone, Roberts and Cardozo. Concurring with Justice Sutherland in a dissenting opinion were Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds and Butler.

The act was challenged as repugnant to the contract clause of article 1, section 10, and the due process and equal protection clauses of the 14th amendment of the federal constitution.

The case arose out of the appeal of the Home Building and Loan association, which foreclosed a mortgage for nonpayment on property owned by John H. and Rosella Blaisdell of Minneapolis. Going into court, the property owners were granted an extension of the redemption period under the moratorium statute. From this judgment the loan association appealed.

No New Power.

Many paragraphs of the chief justice's majority opinion were considered of especial significance in view of the duty which the court must eventually perform of deciding the constitutionality of the Roosevelt recovery acts with their declarations of emergency.

Assertions applied to the Minnesota act were read in the light of their future bearing on the fate of the New Deal, as the following:

"Emergency does not create power. Emergency does not increase granted power or remove or diminish the restrictions imposed upon power granted or reserved. The constitution was adopted in a period of grave emergency. Its grants of power to the federal government and its limitations of the power of the states were determined in the light of emergency and they are not altered by emergency.

"What power was thus granted and what limitations were thus imposed are questions which have always been, and always will be, the subject of close examination under our constitutional system.

Occasion for Exercise.

"While emergency does not create power, emergency may furnish the occasion for the exercise of power. The constitutional question presented in the light of an emergency is whether the power possessed embraces the particular exercise of it in response to particular conditions.

"Thus, the war power of the federal government is not created by the emergency of war, but it is a power given to meet that emergency. It is a power to wage war successfully and thus it permits the harnessing of the entire energies of the people in a supreme coöperative effort to preserve the nation.

"But even the war power does not remove constitutional limitations safeguarding essential liberties. When the provisions of the constitution, in grant or restriction, are specific, so particularized as not to admit of construction, no question is presented.

"Thus, emergency would not permit a state to have more than two senators in the congress, or permit the election of President by a general popular vote without regard to the number of electors to which the states are respectively entitled, or permit the states to 'coin money' or to 'make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts.'

Protective Function.

"But where constitutional grants and limitations of power are set forth in general clauses, which afford a broad outline, the process of construction is essential to fill in the details. That is true of the contract clause."

And further:

"The economic interests of the

$1,000,000 Blaze on State Street

WARSHAWSKY'S PLANT BURNS; ORDER INQUIRY

Two Injured; Crowds See Spectacle.

Fire swept through the big automobile accessories warehouse and store of Warshawsky & Co. at 1915 South State street last night, causing damages estimated at more than $1,000,000. Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan charged that the blaze was of incendiary origin. Warshawsky, present at the scene of the fire, denied any charge of incendiarism and was allowed to go to his home. He was ordered to appear for questioning in the fire attorney's office at 10 o'clock this morning.

An explosion in the plant after the first fire company had arrived on the scene scattered the flames to every corner of the half square block of the structure and huge stores of tires and automobile parts of every description were completely destroyed. A 5-11 alarm brought one-third of the city's fire fighting equipment, manned by more than 400 men, to fight the blaze. This small army was successful in preventing the flames from spreading in the congested district.

Two Severely Burned.

Two of the more than 35 employés in the place were severely burned. The store is open nights and a number of customers were also present when the fire was discovered. These and most of the employés ran to safety, but two employés were prevented from reaching exits by the fast spreading flames. They were:

WILLIAM THYKEN, 36 years old, 6347 Drexel avenue, a mechanic; burned about the face and hands and body; taken to the People's hospital.

MRS. ELEANOR LUKSHAS, 40 years old, 1808 South Peoria street, a scrubwoman; arms and head burned.

Mrs. Lukshas was dragged from the burning building only after the firemen had burned away steel bars from an alley window with acetylene torches and entered to find her unconscious on the floor.

Push Inquiry Today.

The unusual speed with which the flames spread in the building caused Fire Marshal Corrigan to assert that gasoline had apparently been stored in strategic points about the store. Fire Commissioner Arthur Seyferlich announced there would be a thorough investigation today in order to determine whether there was any connection between the fire and the investigation of stolen automobile and accessories cases now pending in the new Automobile court.

It was also pointed out by the commissioner that new regulations for the registering of second hand automobile parts dealers had been regarded as a death blow to the accessories business.

Street car, elevated, and motor traffic was completely tied up in the area.

The rapid spread of the fire was told dramatically in the quick succession of alarms culminating in the 5-11 call.

Alarms in Swift Order.

The first call at 8:01 p. m. sent Company No. 8, only a block away, thundering to the scene. Lieut. Joseph Devlin immediately sent in a second alarm which brought four engines and two hook and ladder companies. At two-minute intervals, beginning at 8:07 p. m., a 2-11, a 3-11, a 4-11 and then a 5-11 alarm at 8:21 p. m., were sounded. Three special calls, each bringing five extra companies, followed the 5-11 alarm. Sixty-four pieces of apparatus were at the fire fifty-two minutes after the first warning.

Several hundreds of patrons in the Wabash theater at 1838 South Wabash avenue in the rear of the Warshawsky plant were driven from the place by smoke. Inhabitants of a rooming house above a drug store at 1935 South State street, south of the Warshawsky store, also fled to the street.

Fight Spread of Blaze.

Chunks of burning wood were carried by a west wind as far east as Michigan avenue and small blazes started in several places. These were quickly extinguished by the firemen. A crowd numbering several thousands congregated in the vicinity and watched the spectacular blaze.

Warshawsky is the son-in-law of Morris Eller, former city collector and political boss of the west side. He has been in the courts several times for violation of the fire prevention laws. He said last night that the building was covered by insurance, but that he stood to lose half a million dollars on his damaged stock.

$800,000 OFFER FOR M'CORMICK GEMS REJECTED

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday rejected an offer of an undisclosed purchaser of $800,000 for two necklaces of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick. The offer was submitted in a petition by the Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee of the estate.

The necklaces were purchased for approximately $2,000,000. One is of 23 pearls, 100 round diamonds, and 12 square diamonds. The second is of platinum gold and has 5 emeralds and 755 diamonds.

The trust company reported an unnamed broker, said to be a leading New York firm of jewelers, was making the offer in behalf of an undisclosed client. The offer contemplated payment of $25,000 in cash at once and the balance in payments of $75,000 to Oct. 31, 1937. Noninterest bearing and unsecured promissory notes were to be offered at the time of the cash payment.

Judge O'Connell dismissed the offer as inimicable to the best interests of the estate.

PANIC STRIKES AS JAPS CHEER NAVY RECRUITS; 76 DIE

(Picture on page 3)

KYOTO, Japan, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Seventy-six persons were killed and 48 were injured today in a sudden, uncontrollable stampede at the Kyoto railroad station when mob terror swept a crowd saying farewell to recruits for the imperial Japanese navy.

An investigation showed that most of the victims died at the foot of a stairway leading from a viaduct over the tracks to the station platform.

Scores fell there, crushed and suffocated by hundreds who were shoved down the steps by an irresistible pressure from above.

A crowd estimated at more than 10,000, far exceeding the capacity of the station, had gathered to bid Godspeed to 750 naval recruits aboard a train bound for the Kure naval base.

Nearly all members of the crowd were men, but about thirty women were believed to have died in the crush.

Kyoto, former capital of Japan, has a population of about 750,000.

He was notified by a Hyannis attorney that his uncle had died in Rock Island, Ill., and left an $18,000 bank account, plus seven years' interest, to George.

Assails Long as Vampire at Jackson Feast

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—One hundred and nineteen years after Andrew Jackson gathered his Tennesseans on the plains of Chalmette and saved New Orleans from the British the Louisiana Society of New York gathered tonight and assailed Huey P. Long—2,000 miles from home.

There was a dinner with Louisiana oysters and speeches with southern sarcasm, of which the senator bore the brunt.

Owen P. White, magazine editor; Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond of New Orleans, a leader of the anti-Long forces in Louisiana, and Mrs. Winifred K. Nonidez, chairman of the dinner, united in praise of the "unknown soldier" who hit Senator Long in the eye at Sands Point, L. I., last August.

Assails Lukewarm Senators.

Mrs. Hammond called on the women of the United States to aid her in the battle against what she called the "vampire machine of Longism—sucking out the life blood of the state."

She assailed United States senators who, she said, had been lukewarm in their investigation of Senators Long and John H. Overton, also of Louisiana, and called for a continuance of the inquiry.

The demure, soft-spoken Mrs. Hammond said the modern battle of New Orleans had "just begun." Senator Long's forces, she said, must be routed "for the good of the nation," since Long is "a representative of all the states as well as Louisiana."

Mrs. William De Young Kay, representing the Newcomb college alumnæ, proposed a toast: "It won't be Long now."

No One Claims Medal.

White, a native of Texas, said the country owed Senator Long a debt of gratitude, "because he made us laugh."

It was White who had a medal struck off for the senator's anonymous adversary at Sands Point, and there had been talk that some one might step up to claim it tonight. But no one did.

"We searched in vain for the hero," said White, "but he was too modest to come forward."

Speaking of Senator Long, White said:

"Some men are as crude and some as ignorant as the Kingfish. There may be one or two men as overbearing as the Kingfish, but never before have all these qualities been mixed in one man."

"White House Boarder."

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long filed an application with President Roosevelt today to be a White House "boarder" but he left without any promise.

Striding into the executive office to keep an appointment with the President, Long crooked his cane on one arm and scattered copies of a prepared statement to reporters even before talking to the President.

As he strode into the executive office, the Louisiana senator pulled from his pocket a typewritten statement which read:

"If you want to know 'how does it happen' that I am here at the White House, then all I know is what I hear, and somebody told me that Baruch and Morgan and his partners, and Woodin and Eugene Meyer and Raskob had gone from this house and wouldn't be back soon.

"If that's so, then maybe there is room for them to take in a boarder like me."

After his 12-minute talk with Mr. Roosevelt, Long still stood on this statement upon departing.

"Are you going to be a boarder?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I filed the application," he replied.

ONLY AMERICAN CORNED BEEF TO BE ARMY RATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Only genuine American corned beef will have a place on the menus of the army and the civilian conservation corps in 1934, the war department informed President Roosevelt today.

There will be plenty of this staple, for the CCC will use about 1,000,000 pounds and the army already has ordered 100,000 pounds.

France Shaken as 60 Million Swindler Dies

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, France, Jan. 9—[Tuesday.]—France's biggest public financial scandal since the world war—the $60,000,000 Bayonne pawnshop bond fraud—swept to a sensational climax early today.

Serge "Handsome Alex" Stavisky, charged with duping French widows and orphans out of their life savings, died at 3:50 a. m., 12 hours after two bullets had entered his head. The police said the fugitive shot himself with a revolver after secret service agents had closed in on him in a lonely villa at Chamonix at the foot of the French Alps.

Shooting Is a Mystery.

The shooting is wrapped in mystery. Le Populaire in today's issue expresses doubts that it was a suicide. The newspaper says that it was a shooting to permit the French cabinet, which is fighting for its life as a result of Stavisky's operations, to appear before the chamber of deputies with clean hands.

Le Populaire, which ironically is the organ of the powerful Socialist party upon which the government of Premier Camille Chautemps depends to remain in office, boldly says:

"The police explanation that it was a suicide will fool no one."

One peculiarity in the various versions of Stavisky's shooting was noted. When the police broke into Stavisky's hiding place they found one room locked. Instead of breaking down the door at once they telephoned to the headquarters of the Surete Generale headquarters in Paris to get permission. Permission was granted and the police said Stavisky shot himself as they smashed down the door.

Cabinet Minister Resigns.

Simultaneously with the shooting a dark blot on the Chautemps government was removed when Albert Dalimier, minister of colonies, who was under fire because of the scandal attending the collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop, resigned. Dalimier was said to have written letters to insurance companies recommending investments in Stavisky's bonds.

The resignation was submitted following a stormy cabinet meeting at which Dalimier stoutly maintained his innocence in connection with the swindle. He finally agreed to surrender his post when his colleagues agreed in turn to exonerate him of any blame.

Claim Chiappe Faces Dismissal.

The desperate struggle Chautemps is waging to remain in power was further indicated yesterday by the arrival in Paris of Prefect of Police Jean Chiappe. Chiappe, who had been vacationing in Italy, arrived in the morning and went into an immediate conference with the premier.

As a result of the conference, Socialist quarters maintain that Chiappe will be dismissed. It is declared a new police department will be created in Paris, headed by neither Chiappe nor M. Thome, head of the Surete Generale.

Stavisky, who rose from the underworld to become a favorite companion of statesmen and financiers, as well as a lavish entertainer, was said to have attended a theater performance with Chiappe on the night of Dec. 22, the date of "Handsome Alex's" disappearance, and which resulted in a widespread man hunt.

Offered to Give Up.

Political enemies of the Chautemps régime charge that Chiappe is implicated in the scandal. They also charge that the Russian born Stavisky had informed Chautemps through an intermediary that he was willing to surrender in exchange for certain guarantees. It is alleged he warned the premier that he possessed a list of 180 persons who were implicated with him in the sale of the fake bonds.

Meanwhile the police, who, too, are fighting to whitewash charges of neglect which have been hurled at them since the scandal broke, are raiding homes of various personages in Paris in a hunt for documents and other evidence in the financial crash.

Pierre Darius, editor of the Daily Midi and the Weekly Bee at Ongles, was arrested last night. He is charged with assisting Stavisky with disposing of the pawnshop bonds. Other arrests are expected today.

FEDERAL CHECK BOUNCES BACK AT GOV. LEHMAN

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Gov. Lehman revealed today the story of a large federal check which bounced right back at him after he had indorsed it.

The governor disclosed the tale as he received a new check for $5,000,000 representing the latest federal contribution for unemployment relief. An earlier check, said the governor, was made out to the Honorable Herbert H. Lehman, governor. He simply signed his name to it. Back came the check because the governor had left out "The Honorable."

VANDAL GANGS SINK TRUCKS IN CHICAGO RIVER

Violence Spreads in City and Country.

THE DAIRY WAR

With vandalism and disorders prevalent both in the city and throughout the surrounding country, the following situation confronts Chicagoland in the milk war this morning:

1. Reserve supplies of milk exhausted. No deliveries today. City faces its first acute shortage this morning.

2. All efforts to initiate peace negotiations fail and no immediate settlement is in sight.

3. Farm administration officials arrive with a view of initiating mediation proceedings in the hope of peace.

Farmer pickets of the Pure Milk association committed one train robbery, stopped and searched another train, and raided several milk plants in southern Wisconsin last night in their successful campaign to keep Chicago's milk supply shut off.

The night disorders in the farm areas followed a day of vandalism in the streets of Chicago. The campaign of terrorism in the city was directed against independent, cut rate milk distributors who attempted to continue home deliveries. The vandals sank six milk trucks in the Chicago river and set fire to two more. In a score of other cases they beat, threatened, or fired shots at truck drivers, smashed windows, and dumped milk in the streets.

13 Union Drivers Seized.

Members of the milk wagon drivers' union were blamed by the independents for many acts of violence. They were not linked with all the terrorism, but every one of the thirteen men arrested and identified in connection with the vandalism was a union member. Most of them were employés of the Bowman Dairy company, Chicago's largest milk company.

The independent dealers are fighting for their existence in the present strike. Against them is an informal alliance of the organized milk dealers, the PMA, and the milk drivers' union, all avowed opponents of the cash and carry, cut rate sales methods of the independents.

The union drivers had yesterday free as a result of the suspension of home deliveries by the organized dealers. These dealers announced that their drivers will be at liberty again today. Failure to negotiate a settlement with the PMA caused them to continue the ban on deliveries except in emergency cases.

Stop Two Soo Trains.

The train robbery took place at 9:30 last night at High's Crossing, near Grayslake in Lake county. There a mob of some 300 farmers stopped two trains on the Soo line, waving flares to halt the engineers. The first train consisted only of passenger coaches, and was allowed to proceed.

The second train had several baggage cars. The farmers opened the doors and searched them for Chicago-bound milk. They found no fluid milk, but came upon a number of cases of condensed milk, which they confiscated.

While this was going on, a motorized army of 1,500 PMA members was spreading destruction through Walworth county, Wis., just across the Illinois state line. Their first raid was upon the plant of the Walworth Condensed Milk company, in the town of Walworth.

Ire of Farmers Aroused.

The farmers' wrath had been aroused, it was reported, because the manager of this plant, which normally takes milk, converts it to an ice cream mix, and ships it to Chicago to be frozen, attempted Sunday night to send out a carload of fluid milk.

Sheriff George O'Brien of Walworth county persuaded the manager, William E. Miller, to unload the shipment and place it in storage tanks in the plant to avoid trouble. Yesterday pickets dumped eight or nine truckloads of milk bound for the plant until Sheriff O'Brien and his deputies appeared and escorted the farmers' trucks in.

Last night the 1,500 farmers descended on the plant with military precision. Within 20 minutes they had stormed the plant, where Miller and one other employé were working, dumped some 4,000 gallons of milk, damaged some of the machinery, and departed.

Later the same mob returned to the United Milk company plant in Walworth and dumped 250 cans of cream.

It was also reported that at Walworth the mob found a railroad engine crew trying to haul a tank car of milk away from a dairy plant. The farmers, according to the report, forced the engineer to return the car to the plant, where they dumped the milk.

They then proceeded to the neighboring town of Lyons, where they found two deputy sheriffs guarding the plant of the Lyons Milk Products company. They took a shotgun from one of the deputies, slugged his companion, and spoiled the milk in the plant by pouring kerosene in it.

A pitched battle was narrowly averted on the farm of Henry Buchs, near East Troy, also in Walworth county. Buchs is a member of the Wisconsin milk pool, which has refused to cooperate in the milk strike against Chicago. He had a truckload of milk on his farm intended for shipment to the city.

PMA members at Burlington heard of this and a group of pickets arrived at the farm shortly after Buchs and his family had gone to bed. Buchs arose, got a shotgun, and stood them off until members of his family had summoned about fifty of his neighbors, some of whom were also armed. A few shots were exchanged without damage and the milk pool guards fended off three attempts by strike pickets to dump the milk.

The Vandalism in Chicago.

The campaign of vandalism in Chicago started early in the morning and became more severe as the day progressed. By late afternoon the complaints of the independent dealers resulted in the assignment of strong police details to milk strike duty. Police Commissioner Allman said that he would assign police guards to every dealer who requested them.

Among the most spectacular of the Chicago incidents was the rescue of a hijacked milk truck by police and the later burning of the truck by vandals in front of a police station.

The truck, belonging to the Lake View dairy, one of the independents, was taken from Roy Colby, the driver, and Tom Queenan, his helper, at Clark street and Leland avenue. They were forced into an automobile and kidnaped by two men, while three others of the gang drove the truck to the north branch of the river at Berteau avenue, intending to push it into the water.

Already 3 Trucks in Water.

They were prevented from doing this by the fact that there were already three trucks in the water at that point. They then drove to the river at Irving Park boulevard, where Supervising Police Capt. Thomas Condon and a detective squad caught them. The three men were Robert C. Spaulding, 1465 Winona street; Daniel Cawney, 4431 North Lincoln street, and Charles F. Willstein, 1910 Berteau avenue, all union drivers employed by the Bowman company.

The three were taken to the North Damen avenue police station and the recovered truck was parked across the street from the station. While the prisoners were being booked on charges of larceny of an automobile some one poured gasoline on the truck and fired it.

Later Harold Rehder, 2540 Aubert avenue, also a Bowman driver, was arrested and charged with being the driver of the car in which Colby and his helper were abducted.

Another Driver Arrested.

Ralph Lowery, 36 years old, 6438 Oxford avenue, another driver for the Bowman company, was arrested on the complaint of Elmer Martensen, a driver for the Meadowmoor dairy, one of the independent concerns. Martensen charged that Lowery was the leader of a gang of 50 drivers who followed his truck for some distance and threatened to dump his milk, which Martensen said he was delivering to families with babies.

Frank Lutz, an independent vender who buys milk from the Meadowmoor dairy, was stopped at Sunnyside avenue and Lincoln street. His helper, R. York, was dragged from the truck and beaten. The license number of the assailants' car was traced to Edward Spitzer, 3316 Byron street, a Bowman driver. He was arrested, as was Michael Cox, another Bowman driver, whom police caught at the Bowman plant. Both men were identified by Lutz and York and two other witnesses.

August Eich, 6349 North Mozart street, said by police to be a foreman for the Bowman company, appeared and posted bonds for Spitzer and Cox.

Arthur Wedell, 525 Wilson avenue, another Bowman driver, was arrested as the owner of an automobile used by a gang which stole the milk truck of Joseph Reichle, 4639 North Kedzie avenue, and smashed his bottles.

Four Accused of Intimidation.

Four drivers for the United Dairy company, another member of the organized group, were arrested on the complaint of Floyd Crump, a driver for the Edgewater dairy, that they had intimidated him. The men arrested were William Phelsan, 1615 Bryn Mawr avenue; Theodore Hartman, 907 Wrightwood avenue; George Billings, 4850 Irving Park boulevard, and Isadore Goldberg, 4948 Ridgeway avenue.

Daniel Hogan, 9009 Dauphin avenue, a driver for the Dauphin Park Dairy company, was arrested after he had allegedly thrown a brick through the window of a Meadowmoor Dairy branch office at 408 East 79th street.

Robert G. Fitchie, president of the milk wagon drivers' union, when questioned about the participation of members of his union in the campaign of vandalism, replied:

"We don't countenance such actions. But it's hard to control our men, with their jobs at stake, and it's an example of what a strike of our union would produce."

Fitchie added that the milk situation won't be cleared up, in his opinion, until the drivers are "taken care of" by the retention of their former wage scale of $40 a week and commissions.

MILK SHORTAGE ACUTE, RESERVE SUPPLIES GONE

Children and Invalids Are Assured Quota.

With its reserve supplies of milk almost gone because of the milk strike, and no immediate prospects of peace in sight, Chicago faces an acute milk shortage today for the first time since the strike began.

Curtailment of milk was so complete last night that general home deliveries by drivers this morning were again ordered stopped, for the second day in succession. However, there will be today, as there was yesterday, enough milk for children, invalids and others to whom it is a necessity.

Efforts to Make Peace.

With reserve supplies in the city exhausted, efforts were made in all quarters to bring together on common ground the principal disputants in the strike—the 18,000 farmer members of the Pure Milk association who produce Chicago's milk, and the more than 100 dairy companies which buy it. Up to midnight last night there were no definite solutions hinted. Further action is expected today, not only between the strike participants but by the city subcouncil on milk.

Officials on both sides, in admitting failure to reach an understanding, directed attention last night to the fact that those requiring milk will get it. Sufficient supplies have been brought in by railroads for this purpose, and by agreement between the organized dealers and the PMA emergency distribution will be continued today as yesterday.

How to Get Milk.

Telephone calls to regular dairies will result either in special deliveries for infants and invalids or in instructions as to where milk may be obtained through personal calls by consumers. However, this service will be limited because of the shortage. As usual, certified milk will be delivered by carrier. There is no ban on this milk in the strike. The Bowman company made special deliveries of certified milk in private cars last night.

The pinch, it is expected, will be felt today by large users of dairy supplies, such as hotels and restaurants. Many hotels and restaurants had enough reserves to carry them through yesterday. Today, it was admitted, the situation is entirely different. Some of these places probably will do as hundreds of homes are now doing, relying on prepared and canned milks.

Four Proposals Made.

Apart from yesterday's negative results in negotiations, principal interest is being centered on a special meeting today of the city council on milk, headed by Ald. David L. Sutton. With the approval of Mayor Kelly, it is understood the committee will consider four important proposals designed to protect consumers and to insure uninterrupted supplies. These are:

1—To increase the butter fat minimum in fluid milk from 3 to 3½ per cent. This would have the effect of giving the consumer a richer milk and benefiting the farmer by increasing the volume of his sales, as he is paid on butter fat content.

2—To abolish the present 100-mile milk zone outside of which the health department refuses to inspect any new farms. Under present regulations, Chicago's supplies are obtained from farms within this belt. To abolish the zone would practically mean an open market.

3—To transfer to farmers the expense of health inspections, now paid for by Chicago tax payers. It is proposed to tax them $12 a year for quarterly inspections.

4—To prohibit the sale of chocolate milk in milk bottles on the ground it costs more than fluid milk and, in fact, is skim milk with cream removed.

Mayor Gives Views.

Mayor Kelly's reaction to these proposals was short.

"I hope the council at its meeting Wednesday will provide regulations to abolish the 100 mile zone and to charge farmers an inspection fee," he said.

These items are by far the most important business scheduled at today's session. According to Ald. Sutton, Chicago pays the entire expense of inspecting thousands of farms, and yet the suburbs benefit without that expense. The suburbs, he declared, require milk that "has been inspected by Chicago health officers." The alderman declared himself in favor of 10 cent a quart milk in Chicago by home delivery and 9 cent a quart on a cash and carry basis. He said the dealers could do this without injury to farmers or union labor.

"Anyhow, I think this strike is for the purpose of killing independent dealers," the alderman said. "I think it is evident that the large dairies and the Pure Milk association are working together for that purpose."

The alderman's statement was based on reports that the cut rate dealers have been hardest hit by the strike thus far. They are the only ones seriously trying to run the picket blockade. The large, organized dealers have not been so ambitious. Informed observers declared the independents are fighting for their very life in the present struggle.

However, the olive branch has been extended to them by the PMA as well as to the organized distributors. The milk association's offer is simple. In effect it is: "We will take a blended price of $1.85 a hundred pounds [46½ quarts], but the independents must contract to pay the same price to the farmers they deal with."

This proposition was received yesterday by all dairies, organized and independent. On receipt of this offer, Dr. Fred D. Walmsley, head of the Borden company, and spokesman for the organized dealers, requested a meeting with the producers. L. D. Oranger, assistant to Don Geyer, manager of the PMA, told him the officials of the association could not be brought together until today because they were out of town. It is believed the two groups will meet today.

Although no definite word from the majority of independents was received officially up to midnight, it was said that several of them were leaning toward the proposal. One report was that the Meadowmoor Dairy company, one of the largest cut rate dealers, indicated willingness to sign a uniform producers' price agreement. The Lake View Dairy company, through its president, Gust Palmer, was more definitely committed.

"We agree with the offer of the PMA," said Mr. Palmer. "We could continue paying the price they ask and still make a 14 per cent profit."

GHQ and 15 'Generals' Run Milk Strikers Like an Army

BY PAUL POTTER.

Posted at strategic points—garages, cafés, or hotel rooms throughout the countryside—the generals of the milk strike movement are maintaining the blockade of the highways into Chicago with a systematic effectiveness.

Their soldiers are pickets recruited from the 18,000 farmer members of the Pure Milk association. These pickets, organized into a farflung army that surrounds Chicago in twenty-six counties of three states, answer to well planned orders.

The GHQ of this agrarian army is at 608 South Dearborn street, offices of the Pure Milk association. Here Don N. Geyer, secretary-manager of the association, and his assistants, L. D. Oranger and A. M. Krahl, are in charge. Phone calls pour in and orders are snapped back to the various key points.

Geyer in the Background.

Geyer, however, remains in the background and is seldom to be found. He or his assistants, however, are in contact with Washington, where officials of the federal agricultural adjustment administration are seeking to negotiate a settlement of the milk war.

They also are in touch with the Chicago board of health and with H. A. Pfister, Lake county dairyman who is president of the association and is stationed in a garage at Grayslake. This town is almost in the exact center of Lake county, commanding routes of traffic from the rich dairy country of upper Lake county, McHenry county, and southeastern Wisconsin.

Pfister is grand marshal of the field forces of the Pure Milk association. He has placed each of the 15 directors of the PMA at posts of command throughout the milk area that extends 100 or more miles from Chicago.

Most of these men have had experience in farm strikes of other years, out of the last of which, in 1929, came the nucleus of their present strong association.

They are taking pride in the fact that with ample expense money provided by reserves in the treasury of the country units of the PMA, they have for the first time succeeded in drying up the milk supply in the second largest market in the nation.

"We have done in two days what we failed to do in more than two weeks back in 1929," boasted an official of the Pure Milk association. And the same spirit is being carried by phone and word of mouth to the farmers and farm hands who keep vigil day and night on the highways.

Use Phones and Trucks.

The strikers are using the modern means of transportation and communication to carry on their blockade. Telephones have replaced the mounted Paul Revere of revolutionary days. Trucks carry platoons of pickets swiftly from point to point.

Farmers or their wives, peering from the windows of their homes, sight a truck going past which might contain milk. They dash to the phone and call a picket station farther along the road. Instantly bales of hay, telephone poles, ropes, railroad ties, or trucks are set up as barriers on the highway to stop the progress of the vehicle. Masses of heavily clothed men also swing out across the road.

If the suspected truck contains milk it is turned back or the milk is dumped, depending on the driver's willingness to listen to the pickets' reasoning. If it doesn't carry milk it is permitted to go on.

Farmers of one county are mobilized in other counties where they will not be recognized by neighbors or law enforcers.

Field Marshal Pfister, unshaven, forceful in his bulkiness, sits in the garage at Grayslake hour after hour, giving orders and receiving reports. He has a dairyman's handshake, grasping one's fingertips and squeezing them till he catches the flinch in one's eyes.

The phone rings, and after a minute's conversation he turns to a group of farmers, directing them to "pick up the boys at Half Day and get them over to Antioch. Watch for two trucks, and don't let those coppers scare you—they won't shoot."

Some Other Generals.

At Wadsworth, in Lake county, is John Knox, general in charge of those farmers investigating shipments along the north shore, both by truck and rail. Charles Wray, another Lake county PMA officer, is at Antioch and Johann Peterson is at Half Day. A. A. Vose is stationed in Waukegan. They work without sleep as only dairymen accustomed to early morning chores and night "milk meetin's" can.

In McHenry county, the largest source of Chicago's milk supply, Ole Stalheim keeps his ear at a phone in a Woodstock café. His men are spread out in nearby towns, using service stations or restaurants as headquarters.

At Harvard C. A. Howden is stationed in a garage where bands of farmers come and go as pickets call in reports.

In Cook County Sector.

The Cook county sector is under command of Fred Landmeier, stationed on route 19 near Barrington. His is a rear guard post, making certain that trucks which might elude more distant pickets "get what's coming to them."

In Du Page county bands of 200 to 250 men are scattered along the highways under Fred Campmeier, who has headquarters at Hinsdale and Naperville. Their job is simple, since the first violence occurred in that area Saturday and caused most farmers to decide on keeping their milk and cream at home.

So it is also in Will and Kankakee counties. Howard Klett, a PMA director, is in the farm bureau office in Joliet. Garrett Eckoff, another director, has charge of Grant Park, Crete, Momence, Peotone, and Manteno.

In Indiana the farmers are wary in their movements. Last year they sought a new law—and got it—making it a criminal offense to prevent a farmer from marketing his products. Now they are using phones and mild forms of picketing under the leadership of William Krueter at Crown Point, Glen Morgan at Valparaiso, and A. P. Brucker, roving chief.

Headquarters at Elgin.

In a bedroom on the fourth floor of the Fox hotel at Elgin sits the Kane county general of the PMA, Arthur Hartman, smoking a large cigar.

"We're going to win; watch for a settlement with the big dairies and the chiselers," declares Hartman. "No booze, no guns," is the rule among his men, he adds.

A farmer clothed in rubber boots, overalls, and jacket enters the room. He is twisting his cotton husking gloves and his eyes are watery from facing raw winds on the highway.

"Get out to the west part of town, they're waiting for you," Hartman tells him. The farmer leaves without a word, still twisting his cotton gloves.

ENVOYS OF AAA READY TO OFFER MILK MEDIATION

Deny Plan to Enforce New Code Here.

Officials of the Pure Milk association were informed last night that although no immediate peace is in sight, steps will be taken by the federal agricultural administration today to start negotiations for a settlement.

Two representatives of the AAA were in Chicago yesterday. One of them, Nathan Witt of the legal staff declared last night that he had been in touch with Farm Administrator Chester C. Davis in Washington and had been informed that the AAA would not take the position of forcing the organized milk producers to accept a new form of trade agreement.

Earlier Reports Denied.

Earlier reports from Washington had intimated that the AAA was taking the position that the Pure Milk association would have to accept a new code, which would fix a minimum price to all producers in the Chicago area, as a basis for peace. This was denied by both Mr. Witt and C. V. Gregory, editor of Prairie Farmer, who has been advising the AAA on the local strike developments.

It was indicated that instead of forcing a code, attempts would be made to reach some amicable plan under which the interests involved in the local industry—warring factions of farmers, the distributors and both organized and unorganized labor—might smoke a peace pipe within the next day or so.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, it was stated in Washington, was advised yesterday he could step into the Chicago strike situation without consulting the local interests should he choose to do so, under provisions of the farm marketing act. This, it was learned, he and Administrator Davis refused to do.

Washington Stand Told.

The AAA stands ready to step into the Chicago strike area and enforce a flat price for milk to be paid producers, acting under the new national policy announced yesterday. However, no attempt is to be made to fix arbitrarily the retail prices of milk, except to reserve the right to safeguard consumers against being overcharged.

The new policy of the AAA also contemplates that farmers through their organized associations must agree to enter upon a production control program, the details of which are to be announced in a few days. This plan, it is understood, contemplates the reimbursement of farmers with benefit payments for reducing their milk production, much as is done for those reducing acreage in wheat, cotton or corn.

I. C. C. ABOLISHES DEATH CROSSING IN WAUKEGAN

The Illinois Commerce Commission yesterday entered an order abolishing the grade crossing over the Chicago and Northwestern railway tracks on Belvidere street in Waukegan. The order also directed that provisions be made so that pedestrians can cross over the tracks safely. The order closes the street at that point to all vehicular traffic.

Engineers for the commission reported that the crossing was one of the most dangerous in the state.

MANY FOODS CAN SAFELY BE USED IN PLACE OF MILK

Dried or Condensed Kind Available.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Tribune Cooking Editor.]

Is milk essential to health? What is the least amount that grown persons and growing children can eat and drink of milk per day without injuring health? And what is the answer if it proves impossible, because of the present strike by the dairy farmers, to secure fresh, bottled milk for these adults and children of our families for a matter of days or weeks?

These questions are very much to the fore in every concerned Chicagoan's mind today.

Dehydrated Milk Available.

It is well established that food values which adults or growing children get from fresh bottled milk may be easily obtained from any of the various forms of evaporated, dried, or condensed whole milks on the market. This is so because these dehydrated milks are guaranteed whole milk from which nothing has been removed except part, or [as in the case of dried milk], all of the water.

These milks are simple to use, inexpensive, easily stored, and may be substituted in every recipe which calls for milk by simply diluting them with water as directed on the container. The slight difference in flavor from that of bottled milk [due to caramelization of a small amount of the milk sugar during processing], gives a faint malted milk tang and is of absolutely no importance at a time like this. If it is objectionable, it's easily camouflaged by the addition of other pronounced flavorings to foods.

Substitutes for Milk.

With the exception of the bone and teeth building elements, phosphorus and calcium, contained in such large quantities in milk, there is no food element in milk [not even the valuable vitamins] which cannot be fairly easily provided by carefully supplying in the diet large quantities of other foods important for these food elements.

Phosphorus and calcium must be supplied daily to growing children [and this means all persons under 20] or bone growth will be seriously retarded. Milk is the best possible source of these two minerals from all standpoints. For a growing child one quart of milk a day is highly desirable and almost essential for growth and health. The absolute minimum for children, if health is to be maintained, is one pint a day with the rest made up by increased amounts of other calcium and phosphorus rich foods, notably fruits and vegetables high in these minerals as explained below.

However, with children, to increase the bulk of these substitute foods beyond this half way point, and to attempt to supply the rest of the mineral needs with foods other than milk, is so difficult and complicated that only a highly trained dietition could hope to cope with it successfully.

How to Make Up Loss.

The comparison of the quantities of calcium and phosphorus in milk and in other common foods is simply a matter of a bit of arithmetic, once we have the facts before us. Here are two tables which should help if it ever becomes necessary to reduce the advised amount of milk somewhat and make up the loss with other foods. Following are quantities of foods which contain as much calcium as ½ cup of milk:

Cottage cheese—⅝ cup.
American cheese—⅝ inch cube.
Cooked cauliflower—⅝ cup.
Cooked rhubarb—½ cup.
Molasses—¼ cup.
Cooked spinach—1 cup.
Raw navy beans—1-3 cup.
Medium oranges—2.
Strawberries—1 1-3 cups.
Cooked turnips—1 cup.
Figs, medium—6.
Oysters—2-3 cup.

Quantities of foods which contain as much phosphorus as ½ cup of milk:

Chicken meat—2 tablespoons.
Dry navy beans—1½ tablespoons.
Cottage cheese—2½ tablespoons.
White fish—4½x2½x½ inch piece.
Beef liver—3x6x⅝ inch piece.
American cheese—1 inch cube.
Oysters—¼ cup.
Tuna fish—¼ cup.
Dry lima beans—2 tablespoons.
Beef round—4½x4½x½ inch.
Salmon—¼ cup.
Canned corn—1-3 cup.

In the case of adults, on the other hand, bones are already formed and the need for calcium and phosphorus is far less. For the best health, one pint of milk a day is desirable, but if this is not obtainable it is possible, though often somewhat difficult, to make up the mineral need from other foods.

MILK NEEDS MET IN CITY HOSPITALS AND ORPHAN HOMES

In spite of the milk strike Chicago's hospitals, orphanages, and infirmaries are being supplied with all the fresh milk needed, a survey yesterday indicated. Most of the milk for these emergency uses was permitted to enter the city by the Pure Milk association pickets. Where shortages occurred the cream milk shipped in from Wisconsin was being used.

St. Vincent's orphanage said it had a double supply Sunday morning but had found yesterday it could all it needed without an extra order. Hospitals which said the milk strike had not been felt as yet included the Lying In, St. Luke's, Presbyterian, Augustana, Iroquois, Passavant, and Cook county.

All said they were prepared for any emergency. By that they meant that supplies of powdered and canned milk had been stocked when news of the strike was first reported. Hospital dietitians declared that both substitutes are practically as wholesome as fresh milk.

The component parts of fresh milk are .7 of 1 per cent mineral salt, 3.8 per cent protein, 4 per cent fat, 5 per cent carbohydrates, and 87 per cent water. In condensed milk the solids have been concentrated and powdered milk contains all the essentials of fresh milk with the water evaporated, most of the preparations sold as milk substitutes for infants have powered milk as a base.

House Pupils in Tents to Avoid Quake Menace

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Tents housed 2,300 out of 12,700 Berkeley children upon their return to school today, because a number of structures have been found to hold possible menace in case of earthquakes.

CITY LEARNS IT CAN GET ALONG; BEER SALES UP

Chicago restaurant patrons learned yesterday that they could get along, at least for the time being, without milk. In its stead they ordered tea, coffee with condensed milk, wine, soda water, or beer. The beer business boomed and no one went thirsty because of the milk strike.

Many of the restaurants, especially those in the chains, served fresh milk and cream to their customers until their supplies were exhausted. The milk drinking public accepted the situation complacently and good naturedly. There were few grumbles even at the prospect of drinking black coffee.

Beer distributing agencies all over the city reported increased sales. One concern said that if the milk strike lasts another few days its business will be nearly doubled. Extra trucks were put into service to supply the demand for beer.

Groceries all reported large increases in sales of condensed and evaporated milk. Mothers with small children were buying it in case lots.

RISE OF GREAT MILK INDUSTRY IN U. S. TRACED

104 Billion Pints Used During 1932.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

The importance of milk in the life of mankind has been recognized since the dawn of history. The ancients used cows as a medium of exchange before the appearance of coins.

Less than half a century ago milk was still a household industry. Many families, even in cities, kept and milked their own cows. Such milk as was brought into town and peddled from door to door by farmers was ladled from a can with a dipper.

The farmers began to bring in more milk as the population increased and the cities became too congested for families to keep cows. The farmer had regular customers and gradually the route system was developed. When he lacked enough milk to go around he would buy some from neighbor farmers. Perhaps he prospered and moved into town, having his milk shipped in and distributing it from a plant. This gradual change from producer to distributor was the beginning of the milk industry.

104 Billion Pints a Year.

Since those days the industry has grown to such proportions that, during 1932, 104 billion pints of milk were consumed in the United States. The per capita consumption was 837 pints, which represented an increase of 32 per cent over 1920. Dairy products, during 1932, supplied 24.5 per cent of the nation's total farm income, and the total investment in the production side of the milk business, including the land, was estimated as more than 10 billion dollars.

This vast expansion in the milk industry is attributed by M. D. Munn, president of the National Dairy council, to five outstanding developments.

The Babcock test, a simple means of determining the fat content of milk, and the centrifugal cream separator both appeared in 1890. The next great development was bottling, which had first appeared in 1889, but did not come into general use until the beginning of this century.

Rise of the Vitamins.

In 1910 milk was found to contain the important vitamin A and in 1919 vitamin B was announced. This gave the industry a tremendous impetus, and milk was subsequently found to contain all the vitamins except C.

The fifth development was the application to milk of pateurization, which was made compulsory for Chicago by Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, while he was city health commissioner in 1915.

Pasteurization was developed late in the 19th century by Louis Pasteur, the French chemist, while experimenting with wine and beer. At first it was merely intended to kill the germs which cause fermentation, and although it was known that pasteurized milk would not sour easily, the discovery that the process also kills pathogenic germs was not made until 1907. The pasteurizing method is simple, consisting of heating milk to a temperature of 145 degrees and maintaining that temperature for 30 minutes. Thus germs are killed without scalding the milk.

Other Important Advances.

There were other important developments, such as the tuberculin test for cattle, which appeared in 1890, and the invention of the power churn, which mixes and salts butter at the same time.

Perhaps none of the changes in the industry, however, had as much effect upon the consuming public's attitude toward milk as bottling. It is now possible to take milk from cow and deliver it to the doorstep untouched by anything except polished metal and glass.

Milk is now distributed in bottles even in the smallest towns, whereas only a third of a century ago cans, buckets, and pitchers were used for milk and old fashioned crocks for butter.

PRINCE MDIVANI NEARS SEATTLE; WIFE IN FRISCO

Honeymooners Conceal Reunion Plans.

Chehalis, Wash., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Prince Alexis Mdivani, who could not be found when a train on which he was reported to have left Portland today arrived at Seattle, was located here tonight.

The prince registered at the St. Helen's hotel along with other members of his party. The group was registered under the name of "C. H. Henderson and party of New York City."

Hotel men identified the members of the party as Prince Alexis, Charles H. Huberich of Paris, his attorney; Mrs. Huberich (the prince's sister) and a secretary. Huberich's initials coincide with those of "Henderson."

When newspaper men sought to interview the prince there was no effort at denying his identity, it being stated by members of the party that "he has had a hard day and could not see any one."

Reporters were given to understand they would travel north to Seattle tomorrow in the same two limousines in which they had traveled from Portland.

Tour to Start Just the Same.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Although Prince Alexis Mdivani, sought by a Los Angeles district attorney's investigator, was putting distance between himself and his $40,000,000 bride tonight, confidantes of the princess said their projected oriental tour would begin Thursday as scheduled.

"Everybody seems to be much more worried about all this than Princess Mdivani," said Mme. Nancy Allard, companion of the princess. "Her father has been trying to get her all day on the telephone from New York and hasn't reached her yet, but I think he will do so later."

During the day the private coach in which the honeymooners came westward was ordered "deadheaded" back to New York, but the order subsequently was canceled.

Reservations Stay.

Reservations for half a deck and a suite of staterooms on the liner Tatsuta Maru, which is scheduled to take the honeymooners to the orient, remained unchanged, officials of the line said. The ship is due to leave San Francisco Thursday.

Momentarily outmaneuvered but still hoping Alexis would set foot in California, Harry Owen, Los Angeles district attorney's investigator, established himself near the fashionable hotel where the princess stopped here. He said his feelings had been hurt by the flight of the prince.

"Why, I wasn't going to give him a subpoena," said Owen. "I just wanted to take a little statement to use in connection with the trial of his two brothers. That's all. And I'm going to stick right here in San Francisco.

When Owen went from Los Angeles to San Francisco in an unsuccessful effort to meet the prince it was reported he would seek to subpoena Alexis as a witness in the forthcoming trial of Prince Serge and David Mdivani, his brothers, in Los Angeles on a grand theft charge growing out of their operations of an oil company.

Los Angeles authorities said they were seeking to learn the circumstances under which Alexis supposedly deposited $22,000 to the credit of his brothers to cover "certain obligations."

BOY AUTOIST SENT TO JAIL; HIS FATHER UPHOLDS THE LAW

Roland Wilcox Jr., 18 years old, 6227 Meredith avenue, yesterday was sentenced to serve 60 days in the House of Correction and pay a $200 fine for driving while intoxicated by Judge N. J. Bonelli in Traffic court. His father did not appear in court although notified of his son's arrest at 1:50 a. m. yesterday on complaint of John Karge, 5207 Manila avenue.

"I felt that the boy should pay the price for his folly," said Mr. Wilcox, owner of a coal and coke company bearing his name. "My attitude is that law and society cannot countenance such offenses. It is unfortunate when the law strikes your own home, but I believe that we too should pay our contribution to the general good of society. However, I had no idea that a jail sentence would be imposed and will try to have it reduced."

Young Wilcox denied charges of Karge and policemen that he was hopelessly intoxicated. Karge told the court the boy had smashed his father's automobile into his car at Lawrence and Elston avenues and had driven several blocks before he was forced to the curb by Karge.

FEE $1,000 SHY, JOHN C. THOMAS REFUSES TO SING

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 8.—(AP)—John Charles Thomas, American baritone, walked out on an audience of 1,000 persons here tonight when the management was unable to pay him his fee of $1,500 for a recital.

There was only $500 available, as the audience was made up largely of season ticket holders who had paid a small fee. Thomas expressed his regrets and took a train for Los Angeles.

The audience besieged Thomas' manager in the lobby, declaring he should have sung regardless of the fee.

SCIENTIST FINDS BEES POSSESS SHREWD "MINDS"

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Bees seem to possess a great deal of ingenuity and seem able to think and to communicate their thoughts to their bee friends, stated Dr. Frank E. Lutz of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, when describing to the Royal Canadian institute here a series of experiments he had conducted to test insect "intelligence."

Dr. Lutz said he placed sugar water in a bees' cage, the entrance to which was blocked at certain times. He used a sloping trap door which easily pushed up when a bee was finding its way out, but which refused to open when the same method was used from the outside. But shrewd little bees sometimes watched till their confreres were coming out and then slid in while the door was still up. Some bees found that by turning a somersault they could lift the trap door and roll in upside down.

He revealed experiments which he had carried out proved that a cockroach, which loves dark places, if shocked often enough by electricity in these, refrain from entering them.

Youth Shot by Policeman as He Tried to Escape Dies

Edward McGriss, 21 years old, 6538 Woodlawn avenue, who was shot on Sunday night by Policeman Grover Mulvaney as he was making an escape from the Woodlawn police station, died early today in the Bridewell hospital. He had been arrested for striking Miss Marie Schultz, 22, of 6321 South Marshfield avenue, in the Casino Moderne, 913 East 63d street, and knocking out four of her teeth. As he was being led to a cell he broke away and ran out of the station. Policeman Mulvaney shot him as he fled.

DEATH THREATS TO FACTOR IF HE NAMES TOUHYS

Warned Not to Testify at Trial Jan. 16.

John [Jake the Barber] Factor, the state's main witness in the kidnaping case against members of the Touhy gang, revealed last night at the state's attorney's office that a number of threats had been transmitted to him recently. He was warned that he and his family would be killed if he persisted in his intention of identifying four Touhy gangsters as the men who kidnaped him.

As a result, nine detectives are now guarding Factor. He has been in hiding for several weeks. The squads protecting him are armed with machine guns and have orders to shoot to kill any persons who attempt to harm him.

Ask Delay of Extradition.

Factor's revelation was made to First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley, who had summoned Factor to a conference at which a petition was drawn which will be presented to Federal Judge Wilkerson today asking that the U. S. Supreme court mandate ordering Factor back to England for trial on charges of fraud be delayed until Factor has an opportunity to testify at the Touhy trial.

"Close friends of mine have been getting calls at frequent intervals in the last few days," Factor told Prosecutor Crowley, "in which they are given messages to carry to me.

"Tell Jake to lay off testifying or it will be too bad for him, his wife and family," the anonymous telephone callers declared, according to Factor.

Disregards Warnings.

"I'm going through with it anyway," Factor declared. "I'm going to identify those men as the men who kidnaped me."

The four members of the Touhy gang charged with the kidnaping must go to trial next Tuesday without fail, Judge Michael Feinberg informed Attorney William Scott Stewart for the defense yesterday. Attorney Stewart, who was one of defense counsel for the Touhy gangsters when a St. Paul jury returned a verdict of not guilty in their favor, appeared for the first time as a defense attorney yesterday.

Attorney Stewart made two perfunctory motions before Judge Feinberg which, he admitted, he had not hoped to see granted. One motion was to quash the indictment against the defendants on the ground that the grand jury was illegally drawn. The other was a motion to suppress the evidence. The judge indicated he would overrule the motions when they are formally filed Thursday.

"This trial will start Jan. 16," the judge told the attorney.

ASK 2 U. S. COURT INJUNCTIONS TO STOP PICKETING

Federal Judge John P. Barnes will be asked today to grant two independent milk organizations injunctions restraining the Pure Milk association and others from interfering with deliveries of milk to their plants.

One of the injunction pleas, filed yesterday by the Meadowmoor dairy, also asks that the PMA be required to give an accounting for damage which the company has already suffered. Last night, however, PMA officials asserted that the Meadowmoor company had opened negotiations to buy milk from their members.

The Meadowmoor injunction petition and one which Attorney Joseph A. Green said he would file today on behalf of the Economy dairy, 7315 Irving Park boulevard, allege violations of the anti-trust laws.

Two Shot as Robbers When They Go to Wrong House

Two men were shot by mistake as suspected burglars last night because they got mixed up in their addresses. They are John Malicki, 24 years old, 5210 South Marshfield avenue, and Frank Ungar, 44, of 925 Sholto street. Intending to call on an acquaintance, they pounded on the door of a house at 1222 West 13th street, occupied by David Johnson, 35 years old, a Negro. It was the wrong place. Johnson, frightened, fired two shots through the door. One bullet hit Malicki in the abdomen and the other pierced Ungar's left leg. Malicki was taken to the Mother Cabrini hospital and Ungar to the county hospital.

$10 to $1,000 Fines Levied Against 14 Panhandlers

The drive, instituted against panhandlers last week, materialized yesterday when Municipal Judge Leon B. Edelman in the Des Plaines street court fined 14 defendants amounts ranging from $10 to $1,000 and costs. Judge Edelman declared that in these days of organized relief there is no excuse for panhandling.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN CANADA; SEEKS TO RE-ENTER U. S

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—H. Mooer, American consul in Toronto, said today that Emma Goldman had interviewed him several days ago in connection with her efforts to reënter the United States, from which she was deported as an anarchist in 1919. He declined to divulge the outcome of the interview and said he could not discuss the case in detail while it was under consideration of American authorities.

Miss Goldman had friends and relatives in the United States whom she wished to visit, he said. He asserted he did not know whether it was solely for the purpose of visiting these friends or with the view of making a lecture tour that she desired reëntry. The only comment Consul Mooer would make was personal.

"She is one of the most intelligent women I have ever met," he said. "She is a French woman and has met some of the most famous personalities in Europe. She is a brilliant conversationalist."

Mooer said he thought there would not be any objection to Miss Goldman's lecturing in the United States if she spoke on the same subject she chose in Canada—the German régime.

Policemen Sue for Pay on 14 Day 1931 Vacation

A petition for a writ of mandamus was filed in the Circuit court yesterday in behalf of 300 former members of the police department, who resigned Jan. 1, to compel the city to pay them for the fourteen day payless vacation they were forced to take in 1931. The total amount represented is $30,000. Attorneys William Daniel Johnson and John Waage, representing the policemen, said they will shortly file another suit to attempt to collect $120,000 for the 57 day cut imposed in 1932.

SUPREME COURT DECISION GIVES AID TO NEW DEAL

Mortgage Moratorium Is Constitutional.

tate may justify the exercise of its continuing and dominant protective power notwithstanding interference with contracts. . . . Similarly, where the protective power of the state is exercised in a manner otherwise appropriate in the regulation of a business it is no objection that the performance of existing contracts may be frustrated by the prohibition of injurious practices."

A state may not constitutionally adopt as its policy the repudiation of debts or the destruction of contracts or the denial of means to enforce them, the opinion declared.

"But it does not follow," said the chief justice, "that conditions may not arise in which a temporary restraint of enforcement may not be consistent with the spirit and purpose of the constitutional provision and thus be found to be within the range of the reserved power of the state to protect the vital interests of the community.

Reserves Authority.

"It can not be maintained that the constitutional prohibition should be so construed as to prevent limited and temporary interpositions with respect to the enforcement of contracts if made necessary by a great public calamity, such as fire, flood, or earthquake.

"The reservation of state power appropriate to such extraordinary conditions may be deemed to be as much a part of all contracts, as is the reservation of state power to protect the public interest in the other situations to which we have referred. And if state power exists to give temporary relief from the enforcement of contracts in the presence of disasters due to physical causes, such as fire, flood, or earthquake, that power can not be said to be nonexistent when the urgent public need demanding such relief is produced by other and economic causes."

After a lengthy series of citations the majority opinion continued:

"It is manifest from this review of our decisions that there has been a growing appreciation of public needs and of the necessity of finding ground for a national compromise between individual rights and public welfare. The settlement and consequent contraction of the public domain, the pressure of a constantly increasing density of population, the interrelation of the activities of our people and the complexity of our economic interests have inevitably led to an increased use of the organization of society in order to protect the very bases of individual opportunity."

Society Grows Complex.

"Where, in earlier days, it was thought that only the concerns of individuals or of classes were involved, and that those of the state itself were touched only remotely, it has later been found that the fundamental interests of the state are directly affected; and that the question is no longer merely that of one party to a contract as against another, but of the use of reasonable means to safeguard the economic structure upon which the good of all depends.

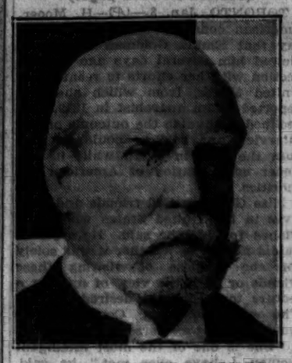
"It is no answer to say that this public need was not apprehended a century ago, or to insist that what the provision of the constitution meant to the vision of that day it must mean to the vision of our time.

"If, by the statement that what the constitution meant at the time of its adoption, it means today, it is intended to say that the great clauses of the constitution must be confined to the interpretation which the framers, with the conditions and outlook of their time would have placed upon them, the statement carries its own refutation.

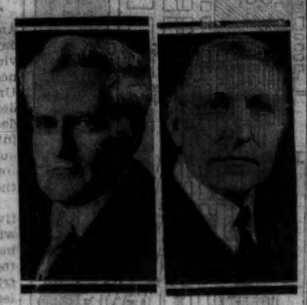
Deny Inharmony.

"Nor is it helpful to attempt to draw a fine distinction between the intended meaning of the words of the constitution and their intended application. When we consider the contract clause and the decisions which have expounded it in harmony with the essential reserved power of the states to protect the security of their peoples we find no warrant for the conclusion that the clause has been warped by these decisions from its proper significance or that the founders of our government would have interpreted the clause differently had they had occasion to assume that responsibility in the conditions of the later day."

Give Majority Opinion in "NRA" Case



CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES.



JUSTICE CARDOZO. JUSTICE ROBERTS.

JUSTICE BRANDEIS. JUSTICE STONE.

In the case of the mortgage moratorium act, the opinion found that:

"An emergency existed in Minnesota which furnished a proper occasion for the exercise of the reserved power of the state to protect the vital interests of the community," and that the legislation was "not for the mere advantage of a particular individual, but for the protection of a basic interest of society."

The affirmation of the act's constitutionality followed.

Dissenters' Opinion.

Fully as alive to the significance of the court's decision was the dissenting opinion handed down by Justice Sutherland.

"Few questions of greater moment than that just decided have been submitted for judicial inquiry during this generation," the opinion asserted. "He simply closes his eyes to the necessary implications of the decision who fails to see in it the potentiality of future gradual, but ever advancing encroachments upon the sanctity of private and public contracts.

"The effect of the Minnesota legislation, though serious enough in itself, is of trivial significance compared with the far more serious and dangerous inroads upon the limitations of the constitution which are almost certain to ensue as a consequence naturally following any step beyond the boundaries fixed by that instrument.

"And those of us who are thus apprehensive of the effect of this decision would, in a matter so important, be neglectful of our duty should we fail to spread upon the permanent records of the court the reasons which move us to the opposite view.

Rational View.

"A provision of the constitution, it is hardly necessary to say, does not admit of two distinctly opposite interpretations. It does not mean one thing at one time and an entirely different thing at another time. If the contract impairment clause, when framed and adopted, meant that the terms of a contract for the payment of money could not be altered in virtum by a state statute enacted for the relief of hardly pressed debtors to the end and with the effect of postponing payment or enforcement during and because of an economic or financial emergency, it is but to state the obvious to say that it means the same now.

"This view, at once so rational in its application to the written word, and so necessary to the stability of constitutional principles, though from time to time challenged, has never, unless recently, been put within the realm of doubt by the decisions of this court."

"The provisions of the federal constitution, undoubtedly, are pliable in the sense that in appropriate cases they have the capacity of bringing within their grasp every new condition which falls within their meaning," Justice Sutherland said further. "But, their meaning is changeless; it is only their application which is extensible."

Review Cases.

The dissenting opinion delved searchingly into the history of the constitution and the contract clause; it, too, arrayed an imposing series of precedents. Then it continued:

"The present exigency is nothing new. From the beginning of our existence as a nation periods of depression, of industrial failure, of financial distress, of unpaid and unpayable indebtedness have alternated with years of plenty. The vital lesson that expenditure beyond income begets poverty; that public or private extravagance, financed by promises to pay, either must end in complete or partial repudiation or the promises be fulfilled by self-denial and painful effort, though constantly taught by bitter experience, seems never to be learned; and the attempt by legislative devices to shift the misfortune of the debtor to the shoulders of the creditor without coming into conflict with the contract impairment clause has been persistent and oft repeated.

"The defense of the Minnesota law is made upon grounds which were discountenanced by the makers of the constitution and have many times been rejected by this court. That defense should not now succeed but it constitutes an effort to overthrow the constitutional provision by an appeal to facts and circumstances identical with those which brought it into existence. With due regard for the processes of logical thinking, it legitimately can not be urged that conditions which produced the rule may now be invoked to destroy it."

"If the provisions of the constitution be not upheld when they pinch as well as when they comfort, they may as well be abandoned," the dissent concluded. "Being unable to reach any other conclusion than that the Minnesota statute infringes the constitutional restriction under review, I have no choice but to say so."

PLEASES OFFICIALS.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Gov. Floyd O. Olson today termed the decision of the United States Supreme court upholding Minnesota's mortgage moratorium law a "triumph of human rights over property rights."

"The decision," the governor asserted, "represents more than a triumph of the police power clause of the constitution over the due process of law and obligation of contract clauses.

"It also indicates that we can change the system under which we live in any manner we desire and keep within the constitution."

The law was passed at the 1933 regular session of the state legislature. A test case was instituted in Hennepin county District court where Judge Arthur Selover ruled the measure unconstitutional. He was reversed later by the state Supreme court, one of seven justices dissenting.

William S. Ervin, assistant state attorney general, who aided in presentation of the case for the law before the United States Supreme court last November, said he was gratified at the court's decision.

SUICIDE; COURT DROPS CHARGES.

Judge Leon Edelman in the Fillmore street court yesterday dismissed a charge of disorderly conduct placed against Manley K. Hardison, 41 years old, 644 North Cicero avenue, for beating his wife, when the court was informed the defendant committed suicide in his cell Sunday night.

TREASURY BUYS 44 MILLION OF FEDERAL PAPER

Silver Purchases Bared by Morgenthau.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The treasury department plunged heavily into the government security market last week, buying $44,000,000 worth of its own paper in an effort to protect government bond values from the effects of President Roosevelt's budget message which revealed that the government must borrow 10 billion dollars in the next six months, it was learned today.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., who today disclosed the extent of the treasury's bond purchases, also announced that the treasury had launched the President's silver buying program, acquiring 1,157 ounces, and that the treasury had rounded up $2,810,000 worth of gold in its new anti-hoarding campaign.

Robinson Makes Protest.

While Secretary Morgenthau was making his announcements, the senate was voting confirmation of his appointment as head of the treasury with only the voice of Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] raised in protest. Senator Robinson criticised Mr. Morgenthau's appointment of Earl Baille, investment banker who resigned from the treasury on Saturday, as fiscal assistant in the department.

Secretary Morgenthau announced the bond purchases as "for investment" but the fact that the buying was almost five times larger than that which the treasury has been doing was taken here as clear evidence that the treasury was supporting its own securities by buying them.

When President Roosevelt revealed to congress on Thursday that he needs to borrow 10 billions in six months and expects to spend 16¼ billions, government bonds dipped sharply but recovered with support which the markets believed was coming from the treasury itself. Secretary Morgenthau at that time denied reports of active buying.

Reserve Ordered to Buy.

At the same time that the treasury's large scale government security purchases were revealed, it was reported that the federal reserve board, which has not been buying or selling government bonds, had been ordered by the White House to resume buying in order to prevent a break in bond values.

The administration is represented as intent on sustaining the market so that it can go ahead with its huge financing without resorting to inflation.

PLAN TO HONOR ROOSEVELT HERE ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Plans were formed yesterday for Chicago participation in the birthday celebration of President Roosevelt on Jan. 30. Carter H. Harrison, chairman of the event in the city, called business and civic leaders together for an organization meeting at the Palmer house. Professional and national groups have agreed to hold parties on the night of the President's birthday to contribute toward the endowment fund for the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation, which he founded in 1926 for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

WIFE OF VALLEE ASKS SEPARATE MAINTENANCE

Involves Three Girls in Latest Action.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, the black haired dancer, filed suit here today against Rudy Vallee, the crooner, for separate maintenance amounting to something appreciably more than the "shockingly and grossly inadequate" $100 a week she now gets.

The Santa Monica police chief's daughter accused the radio celebrity of extreme deviations from propriety with three girls, one of them Alice Faye, a singer with his orchestra, and the other two designated each as "Jane Doe." Her suit specified indiscretions with Miss Faye in Miami Beach, Fla., and at other places between Jan. 26, 1932, and Feb. 21, 1932.

Although Vallee taught her to expect sumptuous living standards and to feel in want without them, she asserted she does not now have money sufficient even to pay for medical attention, of which she is in constant need.

Asks Secrecy.

When she filed her suit her attorney, Ben Cohen, asked the judge to seal the papers because Mrs. Vallee wished to "protect Rudy." When the defendant heard of this consideration on the part of his wife, he lifted his voice to proclaim that he wished the charges made public.

His contention, revealed by his attorney when Fay recently instituted proceedings to prevent him from getting a Mexican divorce, is that he is sinned against, not sinning. His wife's present suit replies to this allegation by asserting Vallee was unable to obtain evidence of infidelity, the only ground for divorce in New York.

Among charges set forth today, the dancer declares that Rudy has an ungovernable temper; that he uses very strong language, at times on his spouse; that he installed a device in her apartment to record telephone conversations; that he was guilty of "brazen effrontery" and "deliberate conspiracy" against his wife; that he instituted a systematic effort which forced her on the basis of false beliefs to enter into an unfavorable property settlement with the crooner last year.

Rudy Amazed.

At that time, she declares, Vallee was earning $350,000 a year and was worth $3,000,000. Now, her action indicates, his income is $600,000 a year, and can pay her more than a paltry $100 a week. The previous settlement deeded her the $60,000 Vallee mansion in Hollywood.

In a campaign to convey the impression of short funds, Mrs. Vallee alleged, Rudy "deposited large sums of money" in safety deposit boxes under titles of corporations and names of other persons, and established various insurance trusts with himself as beneficiary, to avoid sharing his possessions.

"I am amazed at her audacity," Vallee asserted tonight. "The reason for attempting to cover the action in Los Angeles with secrecy is obvious. I hope I never have to do it, but if everything eventually has to be brought out, then we shall let Miss Webb's voice speak for herself."

Miss Faye, the singer and actress accused by Fay Webb Vallee, declared tonight that Mrs. Vallee's charges, so far as they concerned her, were "ridiculous."

FOREIGN POLICY OF ISOLATION IS URGED BY BORAH

DeclaresInternationalists Have Failed.

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Another "revolution"—the revolution of the internationalists—has failed, and the "fight against nationalism has lost," Senator William E. Borah of Idaho said tonight in advocating a foreign policy of political isolation for th United States.

He spoke before the Council on Foreign Relations at a dinner at the Ritz-Carlton hotel.

Senator Borah condemned the "shambling, equivocal foreign policy which found expression in a multitude of reservations and all kinds of explanations" and attacked that "strange figure" of diplomacy, the "unofficial observer," as "a kind of international spy."

Sees False Foundation.

Declaring that internationalism, if it "means anything more than the friendly coöperation between separate, distinct, and wholly independent nations, rests upon a false foundation," he reiterated his belief in the foreign policy of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln, and warned against international political commitments of any kind.

Senator Borah, speaking on "Our Foreign Policy in a Nationalistic World," emphasized that the nation could find its "highest service" to mankind and to the peace of the world in transmitting unimpaired to succeeding generations the principles and ideals of democracy.

"This is our supreme duty," he declared. "I believe that the foreign policy of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln will best enable us to meet and discharge that duty. I am, therefore, at all times, in periods of turbulence and in periods of calm, and without apology and without compromise, committed to its support.

"Freedom of Action."

"This, it will be said, is isolation. It is not isolation; it is freedom of action. It is independence of judgment. It is not isolation; it is free government—there can be no such thing as free government if the people thereof are not free to remain aloof or to take part in foreign wars. People who have bartered away or surrendered their right to remain neutral in war have surrendered their right to govern.

"In matters of trade and commerce we have never been isolationists, and never will be. In matters of finance, unfortunately, we have not been isolationists, and probably never will be. When earthquake and famine, or whatever brings human suffering, visit any part of the human race, we have not been isolationists, and never will be. In all those matters and things in which a free and independent and enlightened people may have a part, looking toward amity, toward peace and the lessening of human suffering, we have never been isolationists, and never will be.

"But in all matters political, in all commitments of any nature or kind, which enroach in the slightest upon the free and unembarrassed action of our people, or which circumscribe their discretion and judgment, we have been free, we have been isolationists. And this I trust, we shall ever be. If there be any truth established by the experience of nations, it is this: That to accommodate your foreign policies to the demands or in the interest of other nations at the peril of your own security is to invite contempt, and it seldom fails to earn a more substantial punishment."

BANDITS ROB COUPLE.

Paul Brown, 629 Prairie avenue, Wilmette, and Miss Tillie Schatz, 715 Forrest road, Glenview, were robbed of $3 and Brown's automobile yesterday by three bandits who entered the car as it stopped for a traffic signal at Sheridan road and Washington street, Wilmette.

Democratic Chief Charges CWA Waste in California

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Charges of incompetency and mismanagement in the Civil Works administration in California, made public today by John B. Elliott, Los Angeles Democratic leader, brought word a complete accounting of expenditures would be conducted at once.

Accordingly Edward Macauley, California state administrator for the CWA, with headquarters in San Francisco, was ordered by Aubrey Williams, assistant administrator in Washington, to send investigators to Los Angeles.

Maj. James Hanique, Civil Works administrator for Los Angeles county, said he did not doubt Elliott's sincerity, "but many of the conditions complained of, I am sure, never occurred at any time."

"Great Public Scandal."

Elliott, one of the leaders in the Roosevelt campaign in California, said the CWA administration here was "a great public scandal" and "the whole thing constitutes a deliberate and destructive betrayal of President Roosevelt and his administration, together with tens of thousands of unfortunate unemployed."

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars of public money have been wasted through a grossly incompetent local administration that is honeycombed with local politics," Elliott said.

"Local politicians have had their favorites in high places in the organization so that they could place long lists of preferred persons, while thousands of those who are registered, as required by law, received no work orders and no pay."

No Tools, He Charges.

Elliott charged that as many as 17,000 unemployed were assigned daily to various projects without any tools or materials, and stood idle as long as ten days in succession, while on federal pay rolls at 50 cents an hour.

G. O. P. FIGHTING PENDING BUDGET AS U. S. DANGER

Huge Deficit Is Peril to Recovery, Charge.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The Republican national committee fired a broadside tonight at the Roosevelt recovery program, charging the pending budget and rate of expenditure spell uncontrolled inflation and ruin.

The committee struck what Chairman Everett Sanders offers as the keynote of Republican opposition in congress to the administration's 16 billion dollar spending program for the next 18 months.

Charge Promise Is Weak.

The Republican committee charges that the President's promise to balance the budget in 1936 cannot be relied upon.

"The administration repeatedly claimed during the earlier months of its incumbency that it was balancing the budget," said the committee.

"It now is forced to admit publicly and officially that, instead of the budget's being balanced, it will be 7 billion dollars out of balance at the end of this fiscal year.

"This deficit is appalling. It is more than twice as great as any deficit in the history of the United States, excluding the two years 1917-1918, during which we financed our participation in the world war.

"The effort to allay public fear of the paralyzing effect of this tremendously unbalanced budget on government credit was an outstanding feature of President Roosevelt's budget message. There is no confidence to be placed in the prophecy that it may be balanced in two or three years from now. The record of this administration furnishes no hope of the fulfillment of that pledge. Moreover, the program outlined by the President himself for future colossal expenditures makes the fulfillment of the prophecy impossible.

Fears Uncontrolled Inflation.

"A temporary unbalancing of the budget would not affect national credit. But the administration's outline of a continuation of unprecedented expenditures and a growing deficit not only for the remainder of this fiscal year but at least throughout the fiscal year ending July, 1935, cannot but impair national credit. Such a program, if carried out, would force the administration to resort to 'uncontrolled' inflation."

Referring to the President's assertion that he welcomes "constructive criticism," the Republican committee calls on Republicans in congress to fight "the administration program of unlimited expenditures, unparalleled deficits and the creation of the largest public debt [over 31 billion dollars], in the history of the United States."

Says Funds Are Wasted.

"That means," said the committee, "the closest scrutiny of all appropriation bills and opposition to all items, of whatever character, which are not absolutely necessary and which are an invitation to the further squandering of public funds.

"It also means that the Republicans in both branches of congress should stand firmly against the surrender by congress of the purse strings of the nation. They should insist that appropriations made by the congress should be expended as directed by law. When congress makes specific appropriations for specific things no power should be permitted to the executive to thwart the will of congress by shifting appropriations in order to finance proposals which congress has considered and rejected in the interest of public economy and sound government."

This last refers to the allocation of millions of dollars of public works funds to executive departments for purposes previously disallowed by congress, against which practice even Democratic leaders of the house are in rebellion.

To pay the colossal bill for the President's projects "more and heavier taxes" will be levied, said the Republican national committee, and the additional tax burden will fall, as Director of the Budget Douglas said, upon the shoulders of the middle class.

People Near Their Limit.

"The time is near at hand," the committee goes on, "when people will be at the end of their taxpaying ability. Scores of municipalities, school districts, county and state governments can testify that this situation already exists.

"Even after exacting from the taxpayers all possible revenue, state, county and municipal governments have been living beyond their income to such a degree they have accumulated an aggregate bonded indebtedness of over 19 billion dollars. Many of them cannot pay the interest on their bonds. Bankrupt, facing a complete collapse of their credit, they are today unable to meet their routine expenses.

"They are at the end of their spendthrift career.

"The Democratic administration refuses to heed these danger signals. The 'New Deal' has thrown public economy into the discard.

"An administration dependent upon dissipation of public funds for its popularity must keep on squandering money, even if it has to start the printing presses in order to get money."

Judge Seeks Reconciliation as Willits and Ex-Wife War Over Children

JUDGE ATTEMPTS TO MAKE PEACE IN WILLITS FAMILY

Sabath Takes a Hand in Fight Over Children.

While their two children played in front of the imitation fireplace in his chambers, Superior Judge Joseph B. Sabath yesterday tried to effect a reconciliation between Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits and her divorced husband, John MacGregor Willits, son of Ward W. Willits, president of a railway supply manufacturing company. The overtures followed Willits' attempt to wrest custody of the children from their mother on the charge that she is unfit.

After a reading of the charges and a hearing of the mother's denials in court, Judge Sabath herded the family into his chambers. There he set Jane, 3 years old, and Anne, 2, before the cardboard fireplace to play with the mechanism which gives the appearance of flames in the hearth. Then he launched into a discourse on the joys of matrimony and family life.

Judge Interrupts Himself.

He interrupted himself frequently to tinker with the faulty mechanism of the fireplace, bounce the children in his arms, ply them with candy and offer them various bronze animals of his desk equipment. The Willitses patiently waited during these interludes.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. and Mrs. Willits agreed to dine together during the evening to discuss reconciliation proposals. If these failed, they said, they would return to Judge Sabath's court this morning to renew the fight over custody of the children.

In his petition Willits, who kidnaped the children from their mother's home at Swampscott, Mass., last Dec. 30, asks complete custody. Under the terms of a divorce decree won by Mrs. Willits on charges of cruelty last Nov. 21, she was to have custody of the children nine months a year and Willits was to have the children during the summer months.

Says She Neglects Children.

Willits alleges that his former wife refuses to give the children her personal attention, leaving them in the care of a nurse and, when the nurse is absent, with a 14 year old girl. He charges that Mrs. Willits is absent from her home for long periods.

Last Christmas, his petition says, he went to her home for a few days with the children. He gave her $50, he avers, to spend on the children, of which she spent the greater portion on herself. On Christmas day she spent but a half hour with the children, according to the bill, then left to return late in the evening with a male companion. Both had been drinking, Willits charges.

Through her attorney, Frank B. Teed, Mrs. Willits denied the charges yesterday. She is a daughter of John W. Liggett of Brookline, Mass., a member of the wholesale drug company. Willits is represented by Attorney Stephen Love.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS TRIAL OF BISHOP CANNON

Calls Corrupt Practice Charges Valid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, must stand trial for conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act, the United States Supreme court decreed today.

By virtue of an eight to one decision, the dry leader and churchman-politician lost the long fight he has made to escape a court explanation of charges that he failed to report contributions by E. C. Jamieson of New York to the campaign headed by the bishop in 1928 to defeat Alfred E. Smith for President.

Also affected by the court's opinion is Mis Ada L. Burroughs, the bishop's secretary and treasurer of the Virginia Anti-Smith Democratic committee, of which Bishop Cannon was chairman.

Evidence Found by Senate.

The case is based on evidence brought to light by a senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, which found that some of the $65,000 contributed by Jamieson had found its way into Bishop Cannon's personal accounts.

Not only did the majority opinion of the Supreme court rule against Bishop Cannon, but in doing so it disposed effectively of the attack by the bishop's counsel on the constitutionality of the federal corrupt practices act.

The opinion handed down by Justice Sutherland lauded the statute as one "calculated to discourage the making and use of contributions for purposes of corruption."

The case went to the Supreme court on technical grounds, a District of Columbia lower court having sustained, and the District of Columbia Appeals court having reversed, a demurrer by defense counsel to the indictment of ten counts voted against the bishop and Miss Burroughs.

The defense questioned first the sufficiency of the indictment, and, second, the constitutionality of the corrupt practices act on the ground that presidential electors were state officials and immune from federal legislation.

Some Counts Thrown Out.

Justice Sutherland's opinion upheld the defense counsel's contention as to the insufficiency of the first eight counts charging specific statutory violations, but affirmed sufficiency of the two final counts charging conspiracy.

In a dissenting opinion Justice McReynolds held that the conspiracy counts were based on the specific counts and therefore must fall if the specific counts were ruled insufficient.

Bishop Cannon himself was in court to hear the opinions read, and later visited the office of the clerk of the court to read the opinions in print.

"They'll have a tough job proving conspiracy," he declared with satisfaction, and professed eagerness to be brought to trial. Asked whether this eagerness to have the case aired in court included a willingness to forgo further demurrers and other technical evasions, the bishop refused to commit himself.

Discusses Act's Jurisdiction.

In its discussion of the constitutionality of the corrupt practices act Justice Sutherland's opinion denied that the act invaded any exclusive state power.

"While presidential electors are not officers or agents of the federal government, they exercise federal functions under, and discharge duties in virtue of authority conferred by, the constitution of the United States," the opinion said. "The President is vested with the executive power of the nation. The importance of his election and the vital character of its relationship to and effect upon the welfare of the whole people cannot be too strongly stated."

PRESIDENT REVERSES ORDER THAT MADE DOUGLAS DICTATOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today reversed an executive order issued last week placing all relief and recovery expenditures under the direct authority of Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, following protests from his emergency bureau heads that the original order would upset the basic idea of speeding relief work.

Under an order signed Jan. 3, but not made public until it was revoked today, President Roosevelt carried out an announced intention of having all allocations of relief funds, whether by the PWA, the CWA, the AAA, or other similar organizations, submitted in advance to Mr. Douglas.

Today's order substituetd for those provisions only a requirement that weekly reports be made on allocations, leaving to Mr. Douglas the responsibility of keeping them tabulated and making such recommendations to President Roosevelt as he deems advisable.

REP. FRANK REID "CAN'T AFFORD" TO RETAIN SEAT

Congressman Frank R. Reid [Rep., Aurora], who has represented the 11th district in Washington for twelve years, announced yesterday that he cold no longer "afford" to stay in congress. "Unless I return to the practice of law in the near future I may lose opportunities that now seem to offer themselves," he said.

Back of this decision lie several political reasons, according to observers in Reid's district. They say he fears defeat, having survived the 1932 Democratic landslide by only 1,333 votes, although his opponent was a young man virtually unknown in politics. Already two men have announced their candidacy for his seat.

Another factor in the Reid decision, it was said, is his long voting record as a dry. Heretofore the dry vote and financial support have meant something in the district; now it is regarded as unimportant. A third factor is the report that Reid will try for the Republican nomination for governor in 1936.

The announced candidates for Reid's seat are Dr. W. V. Hoff of Wheaton [Rep.] and Attorney Arthur L. Hellyer [Dem.] of Hinsdale.

THALIA MASSIE HALTS HERE ON WAY TO RENO

Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, central figure in the sensational Hawaiian rape case, passed through the city yesterday en route to Reno, Nev., where she will file divorce proceedings against Lieut. Thomas Massie. Mrs. Massie and her husband, who is now on duty aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma at San Pedro, Cal., have been separated for some time.

"I didn't want this divorce," Mrs. Massie said. "Thomas wanted it and so did my family. However, I have not lost my faith in the institution of marriage."

After getting her divorce Mrs. Massie said she would return to Washington, D. C., to live with her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue. The mother, daughter, and Massie were tried together for the murder of one of the men, who allegedly assaulted Mrs. Massie. They were found guilty and pardoned.

GETS YEAR FOR CARRYING GUN.

John Jackson, 24 years old, 5013 West Roosevelt road, who was arrested as a robbery suspect, yesterday was sentenced to serve a year in the Bridewell and fined $300 on a charge of carrying a revolver, before Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court.

Body of Retired Teacher Found on Hammond Shore

The body of Miss Mabel F. Sage, 60 years old, a retired school teacher, who had been missing from her home at 5722 Hohman street, Hammond, Ind., since Sunday night, was washed ashore on the Hammond beach yesterday by the waves of Lake Michigan. The body was found by CWA workmen employed on a park project near the shore. Miss Sage was said to have recently threatened suicide because of ill health. She retired from teaching last June.

NEW DEAL ATTACKED

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The halls of congress echoed today to the shouted pros and oratorical cons of political debate as the Republicans opened their long awaited attack on the Roosevelt administration and Democratic spokesmen countered with their defense.

Violently vocal, as always, in behalf of the veterans, Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] led the assault with charges that President Roosevelt "had failed in frankness" in cutting veterans' benefits in order to achieve a balanced budget, only to disclose last week that the deficit at the end of the present fiscal year will total more than seven billion dollars.

Resolutions Are Adopted.

From two other Republicans came resolutions seeking to lay the groundwork for an attack upon the farm recovery program of the AAA. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] demanded full information concerning the amount of processing taxes which have been levied and the use made of them. Like Senator Robinson, the Michigan senator must run for reelection next fall. Senator Robert D. Carey [Rep., Wyo.] asked for similarly full statistics concerning the AAA's scheme to curtail corn and hog production. Both resolutions were adopted.

In the face of these attacks the Democrats were not silent. Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, senate majority leader, replied to his Indiana namesake. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic senate whip, defended the Roosevelt program and twisted the British lion's tail with a speech denouncing John Maynard Keynes, British economist, for the latter's recent letter of criticism and advice to the President.

Democrats Turn Snipers.

Throughout the diatribe of Indiana's Senator Robinson Democratic sharpshooters sniped away, often to the Republicans' discomfiture, as when they asked whether his speech meant disapproval of the federal millions sent into Indiana or how frozen depoits were to be released, as he said they must be, without the spending of more federal money.

Altogether the reverberations were strikingly reminiscent of senate repercussions during the Hoover administration. Republican exhortation had a ring strangely like the Democratic cannonading of 1930, '31, and '32. The Democratic counter-attack, however, was more heartfelt than those the old guard used to bring up in support of Mr. Hoover.

Despite the fact that President Roosevelt promised a balanced budget, said Senator Robinson, the Republican, the budget message revealed a treasury about to be seven billions in the red this year.

Asserts "Truth Is Out."

"Now the truth is out," said the senator. "Not only is the budget not balanced, but it is in worse condition than perhaps it ever has been in the history of the nation.

"I challenge the frankness of the President himself. He has not been frank with the American people or else he was not familiar with conditions as they were."

The President told the veterans of the American Legion in October that the cut in their benefits was to get the treasury out of the red and into the black, said the senator.

"Now it develops that that has not been done," said Senator Robinson. "Will any one contend that the President did not know three months ago that we were confronted with a deficit?"

Senator Robinson denounced the double budget and declared:

"We are plunging headlong toward national disaster unless the brakes are applied somewhere."

Veterans, he said, "have been treated worse than dogs."

Challenges Price Gains.

He challenged the President's assertion that better prices were being received for farm commodities; he told of an Indiana farmer having to sell a cow for $3.

"The Indiana farmer is to be congratulated," cut in Senator Carey. "I know a Wyoming farmer who received 50 cents for a cow."

Taking up the challenge, Senator Robinson of Arkansas defended the President and his budget message, commending its frankness as compared with messages of "a previous administration," promising that "just around the corner" the budget would be balanced.

"Instead of trying to represent that no substantial deficit existed," said the Democratic leader, "the President rather exaggerated the deficit."

Lewis Criticizes Keynes.

In his criticisms of Keynes, Senator Lewis charged that the British economist was merely following the European formula of trying to impose on the good nature of the United States in order to help Europe. The drux of the Keynes letter to the President, said the Illinois senator, was the suggestion that this country coöperate with Great Britain in stabilizing exchange. He suggested that Mr. Keynes use his remedies for curing Britain's ills first.

"Does he suggest that this country might be helped if Great Britain paid its debt?" inquired Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.].

"He proves how shrewd and sagacious he is in seeking to serve his country under the guise of helping this country, by carefully avoiding that subject," replied Senator Lewis.

JOBLESS, INHALES GAS; DIES.

SELECT HACKETT KIDNAP JURY FOR DEATH PENALTY

Two Pals of Slain Klutas Go on Trial.

Jurors who have no conscientious scruples against the death penalty for kidnapers were sought by the state yesterday as the trial was started of Frank B. Souder of Benton and Gail Swolley of Peoria, accused of kidnaping James Hackett, Blue Island gambler, for ransom.

Judge Thomas J. Lynch rejected pleas of the defendants for a continuance because "Handsome Jack" Klutas, accused with them, was shot to death Saturday by police. The defense attorneys declared the community was aroused over the hunt for kidnap gangsters and therefore Souder and Swolley would not get a fair trial.

Klutas Killers Commended.

The selection of jurors was begun as a coroner's jury was hearing details of the killing of Klutas. Lieut. Frank Johnson of the state's attorney's office, head of the squad that trailed Klutas, told of the shooting—how Klutas reached for a pistol in a shoulder holster when the detectives surprised him Saturday in Bellwood. The jury commended the police and returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Souder and Swolley were arrested in November by Lieut. Johnson along with Julius Augustus Jones, who confessed his part in the kidnaping of Hackett and has pleaded guilty. It was then that the police learned of Klutas' connection with the gang. He was being sought then for the killing of two officers at Washington, Ia., in 1930.

Glad Her Son Is Dead.

At the inquest Albert Crabb, restaurant owner of Sterling, Ill., and brother-in-law of Klutas, told Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel that Klutas had not been home in ten years. His 70 year old mother is glad he is dead, Crabb said, because she knew he was an outlaw.

Klutas, a former University of Illinois student, and Souder and Swolley were known as the "gentlemen kidnapers" because of their polished manners, but in court yesterday they were not treated as gentlemen. An extra corps of guards was stationed in Judge Lynch's courtroom and the defense attorneys were not permitted to talk to their clients in the anteroom.

Each venireman was asked if he would vote the death penalty in a "proper case" and any who said they had conscientious scruples were excused. Only three jurors had been tentatively selected by evening and the lawyers will continue today their quest for men who will inflict the maximum penalty if Souder and Swolley are found guilty.

Reveals Another Kidnaping.

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—With the killing of "Handsome Jack" Klutas in Chicago Saturday night it was revealed today by county authorities that Clem McGuire, wealthy Dubuque manufacturer of slot machines and punchboards, and a brother-in-law of United States Senator Louis Murphy of that city, was held prisoner nearly two days in Davenport and paid a ransom of $1,500 when he was kidnaped Sept. 12, 1932. McGuire has identified the house here, the location of which is being kept a secret, and at least one Davenport man is reported to be involved. His name is also being kept a secret until his arrest.

McGuire told the police that the kidnaping occurred in the yard of Senator Murphy's home. Three armed men appeared as he drove into the yard, according to McGuire, and forced him into his own machine. He was bound with rope and his eyes and mouth covered with adhesive tape.

DILLINGER GANGSTER WITHDRAWS PLEA OF GUILTY TO ROBBERY

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Hilton Crouch, paroled convict and a confessed member of the Dillinger band of outlaws, backed down today on his promise to plead guilty to bank robbery and accept a "bargain" term of twenty years' imprisonment.

Handcuffed and flanked by a heavy guard of city police and detectives, some of whom carried sawed-off shotguns and machine guns, Crouch announced through his attorney, Miss Bess Robbins, that he would stand on his former plea of not guilty.

He faces a life term in prison if convicted of participating in the $25,000 robbery of the State Bank of Massachusetts avenue here Sept. 3.

Warning that "we are not going to deal with these gangsters with gloved hands," Judge Frank P. Baker of County Criminal court automatically disqualified himself to sit in the case. Miss Robbins immediately filed a petition for change of venue.

CWA HIRES 500 MEN IN DRIVE TO REDUCE SMOKE

Engineers to Inspect Equipment.

A city-wide smoke abatement program which will give employment to 500 CWA workers has been developed by the city department of smoke inspection and abatement and civil works administration officials, it was announced yesterday.

Men will be assigned to offices in each ward of the city. Of the 500 workers who will start work Thursday four hundred and fifty will be mechanical engineers with technical knowledge of combustion and of fuel burning equipment. Substantial reduction of air pollution caused by smoke in the city is hoped for as a result.

"The program adopted for this project is essentially the same as that employed by the Mellon Institute for Industrial Research in promoting smoke abatement in Pittsburgh," said Frank D. Chase, executive director of the CWA in Illinois. "The Pittsburgh program was so successful that today there is less smoke pollution in that city than in Chicago.

Will Inspect Equipment.

"The project combines both inspection and education so that the problems of smoke abatement will be accurately determined and the operators of fuel burning equipment will be acquainted with the parts they must take in reducing smoke pollution."

A detailed investigation will be made of the fuel burning equipment in all buildings equipped with power boilers, in all residential buildings containing six or more apartments, and in all other buildings of equal size so that defective or inadequate equipment can be brought to the attention of the owners of the buildings.

A city-wide observation of smoking chimneys will be made in order to disclose violators of the smoke ordinance and to determine the amount of smoke made by the different classes of buildings or stacks. Railroads, power plants, and apartment and residential structures will be observed. Immediately after smoke is observed from a chimney an engineer will visit the offending plant to determine the cause of the violation and to instruct the plant operator.

Advice to Be Given.

The principal phase of the program, Mr. Chase said, will be the educational campaign in which the inspectors advise the fuel burners of their findings in regard to their equipment. The work of the inspectors will be supplemented by special squads of smoke abatement demonstrators who will continue the educational work of the inspectors where chronic smoking is disclosed.

The board of education has offered the use of a room in a school in each ward as a daily meeting place for the engineers.

CONFER TODAY ON PLAN TO PROVIDE SCHOOL REVENUE

M'Cahey, Teachers Meet; Rep. Sabath Helps.

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, will hold a conference today with leaders of teachers' organizations on the proposed legislative program for obtaining new revenue for the Chicago schools. The teachers' group will be headed by Aaron Kline, president of the Principals' club.

The major point in the board's program, which was suggested by Mayor Kelly, would be a grant of authority from the legislature at the third special session to pledge school property, unused for educational purposes, as additional collateral to the federal government for a sale of bonds. If the board could sell its $40,000,000 worth of bonds all back pay rolls could be met and a long stride would be taken toward financing pay days for this year.

Sabath Helps in Capital.

Meantime, in Washington yesterday, Representative Adolph J. Sabath, of Chicago, introduced a bill in the lower house of congress to permit the board of education to borrow $40,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which would enable the funding of the bond issue. Sabath said the Chicago school board could pledge property worth $30,156,000, none of which was used for school purposes.

Seek Liquor Tax Diversion.

Other proposals include the diversion of state liquor taxes to school districts and a 20 cent increase in the educational fund tax rate and a proportionate decrease in the building fund tax rate of the Chicago schools.

"The teachers are anxious to cooperate in this program," said Mr. Kline. "We are now attempting to crystallize the sentiment in favor of these aids to our schools."

Other teacher representatives who will attend the meeting include: Charles B. Stillman, chairman of the joint conference of teacher organizations; Mary Herrick, president of the Federation of Women High School teachers; Helen Orrell, president of the elementary teachers' union; Frederick T. Wilhelms, president of the High School Teachers' association; John Fewkes, chairman of the voluntary emergency committee, and William Cooney.

Cites New Revenue Needs.

The need for school revenue sources other than from the "tax conscious" real estate owners was stressed by Andrew O. Jackson, school trustee, in a speech last night before the civic business and professional women's club at the Morrison hotel.

"The state distributive fund of New York is more than $100,000,000," asserted Trustee Jackson, "while Illinois' school fund amounts to $10,500,000. Of this amount Chicago gets a little more than $3,000,000. In this present emergency, at least, more cash should be allotted to the state school fund. Not only the Chicago school system but downstate will benefit."

Chicago's half million school children went back to their classrooms yesterday following the Christmas vacation. Most of the schools of the county also opened.

Dogs Balk Burglary at Reynolds' Deep Lake Home

Watch dogs early yesterday balked the attempt of three men to rob the home of Maurice V. Reynolds, of 936 Lake Shore drive on his Lake county estate at Deep Lake. The men had shattered a window in the home when dogs aroused the watchman, Richard Nelke. The men escaped by rowing across Deep Lake.

2,400 CWA WORKERS TODAY START COUNT OF CITY POPULATION

Twenty-four hundred census enumerators will begin their door to door canvass of Chicago's population today. The census is being conducted as a civil works project under the direction of Charles S. Newcomb and the Chicago census commission. The enumerators, assigned to the project through the CWA, were qualified yesterday after individual examinations.

Each enumerator will carry an identification card signed by the director of the census which will be his or her authorization to interview and secure the necessary information from a member of each family. On the basis of tests made, each interview will require about ten minutes and an enumerator will able to interview between 30 and 35 families during a six hour working day.

Twenty-six questions, including residence address, number in building or family, how long lived there, number of rooms occupied by each family, type of dwelling, home owned or rented, whether rent includes heat; sex, age, marital condition, color or race, school grade, ability to read, write, and speak English or any other language, usual and present occupation, and if employed, how long, will be asked.

CWA WORKERS BEGIN FIGHT ON BARBERRY BUSH

Several hundred civil works administration employés were placed at work yesterday in Cook and adjoining counties uprooting and destroying Japanese barberry bushes. The shrubs harbor wheat rust in the winter and the rust has sometimes spread to wheat, causing much damage to crops. Heretofore state employés have handled the barberry situation.

Other civil works projects approved yesterday included 136 civil works service educational projects which will give employment to 425 teachers. It was announced that enough education projects would be approved by Jan. 15 to give employment to between 800 and 1,000 teachers. Approximately 7,000 have registered for the work. The first adult education classes were opened yesterday.

The painting and decorating of school buildings by 1,600 CWA workers was resumed yesterday. The men were taken off the jobs Friday pending an investigation by CWA officials of the purchase of materials by the school board. The men returned to work when John C. Christensen, school architect, agreed that all materials should be secured according to standards and prices approved by the CWA.

COUNTY NURSES' HOME WORK TO RESUME TODAY

Work will be resumed today after a delay of two years on the construction of the $2,040,500 Cook county home for nurses at Lincoln street and Winchester avenue. Funds obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation will supply work for 500 men with an average monthly pay roll of $60,000.

Construction of the home was halted two years ago when the county was unable to sell more than $270,000 worth of bonds for the project. With this money a portion of the foundation was completed. The county board applied for loans from the RFC to complete the 17 story structure, which has been attacked as "a lobster palace" because of the lavish appointments contemplated in its plans.

Hoopeston Woman Dies Near Auto in a Garage

Hoopeston, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Miss Frances Katz was found dead today in the family garage, lying beside the automobile. Its motor was still runninw when she was discovered.

DR. WYNEKOOP TO MAKE PLEA OF "NOT GUILTY"

Drop Insanity Defense in Trial Thursday.

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who is scheduled to start to trial Thursday morning before Judge Joseph B. David in the Criminal Court on a charge of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop, will not make a defense of insanity. This announcement was made yesterday by Defense Attorneys W. W. Smith and Frank Tyrrell after a conference with Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Dougherty.

The retention last week of Dr. James Whitney Hall, alienist, by the defense attorneys, led to reports that an insanity defense was planned.

Hall Merely Adviser.

The attorneys said that, however, Dr. Hall was employed only to advise with them during the trial as to possible medical questions which may arise over whether death was caused by a bullet or by chloroform. Dr. Wynekoop, in a statement to the police, confessed she shot her daughter-in-law after death was caused by an overdose of chloroform.

"We will make a straight plea of not guilty," said Attorney Smith after spending the morning going over the various exhibits.

Ready for Trial Thursday.

"We are ready for trial on Thursday providing Dr. Wynekoop is in physical condition to be taken into court at that time," continued Attorney Smith.

Prosecutor Dougherty said that he will send Dr. Harry Hoffman of the Criminal court behavior clinic to make a physical examination, but not a mental test.

The defense attorneys said after examining the prosecution exhibits that nothing new was disclosed to them.

DIES AFTER BUMPING KNEE.

Edward Miller, 49 years old, 110 North Evergreen avenue, Arlington Heights, died yesterday in the county hospital as the result of an infection contracted Jan. 5 after striking his knee against the side of his truck.

LIQUOR CONTROL PLAN BACKED BY 40 LEGISLATORS

City Area Representatives Meet with Kelly.

Forty state legislators from districts in or near Chicago met with Mayor Kelly yesterday and in the main indicated their agreement with the latest liquor control measures evolved from conferences between the mayor and Gov. Horner. Under the Kelly-Horner agreement reached last Friday in Springfield, Chicago would be given a certain measure of home rule.

Following the conference with the mayor it was said that all those present were expected to vote for the new amendment which provides for a double barreled commission to pass on license of liquor sellers. Under this amendment one commission would have charge of licenses downstate, while a second one would operate only in Cook county.

One Note of Dissension.

The only note of dissension which appeared during the legislators' discussion with the mayor came from Rep. Emmett McGrath, a Democrat living in Brookfield. He insisted that the commission controlling the district of Chicago does not now have specific jurisdiction over the entirety of Cook county and declared that he would attempt to have a senator amend the bill so that there will be no uncertainty concerning that point.

Another of the day's developments regarding liquor problems was Police Commissioner Allman's order of the immediate arrest of tavern owners who haven't got receipts showing that they have obtained their 1934 liquor licenses. Of the 8,329 establishments licensed to sell beer, 1934 liquor licenses had been obtained by only 6,529 when the arrest order was given.

Seeks Ban on Bars.

Two important amendments to the liquor ordinance will be considered by the city council committee on license today. One designed to abolish bars was introduced by Ald. O. E. Northrup [Rep., 19th]. The other contains Mayor Kelly's recommendation that women be denied admission to bar rooms.

At a meeting of the state board of the Retail Liquor Protective Association of Illinois at the Morrison hotel last night, a number of representatives of communities in Cook county went on record as favoring home rule in regard to regulation of liquor traffic.

The community spokesmen, who were accompanied by delegations of citizens, asserted that they stood behind the mayor 100 per cent. City Collector Edward J. Kaindl, representing the mayor, told the group that Mayor Kelly's only interest in his fight for home rule was in seeing that the people in this area were allowed to govern themselves.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO MURDER.

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Oren Roach, alias McCloskey, 24-year-old Wells youth and paroled convict, pleaded not guilty when arraigned on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Emer Peterson at the latter's home in Wells, New Year's night. His trial is scheduled for next week.

HORNER ILLNESS ADDS TO DOUBT ON LIQUOR CONTROL LEGISLATION

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A severe cold which confined Gov. Henry Horner to the executive mansion today left the outlook upon the reconvening of the general assembly tomorrow somewhat in doubt, particularly in regard to pending liquor control legislation. Early arrivals tonight suggested that the tangle could be materially simplified by throwing everything out of the window and attempting a new start.

The assembly might discard the "crazy quilt bill" except for the enacting clause and might substitute for that "patch work" job of both houses, the best measure that the legislation reference bureau can make out of it.

Gov. Horner's intense personal interest precludes a final decision before he recovers from his illness. There is still a chance, some members say, for final legislation next week.

LEGISLATOR SAYS HE'LL TEST CITY LIQUOR CONTROL

Plans a Court Fight as Arrest Sequel.

State Representative Arthur T. Broche [Rep., 1st], who was arrested early Sunday when he refused to leave a saloon after 2 a. m., the new legal closing hour, announced yesterday that he will sponsor a court test of the city liquor ordinance. Broche attacked the ordinance as invalid after Municipal Judge J. William Brooks in the South State Street court dismissed a charge of disorderly conduct against him.

The legislator said he would urge the owner of the Chinatown tavern at 2241 Wentworth avenue, in which he was arrested, to remain open in defiance of the ordinance. Judge Brooks declared himself willing to hear the test case and suggested that Broche's attorney, Harold T. Halfpenny, aid in drawing a new complaint. The judge was assured this would be done.

Plans Supreme Court Test.

"My district, including the loop and surrounding territory, has more money tied up in bars and fixtures than any other district in the county," Broche said. "No one seems to know the status of the present law. I propose to carry the test to the state Supreme court for a final expression.

"In my opinion the various municipalities have no regulatory powers until the state acts on the situation. The repeal amendment invalidated all existing regulations. To date the state has not passed relating laws."

Policeman Testifies in Case.

On the disorderly conduct charge, Policeman William Selhorn testified he entered the saloon at 2:30 a. m. and ordered the bartender to close and the patrons to leave. Broche, the policeman said, refused to leave and threatened reprisal. Selhorn said Broche had been "drinking too much."

Attorney Halfpenny told Judge Brooks that Broche, who was an army captain during the war, received wounds which force him to walk in a weaving fashion which might be misinterpreted. The judge ruled that Broche was entitled to have a few drinks if he wished.

ASSAILS PLAN FOR LEASE ON MEDINAH CLUB

Attorney for Mortgage Holders Fights.

The proposal of the membership to lease the Medinah-Michigan Avenue club from the receiver, Saul B. Optner, was bitterly denounced at a hearing before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday by Attorney Irving Herriott, counsel for the second mortgage holders, who charged and produced witnesses to show that the club discriminates against Jews and Catholics.

"This is the worst steal ever attempted in this city," said Mr. Herriott. "We are asked to give the club back to that same crowd which ran it in the ground. We would have conditions whereby a certain incident that happened a short time ago, when a member walked out with his suitcase full of silverware, might be repeated. More free meals and free rooms for members and their friends."

$135,000 Minimum Rent.

The lease plan, presented on behalf of the club by Attorney Oscar Carlstrom, calls for the payment of a minimum rental of $135,000 a year to the receiver. The receiver would get all income up to $200,000 and 80 per cent of all over $200,000. To raise this money the members propose to obtain 1,000 new members, who would pay dues of $10 a month, within sixty days. The rental for the second month would be withheld from the receiver for working capital and the receiver would be required to lend the club $10,000 to begin operations.

The club would be operated by a board of governors and there would be a committee of three, including the receiver, the president of the club and a representative of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, representing the holders of first mortgage bonds, which committee would settle all disputes.

Charges Discrimination.

"The Continental bank and the president of the club would vote as a unit, ignoring the receiver, and this would take the estate out of the jurisdiction of the court, where it belongs," said Mr. Herriott.

The attorney charged that the first mortgage holder and the club members were "trying to beat the second mortgage holder [Seneca Securities company] out of their money."

"They are just carrying out the attitude of the old club, which wanted to freeze out and buy back at 35 cents on the dollar," he said. A witness, Charles S. Francis, who is a member of the club, was then called and asked whether it was not proposed at a meeting in June, 1931, to place the property in receivership and then buy it back. He said such a proposal was made.

Q.—And they wanted to forget the second mortgage holder and the general creditors? A.—Yes.

Q.—How was this proposal received by the members? A.—Some were for it and others were against it.

Presents Audit Report.

Mr. Herriott presented the report on an audit of the club's financial affairs and the proposed lease, which he said was made at the request of the receiver, by the firm of B. L. Rossett & Co. This report advised against the lease, stating that the proposed lessee was an organization without any apparent working capital, no investment capital and no financial responsibility. It also stated that under the receivership, from July 1, 1931, to Oct. 31, 1933, the club made a net profit of $553,770, or $19,063 a month, whereas the receiver would not be assured of more than $11,000 a month from the lessee.

Mr. Herriott read correspondence purporting to show that certain organizations had canceled reservations for parties at the club because of its attitude toward Jews and Catholics. He then called Paul Stanger, 3642 Pine Grove avenue, who testified that he was insulted in the club by a member whom he named as Harbeson, because he was a Jew.

Charles E. Bentley of the St. Clair hotel, another witness, testified that he had put on a campaign for new members, getting 800 and losing all but 250 of them in 18 months. This drive cost the club $14,000, he said.

Admits Restrictions.

"Were there any restrictions on Jews or Catholics?" Herriott asked.

"Yes; I was told not to solicit them," said the witness.

Attorney Carlstrom said the proposed lease was approved by the first mortgage holder, but he confined himself to a few remarks.

Judge Woodward took the matter under advisement.

LOCAL OPTION LOSES, 68 TO 36, IN HOT IOWA HOUSE FIGHT

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Local option was defeated late today, 68 to 36, in the house of representatives after a long and heated debate.

More than sixteen representatives entered into the discussion on the Dean amendment, which provided that the state liquor commission shall notify each community of its intention to establish a liquor store there. The city council then would decide whether or not it approves, and publish its decision in a local paper. If citizens disapprove of the council action they will have 30 days in which to attach 35 per cent of the registered voters' names to a petition calling for an election on the subject.

Pressure from the administration was injected into the debate in vain when Representative Earl M. Dean read a letter from a member of Gov. Herring's liquor control plan commission saying the commission was 100 per cent back of local option. This statement indicates that local option will find strong friends in the senate, where administration support is more concentrated.

COURT MARTIAL ORDERED FOR FLYING PIONEER

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Maj. William C. Ocker, blind flying expert who developed instruments enabling pilots to guide their planes through fog, was ordered court martialed today for use of "improper language" to other Kelly field officers after he had been "grounded" on account of imperfect vision.

The charges, signed by Lieut. Col. Henry B. Clagett, commander, and Maj. C. C. Johnston, post surgeon, at Kelly field, were filed under the 96th article of war and alleged that on Sept. 23, Maj. Ocker was ordered to appear before Maj. Johnston for physical examination.

The specification under the accusation quoted Maj. Ocker as saying:

"If other pilots on this field, namely such as Col. Clagett, were given more than a cursory examination they, too, would be off the flying status."

Another statement charged to him was:

"There was collusion between the commanding officer of this station and you [Maj. Johnston] relative to my examination."

After a second examination Maj. Ocker was placed back on the flying status.

To save pilots from going into spins when fog or atmospheric conditions obscured vision, Maj. Ocker devised instruments which provided a measure of safety.

He also is co-author of a book on blind flying and holds patents on blind flying instruments and training devices in America and England.

Maj. Ocker, whose home is in San Francisco, is the oldest pilot in point of continuous service in the army. He declined to comment on the charges. Col. Clagett and Maj. Johnston also refused to discuss the case.

REPORT LIQUOR BILL WITH $2 TAX TO THE SENATE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The proposed liquor tax bill raising the distilled spirits tax from $1.10 to $3 a gallon was recommended for passage today by the senate finance committee in practically the same form that it passed the house of representatives on Friday.

Up for senate action Wednesday, the liquor tax probably will be the first law enacted by the present session. The senate committee today voted down every amendment, and as Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman, reported the bill it bore only minor changes in wording.

The committee rejected a federal tax of $2.60 a gallon on liquors.

DRAFTS MODEL STATE LIQUOR CONTROL BILL WITH PUBLIC STORES

New York, Jan. 8.—(Special.)—The National Municipal league, through a committee of which former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is chairman, announced today that it has completed the draft of a model bill to provide for any state's alcohol control authority.

The bill was drafted under the direction of Dr. Luther Gulick of Columbia university. States would set up a state monopoly of alcoholic liquors, except in beer and wines. A board of three trustees, appointed by the governor for overlapping nine year terms, would direct active management of the affairs through a salaried general manager.

The control authority would wholesale liquor, with retail sales made through state liquor stores and through grocers and drug stores designated as agents of the state. Sale of liquor by the glass would be through restaurants, hotels, and clubs, selected also as agencies of the state.

FOES OF RULE IN CANADA DEMAND U. S. TRADE DEAL

Outlet Is Sought for Natural Products.

Here is the second of a series of despatches on United States-Canadian trade possibilities. Mr. Kinsley is making a trip through Canada as part of The Tribune's campaign to give its readers information which may help America regain old export markets or develop new ones for its agricultural and industrial products.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 8.—"Barkis is willin'," is the professed attitude of the present Canadian government towards negotiating a new trade agreement with the United States. The present prime minister, R. B. Bennett, may, however, eventually sit in the house of lords in London as a reward for his leadership in the imperial economic conference at Ottawa in 1932, the main objective of which was to divert trade from the United States.

The results of that conference and the question whether the Canadian concessions, which increased British preferences on coal, iron, steel, chemicals, and textiles, presents a great obstacle to a Canadian-American agreement now are in dispute here.

Scans Seas for Trade.

The government sits in its cold and lonely towers at Ottawa, backed by the Laurentian rock wilderness [one can shoot a deer, it is said, within sight of the houses of parliament], looking to the empire seas for the new trade that must be found for the Canadian people, while from east and west comes the demand to open new doors to the south, the dominion's natural market.

One of the big debates of the forthcoming session of parliament, which is regarded as a preelection session by the Liberals, will be on a resolution which the prime minister refused to permit to pass at the last session. It has been again offered by William Duff, member from Nova Scotia. It reads as follows:

"That, in the opinion of the house it is expedient that the government of Canada reopen negotiations with the government of the United States with a view to bringing about a satisfactory reciprocity trade arrangement between Canada and the United States whereby the natural products of Canada—that is, the products of the sea, farms, mines, and forests, including fish, lumber, wheat, and cattle—should have free entry into the United States in exchange for the admission of certain goods from the United States which, in the interests of both countries, may be admitted into Canada free from customs tariff."

Peace Offer to U. S.

This resolution according to Mr. Duff, was in the nature of an olive branch to the American republic. The Conservatives, however, at once expressed disinclination at going down to Washington with hat in hand. They maintained that the United States had never respected Canada so much as after her last act in raising high tariff walls and notifying the world that she would go the way of the British empire.

That appears to be the attitude of the Ottawa government today. This is coupled with the belief that President Roosevelt will not jeopardize his hold on any section of the voters by granting entry to Canadian goods until the NRA program is carried out.

All these high empire and national problems do not interest Mr. Duff and his people of the maritime provinces, the farmers of Quebec or the live stock men of the prairie provinces.

"There is only one salvation for Canadian fisheries," Mr. Duff said, "and that is for the government to make a trade arrangement with the United States so our fish can go into that country. The fisheries are in a deplorable condition. We are unable to sell fish and lumber in our natural market and at the same time must pay from 25 to 50 per cent in addition on our manufactured goods."

Mr. Bennett, in the course of that debate, spoke of the continuous increases in the American tariffs. He had been opposed, he said, to the 1911 reciprocity agreement.

"The people of Canada rejected that proposal," he declared, "and I believe if they were asked again they would conclude that any arrangement which left us in a position whereby our trade relations could be changed overnight for any reason that might occur to the minds of the American congress would not be a sound and sane venture for a country such as ours. All we can do is to indicate clearly our willingness to negotiate on terms fair and reasonable and not of such character as would involve injury to this country if speedily terminated."

W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition, in reply to Bennett indicated some of the problems that now confront the government, and also what would be the course under a Liberal leadership.

"The sooner we seek to bring about such a trade agreement with the United States the better," he said. "An opportunity is presented today such as has not been presented since 1911. The government of Canada should not hesitate to open negotiations through the minister at Washington."

Mr. King recalled that Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, in urging support of the United Kingdom-Canada agreement, said that unless this went through Canada would seek a reciprocity agreement with the United States.

Seeks Modification of Treaty.

"I think he got this idea here—from the prime minister," said Mackenzie King. "It was the Conservative party view that the choice was between trading with Great Britain and trading with the United States.

"This is the first obstacle. We have three tariffs, a general, an indeterminate, and a British preference. If the prime minister really wishes to trade with the United States, the first step he will have to take will be to have the British treaty modified so as to leave him absolutely free to make a reciprocal agreement. The British ministers at that conference scored over Canada in that what they were giving could be given to any other country in reciprocal agreement, but Canada was bound to the treaty for five years to a certain margin of preferences."

A press dispatch quoting the prince of Wales as stating at the Argentine club in London that the arrangements made at Ottawa did not preclude trade negotiations with other countries, led the opposition leader to state:

"If the Ottawa agreements do not stand in the way of agreements respecting cattle, why should they be permitted to stand in the way of a reciprocal agreement between Canada and the United States? We should not permit any treaty or agreement that has been entered into between the United Kingdom and Canada to stand in the way of reciprocal arrangements if it does not stand in the way of similar arrangements between Great Britain and other countries."

French Quotas on Imports from U. S. Are Quadrupled

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 8.—The Franco-American trade controversy caused by the new French quota policy developed toward a solution today. The French foreign ministry informed the American embassy that quota allotments for American products as announced in the French official journal on Dec. 31 covering the first quarter of this year will be quadrupled.

Without bartering the United States thus appears to be assured of obtaining a full share of the new import quotas which have been cut to 25 per cent leaving the remaining 75 per cent for the purpose of dickering with other countries.

U. S.-France Accord Bared.

It was revealed today that the French and American governments several months ago reached an accord whereby the officially announced quotas should be in reality quadrupled in the case of America, and the American embassy in Paris today issued the following statements:

"The American embassy has been advised by the French foreign ministry that in conformity with the accord reached between the French and American governments and with reference to provisions of the quota arrangements of May 31, 1933, the part reserved for American products in quotas of foreign products imported into France is fixed for the first quarter of the year at 100 per cent of the proportion which this American merchandise represented in relation to the total foreign importation during the course of pertinent years.

Exceptions Made.

"In consequence the quota figures published in the official journal for the current first quarter are increased by 300 per cent as concerns the United States."

Exceptions were made for apples and pears, tools of the mechanical industry other than agriculture, and for lamps and radio apparatus, for which quota figures already published represent the agreed 100 per cent.

But while the published French quotas on American imports will thus be quadrupled they still fail to give entire satisfaction to American importers here and the situation remains far from clear. Many importers here point out that the French quota allotments are based on imports in 1932, during which year imports were considerably less than last year.

Complaints Registered.

Consequently, they argue, these quotas are inadequate for the present year when business indications are better than last year.

Complaints of this nature were registered at the American Chamber of Commerce here yesterday by representatives of the phonograph, electric motor, and automobile industries. The chamber is not acting upon the protests for the moment, however, desiring to await clarification of the situation.

BRITAIN WILL BUY MORE PORK, SO U. S. TAKES MORE LIQUOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8. — [Special.]—The United States and British governments finally reached agreement today over the question of increased British liquor quotas as against a larger allotment for American pork exports. After a conference between Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, and Acting Secretary of State Phillips, it was announced that the British liquor quota would be doubled in return for the offer of an increase from 6.3 to 7.6 per cent in the import quota for American pork products.

The British offer was made last week, but seemed to be regarded at first in White House and agriculture department circles as insufficient. Secretary Wallace, for instance, said today he considered the increase it contained as "hardly worth mentioning." He was supported in this by Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to the secretary, who said the proposed enlargement would have little or no effect on pork prices in this country and certainly not more than a fourth of a cent per 100 pounds in Chicago.

HOLD 2 TO JURY IN ROBBERY.

Ussery Houston, 27 years old, 1303 South Morgan street, and Frank Jackson, 28 years old, 5013 West Roosevelt road, yesterday before Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 each on a charge of robbing a laundry Oct. 11.

150 YOUNG GIRLS INVOLVED IN VICE INQUIRY AT NILES

Grand Jury Investigation Ordered.

Niles, Mich., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A special grand jury investigation of vice conditions in Niles and surrounding towns, involving nearly 150 young girls between the ages of 13 and 16 years, was ordered tonight by Prosecuting Attorney Harvey Holbrook.

The grand jury inquiry will convene here tomorrow morning before Justice of Peace Thomas N. Farrell and the evidence, including that of several men involved by the sworn statements of the young girls, may take two or three days, according to an announcement from Holbrook's office in Benton Harbor.

Judge Starts Investigation.

Deputy sheriffs, led by Undersheriff Ray Granzow, were sent out through the county tonight to round up a dozen or more of the young girls implicated in the vice exposé. The key witnesses are expected to be five girls, the oldest only 16, who are held in the juvenile detention home in St. Joseph.

Probate Judge Malcolm Hatfield, himself a former Niles school teacher, launched the investigation several days ago when he began an attack upon dance halls, beer taverns and road houses and obtained statements involving nearly 150 girls of Niles, Buchanan, Dowagiac, and Cassopolis in the wild parties with older and often times married men. These statements, bizarre and sordid accounts of girls as young as 13 accompanying men as old as 52 on the parties, will serve as the basis for the secret, one-man grand jury probe.

The sheriff's office in St. Joseph, acting on orders from Prosecutor Holbrook, is prepared to serve warrants on 16 men, one a former lightweight boxing champion of Michigan, charging them with contributing to the delinquency of the girls.

State Authorities Notified.

While the prosecutor was arranging for the grand jury investigation here tomorrow a special deputy attorney general was hurrying back to Lansing with signed affidavits of several young girls. The deputy, George Foulkes Jr., son of the Fourth district Michigan congressman, said he was under instructions to turn the finding of his secret week-end investigation over to Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien.

Churches, women's clubs and dry organizations today threw strong support to the investigation started by Judge Hatfield.

HELD TO JURY ON 2 THEFT COUNTS.

Carl Wetzel, 35 years old, 617 West Madison street, yesterday was held to the grand jury in $6,000 bonds by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court on two charges of burglarizing offices in loop buildings.

FRANCE SIGNS NEW COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Representatives of France and soviet Russia today signed a new commercial treaty after several months of negotiations. Last year the Russians stopped buying German steel and gave an order for 18,000 tons to the French steel works in Lorraine.

Other French exports to Russia in 1933 increased from 30,000,000 francs [currently about $1,800,000] to 50,000,000 francs [about $3,000,000]. On the other hand, the French last year purchased 250,000,000 francs [about $15,000,000] worth of materials from Russia.

The new commercial agreement is aimed to equalize this disadvantage, it was announced.

RUSSIAN ENVOY IN WASHINGTON AFTER 17 YEARS

Credentials Presented by Troyanovsky.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Russia tonight has a fully accredited ambassador installed in the Washington diplomatic corps for the first time in 17 years.

After a day of diplomatic formalities, Alexander Antonovich Troyanovsky called late today on President Roosevelt and presented the letters from the soviet government accrediting him as its "ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary."

President Roosevelt, after receiving the credentials, read a carefully prepared statement in which he greeted Troyanovsky as an outstanding citizen of Russia and a conspicuous friend of America throughout the years when no diplomatic relationships existed between the two countries.

Peace Angle Stressed.

Both President Roosevelt and Troyanovsky stressed again the belief that world peace will be strengthened by Russian recognition, a declaration taken here to be aimed, like similar ones on previous occasions, at Japan.

Troyanovsky's call at the White House climaxed a day of formalities. Early in the morning he was received by Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, William C. Bullitt, the American ambassador to Russia, who returned to the country with Troyanovsky, and other state department officials.

Establishment of Russian consulates in Chicago, New York, and some Pacific coast city, will be one of the new ambassador's first tasks. He is expected to open trade conferences early next week.

Ambassador Bullitt, who discussed today with President Roosevelt the acquisition of an American embassy in Moscow and consulates throughout the soviets, said he expected to return to his post about Feb. 1.

Envoy Makes Statement.

When presenting his credentials to President Roosevelt, Troyanovsky said:

"There is among the people of my country a most natural feeling of sympathy, respect and admiration for your great country which they associate with high technical and scientific progress and which they regard as an immense creative force. The cooperation, therefore, of the 125 million people of your country with the 170 million of our own vast country, must, of necessity, be a boon to the general progress of humanity.

"I therefore trust, Mr. President, that the new era of normal and friendly relations between our peoples may contribute fundamentally to the development of the widest cooperation in the most varied fields of human endeavor, but first and foremost, to the cause of the peace of the world. On behalf of the government of the Union Soviet Socialist Republics, let me assure you that it is determined to continue most consistently and unswervingly that policy of peace of which it has given ample proof on every occasion since its establishment."

Roosevelt Makes Response.

Responding to the remarks of the newly appointed ambassador, the President said:

"The foundation has now been laid for the development of genuinely friendly relations and close cooperation between the governments of the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. It will be your privilege and mine to work together in the task of building upon that foundation a permanent structure of friendship and collaboration.

"A deep love of peace is the common heritage of the people of both our countries and I fully agree with you that the cooperation of our great nations will inevitably be of the highest importance in the preservation of world peace. The successful accomplishment of this mutual task will be of immediate and lasting benefit, not only to the peoples of our countries but to all peace loving peoples everywhere.

Voices Personal Welcome.

"I welcome you personally, Mr. Ambassador, with especial satisfaction. On more than one occasion during recent years you have shown your friendliness for the American people. This has not been unnoted or unappreciated by the government of the United States, and I consider it most auspicious that the government of the Union Soviet Socialist Republics should have selected as its first ambassador to this country not only one of its most distinguished citizens, but also one whose friendly feelings for this country are well known."

Jury Is Selected to Hear $1,900,000 Insurance Case

The method by which a tract of land abandoned by a large manufacturing company was alleged to have been plastered with mortgages totaling $1,900,000 and dumped into the portfolio of securities of the Security Life Insurance company and it affiliates, was outlined to a jury yesterday in the courtroom of Judge Benjamin P. Epstein. Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright made the charges in his opening statement, which he will complete this morning. The jury in the case was completed late yesterday afternoon.

Attorney John H. S. Lee, partner in the law firm headed by former Senator Charles S. Deneen, and Machir Dorsey, once a millionaire promoter of insurance companies, are the principal defendants on charges of conspiracy to loot the insurance company and its affiliates. Five other defendants are named in the indictment.

$45,500 Legal Fee.

During the opening statement of the prosecutor the name of Attorney John J. Healy, also a law partner in the Deneen firm and a former state's attorney, was mentioned as appearing in the suit whereby Lee and his associates obtained title to the property, which was later mortgaged several times beyond its original sale price. The prosecutor said Attorney Healy collected a fee of $45,500 in the suit.

Prosecutor Wright told the jurors the conspirators were divided into two groups, one including Lee and other owners of the so-called Manufacturers' Terminal property, a 27 acre tract with lake frontage near Waukegan, and the second group headed by Dorsey and his associates in the insurance companies and their affiliates.

Attorney Lee, it was alleged, obtained a 30 per cent interest in the land used in the alleged fraud by representing some litigants who sued for title to the property after its original owner had died.

Plant Is Abandoned.

The property was originally owned by the Corn Products company, and when it abandoned the plant in 1916 it was turned over to Henry V. Finkelstein, a junk dealer, in return for a note for $140,000 secured by the mortgage, the prosecutor said. Finkelstein incorporated as the Manufacturers' Terminal company with Attorney William A. Rogan. Later Leslie Needham obtained an interest in the property, which Finkelstein dismantled bit by bit as junk.

The property would not pay expenses or meet tax payments, the prosecutor told the jurors. In 1918 a fire further cut the property's value.

"Along about 1922 Finklestein met a professional promoter named James H. Benjamin," said Prosecutor Wright. "He said he would give Benjamin title to the property if he could raise enough money to satisfy the claims against it. Benjamin gave I. J. Rosenberg, a banker, a second mortgage for $87,500 in return for $45,000 in cash. In 1923 three acres of the original 30 acres was sold to reduce the mortgage from $140,000 to $115,000. The property was still operating at a loss.

Lee Enters Case.

"Finklestein died about 1924. Benjamin started suit for possession of the property. Needing money to pay the legal expenses he went to Harry W. Huttig, another of these defendants. Huttig agreed to go in on the deal if Benjamin would employ the defendant, John H. S. Lee, as his attorney. They went to see Lee and told him the entire history of the property.

"Lee agreed to go into the case after talking over the proposition for about 10 days with Benjamin and Huttig. It was agreed that Lee was to get 30 per cent, Huttig 25 per cent and Benjamin was to retain 45 per cent for himself. Lee told his associates that Mrs. Finklestein would have to be taken care of because after all she was the widow of the original owner and had a substantial property right in the land."

Mrs. Finklestein was sent for and told that she would get $100,000 for her share if she won the suit and that if Lee and his associates won she would be taken care of with a substantial amount. She then agreed to join with Benjamin, Huttig and Lee as against Hogan and Needham. Attorney Healy, Lee's associate, acted as her attorney, the prosecutor said. Mrs. Finklestein won the suit. She was given a mortgage for her share and Attorney Healy was paid his fee from money obtained from a mortgage.

Statement Continues Today.

This was as far as the prosecutor reached in his outline of the case. However, he said, today he will tell the jury that Lee and his associates turned the property over to Dorsey and his crowd for $1,250,000, of which $500,000 was cash, and the remainder in stock and securities of Edwin Hult & Co., which the state charges was formed to handle the transaction. Hult is also a defendant in the case.

The other defendants are John W. Seids, secretary and treasurer of the Hult company, C. Edwin Johnson, vice president of the Security Life, Bertram Day, president of the Northern States Life Insurance company, an affiliate of the Security. Both insurance companies are in receivership.

During a discussion of the case Judge Epstein made caustic comments on the present insurance laws, remarking that they provide a minor fine for an insurance company official who makes a false statement of the assets, while providing a punishment of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary for making a false claim against a company.

EASY PAYMENT PLAN REVEALED IN AUTO THEFT

Chooses Car at Curb and Gets Delivery.

How a pair of alleged automobile thieves tried to use the extended payment plan in selling a car was described yesterday before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Automobile court, when four men were held to the grand jury.

According to police, on Nov. 2 Eugene Van Zant, 30 years old, who gave his address as 5615 South Trumbull avenue, decided that the cheapest way to get a good car was to buy one that had been stolen. He went to several saloons, finally meeting two young men who appeared to be suitable for his purpose, police said. They were Fred Hadley, 20 years old, and Henry Novak, 20 years old.

Chooses Favorite Model.

"Come with us," Hadley and Novak told the prospective purchaser. The three then went to 47th street and Ashland avenue, a busy intersection where many cars were parked. Here Van Zant, according to police, pointed to an almost new sedan of medium price class and said that it was the kind he wanted. "Go back to the saloon and wait for us," they told him. "We'll fix you up."

Van Zant followed the order after warning the pair that he could not afford to pay very much, police said. An hour later the two youths drove up to the saloon in an almost new sedan.

"Why, that's the same one I saw," the purchaser exclaimed.

Van Zant paid $5.75 and promised to make weekly payments of the same amount until the total purchase price of $200 was paid for the $800 car, it was charged. He made one weekly payment, then became delinquent. After waiting for several weeks, Hadley and Novak sent Louis Bosh, 17 years old, around to see why the easy payment plan was not working out.

Judge Holds Four.

Last week the owner of the car, John Zion, 1924 West 34th street, saw it being driven at 44th street and Western avenue. He notified a south park policeman and Van Zant was arrested. The other arrests followed.

Judge Graber fixed bail at $3,500 on a charge of receiving stolen property against Van Zant and bond of $2,500 each on a charge of larceny against Hadley and Novak. Bosh was ordered held in $2,500 bond on a charge of accessory to the theft after the fact.

Judge Graber yesterday sentenced John Raid, 40 years old, to ninety days in the Bridewell on a charge of stealing a storage battery from a car belonging to Alex K. Sedgwick, 9 East Goethe street. When Raid pleaded the conviction would cost him his chance of getting citizenship papers, Judge Graber told the court clerk to be sure to notify government authorities of the case.

CUBAN TEACHERS STRIKE; PROTEST TYRANNICAL RULE

Other Professions Due to Join Revolt.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 8.—Ten thousand teachers in Cuban public and private schools walked out of their classrooms today in protest against the alleged tyranny and oppression of the Grau San Martin régime.

Strikes in other professions were threatened. Five thousand lawyers are scheduled to strike tomorrow, while 25,000 physicians, nurses and hospital employés are expected to follow suit within 48 hours. Members of the judiciary, including magistrates, judges and clerks also voted to strike.

General Strike Threatened.

Meanwhile the National Federation of Labor called a general strike throughout the island "as soon as President Grau's definite rejection of the recent ultimatum by oppositionists to resign by Feb. 24" is learned.

The International Communist Alliance for the Defense of Labor today ordered protest meetings in all island cities on Jan. 10 against the present government and "Yankee capitalist oppression in the Caribbean."

President Grau today refused to sign a decree returning the Chaparra and Delicias sugar properties in Oriente province to their American owners. They were taken over by the government two weeks ago to prevent their sabotage by rebels. It was previously reported that Grau would sign the measure, but now he demands that the owners furnish 4,000 employés with free lodging, electricity, and other commodities as the price for freeing the mills from government confiscation.

Demands Property Protection.

Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's representative in Cuba, today "verbally and extraofficially" demanded from Grau full protection of American lives and properties. He acted upon orders from Washington. Grau is said to have told Caffery that the government is "doing the best it can."

Government spokesmen tonight claimed to have confidential reports from Miami that former President Mario G. Menocal is leading a large revolutionary expedition to Cuba aboard a fully equipped schooner. The vessel, it is said, is due to land in Pinar del Rio province tomorrow. Three trains carrying 2,000 troops and artillery pieces left for the province late tonight.

Native labor agitators tonight attacked several Spanish owned business houses in Havana for failure to comply with the native labor law. One agitator was killed when troops fired on the rioters. A 7 year old boy was killed in a bomb explosion.

Extortionist in Rosenwald Plot Gets 5 to 15 Years

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A milk route owner who tried to extort $30,000 from Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., by writing threatening letters, was sentenced today to serve five to fifteen years in prison. William F. Schultze, 35 year old defendant, pleaded not guilty. He said he "meant no harm."

PERUVIAN ARMY MEN SEIZED FOR PLOTTING REVOLT

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Authorities announced today they had uncovered a revolutionary plot Saturday night and that several were arrested. It was learned that several of the army's non-commissioned officers arrived yesterday at Callao and were sent to prison on El Fronton island, off that city.

Those arrested included enlisted men of several regiments garrisoned at Lima.

Japan's Ambassador, Saito, to Sail for U. S. on Feb. 3

TOKIO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Hiroshi Saito, new Japanese ambassador to the United States, advised the foreign office today that he will sail from Southampton on the Berengaria Feb. 3.

WILSON'S DOCTOR HAS OPERATION AT THE MAYOS

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Dr. E. Starr Judd of the Mayo clinic late today said he believed Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson of Washington, D. C., would "react favorably" to an operation for kidney tumor performed earlier in the day. Dr. Judd, who performed the operation, said "it is a little too early to make any positive statement."

Admiral Grayson, personal physician to the late President Woodrow Wilson and naval aid to Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, was accompanied here by Mrs. Grayson and Bernard M. Baruch, New York.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

RECOVERY AND THE NATIONAL CHARACTER.

A secondary thought on the President's budget message and the program it outlines would approach the question of national character. Aside from all other considerations, this must be a matter of considerable concern. Even the political consequences can be set aside, although it must be conceded that political consequences will be involved. There remains the question of what these government expenditures, going directly from Washington to the individual, will do to the character of the citizenship. The people cannot dismiss that question lightly.

Historic instances of the deterioration of national stamina under the influence of government subsidies are well known. The outstanding one is, of course, that of the Roman people. Need was at the origin of the government gratuities and they were made possible by the enormous acquisition of wealth taken from rich and conquered lands. Popularity was based upon the distribution of this wealth and so long as it came in from the operations of successful generals and victorious legions the financial strain could be borne, but the character of the people could not sustain the strain of the eleemosynary system.

Probably no one offhand could say just what precautions can be taken to prevent the extraordinary government expenditures now being made, or now contemplated, from spreading seeds of national weakness along with the benefits receivable. The thoughtful person cannot overlook the possibilities of such evil.

It will be easy to cultivate a general feeling of dependence upon national distribution of wealth. When necessity has been converted into privilege and privilege into right there is likely to be a loss of self-sustaining ability and not only of that but a loss of individual responsibility and of desire to face the world and work for a living. It can be hoped that the American character generally is proof against such seductions and that American self-respect will resist the tempting idea that the country owes every individual a competence, the money to be paid in hand without a return of effort. No one could say that the danger of deterioration does not exist. It may be harder to say how it is to be prevented.

CHANGING NAMES.

Judge Brothers, following the opinion of Master in Chancery Miner, has issued a temporary injunction restraining the city officials from changing the name plates on Crawford avenue. The council by ordinance substituted the name Pulaski for Crawford. The injunction follows the petition of business men and property owners on the street who aver that the change of name would cost them much money and do them serious injury, inasmuch as there is a business advantage and good will in the name Crawford they are entitled to retain.

The council, under pressure, is from time to time inconsiderate of the wishes and the interests of citizens who have identified themselves with a place name and who feel they have a right to keep it if they want to. A council indifferent to that is politically explicable. An enthusiastic element of citizenship spread over the entire city asks that its sentiments be gratified by a name change. The other citizens directly concerned are represented by one alderman, but the widespread group can get the support of nearly all the rest, and the property owners involved are on the losing side. The loyalties which ask for these changes are not only understandable but in many respects they are commendable. Every one can understand why the Chicago people of Polish extraction would like to see tangible evidence of their nation's contribution to the American republic. It is a good thing that they are so interested. It would be unfortunate if they were not. The thing in dispute is the disturbance of old associations to recognize new ones.

The point is well made that the satisfaction of sentiment and the recognition of services can better be done in connection with new enterprises or in substitution for colorless names where no complicating elements either of property or of sentiment arise. This is so reasonable a point that it seems strange it canot prevail.

Sentiment itself takes some alarm at the havoc made with old Chicago traditions. Once well started, the digging up of old roots can continue without limit and all the values of historical association and historical continuity be lost. In the end some group will be gunning for big game and bag such a place name as Michigan avenue, State street, Lincoln park, Washington park, or something else that is a real part of Chicago. Every once in a while efforts have to be made to preserve the name of Clark street, although it honors the progenitor of the northwestern territory of which Chicago is the capital city. The theory in Judge Brothers' reasons for granting the temporary injunction is that property owners have an equity which cannot lightly be disregarded by the city council. If that view prevails old Chicago will have a larger protection and very likely the loyalties which inspire changes will find other satisfactory ways of honoring the persons whom it is desired to memorialize.

LAKE MICHIGAN AND THE TREATY.

It would seem self-evident that no matter what domestic issues are involved in the question of water diversion from Lake Michigan into the Mississippi valley there could be no argument sustaining a treaty provision giving another nation influence in the determination of such domestic questions or co-partnership in jurisdiction over an American body of water.

Elihu Root felt very strongly on this matter and, in consequence, Lake Michigan was excluded from the international agreement covering the other lakes in the great lakes chain. He saw to it that Lake Michigan was not regarded as a boundary water in any sense. It was excepted as being entirely within American jurisdiction, as it is. The pending waterway treaty proposes to abandon Mr. Root's wise reservation and bring Lake Michigan into international jurisdiction. Whatever the decision may be regarding water diversion, any phase of internationalism in Lake Michigan would be injurious to American interests. No decision should be embedded in the treaty. The citizens and officials of the Chicago area and the Mississippi valley who are protesting against this provision of the proposed treaty are thoroughly justified in their protests and wise in their view of the matter.

Chicago and the region served by the Mississipp. waterway hope to receive fair treatment from the rest of the nation. They should be entitled to the expectation that they will not be imposed upon politically by competitive interests in other parts of the country. So long as the issue remains a domestic one this expectation may not be completely defeated. It is the people's right to insist that they may now and in the future look to the fair judgment of their own national government for the square dealing to which they are entitled.

LAWYERS IN PUBLIC DISCUSSION.

The presidential address of State's Attorney Reed at the seventh annual convention of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association was not only an able contribution to public discussion but additional and very welcome evidence that "the gradual onslaught upon the basic principles of our government" to which he drew attention is not to go unchallenged by leaders of the legal profession. The unhappy experiment of prohibition would in all probability have been avoided had the lawyers of the nation subjected it to the informed discussion they were especially fitted to give it. Lawyers have much to do with both the making and application of law and the profession can bring to public discussion a judgment founded on practical experience in the operation of laws and an understanding of principles which the lay public cannot have. Economic and social experimentation, expressed in laws and administrative procedure, need the expert comment of the profession, however plausible to the uninformed it may seem.

For an excellent example we quote from Mr. Reed:

"There has been a tendency on the part of the government since the war to usurp more and more the rights enjoyed by the states.

"Experience has taught us that criminal statutes affecting the lives, conduct, and associations of individuals with each other can be more justly enforced in limited units of territory, where judges, prosecutors, lawyers, and jurors know local conditions and local sentiment.

"A law that is unpopular in one section of this country cannot adequately be enforced in that community, and if arbitrarily executed by a government remote from that community is regarded by citizens as despotic and tyrannical.

"Attempted government control of private business under the guise of interstate commerce, where there is no element of interstate commerce, cannot and does not create respect for such law, and proposals to curb the freedom of speech and press will promote no more favorable reception on the part of the public than did unreasonable searches and seizures in the prohibition era we have just passed through."

One of the most encouraging signs of the time is the awakening of American lawyers to their responsibilities for public information and guidance on behalf of sound legislation and public policy and for the preservation of cherished principles of American law and government.

Editorial of the Day

THE PESSIMISTIC MR. GREEN.

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

When others see room for encouragement in the manner in which our affairs are now shaping themselves William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, remains discouraged. With 6,000,000 now on the pay roll of some branch of the federal government there is undoubtedly some room for pessimism. The realization that this increase in employment may be only temporary has given rise to concern as to when and how these workers are to be absorbed when the government demand for labor is withdrawn.

The pessimism of Mr. Green is of a different sort. It is a permanent kind of pessimism whose critical value often needs to be discounted. "More were laid off work from mid-October to mid-November this year than last year," says Mr. Green, "and trade union figures for the first half of December show that again in December unemployment has increased slightly more than last year." Trade union figures show 1.1 per cent more unemployed this month than in October.

Mr. Green contrasts this period with "the steady employment gains from April to September when men went back to work by the million, even though business was declining from July onward." He blames the slight increase he sees in unemployment upon those employers who feel less inclined to keep men on their pay rolls because the CWA has come along to absorb them. It should hardly be necessary for Mr. Green to seek an answer for the increase outside his statement that millions went back to work in the summer even in the face of a decline in business. With the sudden employment increase that came with the summer boom, some let up in the fall was not only natural but almost inevitable. The recession in business which came with the late summer is not to be disregarded as a factor.

Mr. Green is stating a simple fact when he points out the civil works cannot increase buying power if industry lays off men while the government employs them. But that industry is in some way culpable, which Mr. Green seems to want to suggest, is not easy to prove. Just what Mr. Green expects industry to do in the face of a decline in business following a period of accelerated activity is not clear. The greatest number of men were laid off by the manufacturing industries and here the fluctuation is largely seasonal.

IF YOU PASS ALONG the street and overhear somebody saying, "Understand me, I think he's a great and good man, BUT," that's a Republican who is about to tell why he thinks President Roosevelt is all wrong, but who hopes he can sort of work on the sympathies of the crowd so they won't chase him more than five miles or tar and feather him.

All I can say about it is that after I have been ferried over the Styx, if, as and when there is a country beyond the Styx, I earnestly trust there is nobody over there who uses the harshly grating word "unproven." And if there is I will step right into the elevator and say very firmly, "Going down!" But suppose the old bird down there with the horns and the tail says, "Step this way, please; this is the hottest corner, it's been proven." Then I would not be in the slightest doubt where I was; that would, indeed, be hell.

CAT ON THE HEARTH.

Soft velvet soot that lines the chimney brick
Is not as black as living ornament
Beside the fire asleep. The flames that flick
Swift amber lights around the log have lent
Two gleaming amber embers for two eyes.
The cat turns three times 'round and curls content
To watch the lazy spiral smoke arise
And twirl a tail in somber compliment.
No shadow of a flame that treads a tile
Moves with more furtive step than cushioned claw;
The cat's smooth grace conceals a savage guile,
The fire, unleashed, flaunts artificial law.
Beneath my touch two ancient tyrants purr,
Behind soft warmth rebellious sparks still stir.

THE GOVERNMENT'S going to put a lot of people to work taking care of the wild birds. I wouldn't mind taking care of the wild birds myself, but I'm waiting until they get around to organizing the earthworms. There'll never be enough bait for the fishing season until the earthworms are rounded up and driven out to pasture every morning and fed and curried twice a day and taken care of. So when the EWC (Earth Worm Cowboys) are organized I'd like one of those jobs. Still, old George Babbett used to decline going on fishing parties on the plea that the earthworms always bit him. But, of course, a spice of danger would make the EWC all the more interesting.

A NEW FACE MASK.

THE germs of most of the communicable diseases of northern latitudes enter the human body through the nose and mouth. This group of diseases includes scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, smallpox, mumps, influenza, the pneumonias, and the common colds and probably infantile paralysis. The list includes many others.

The microbes of these diseases are carried by currents of air from the faces of the sick and the carriers to the upper breathing apparatus of those who are capable of contracting the diseases. It has been proved that when a person coughs or sneezes he can drive bacteria inden air a distance of twenty feet. The force of quiet breathing and that of quiet talking are able to propel the air a short dimtance, but far less than twenty feet.

When Lister first applied Pasteur's discovery in the field of surgery he was so impressed by the power of polluted air to spread disease that he devised elaborate machinery for spraying carbolic acid into the air as a part of his antiseptic surgical method. In the course of time all this elaborate apparatus was scrapped, but it left behind it one spiritual descendant. All surgeons wear gauze masks when operating.

The wish to filter the germs out of the air currents running from the nose and mouth of the sick to the same organs in the susceptible has resulted in more than a score of face masks and plans for using them. They were extensively used by people on the streets of San Francisco in the great influenza epidemic of 1918.

Nurses and physicians, and sometimes patients, in many contagious disease hospitals are required to use them. In some cases ambulance rules require that patients being conveyed wear face masks. There seems to be a large field for the use of face masks in the prevention of communicable diseases if one can be made that is practicable—and that means effective, cheap, easily cleaned, and durable.

Drs. M. L. Blatt and M. L. Dale, after elaborate experiments with the several masks designed by physicians, surgeons, and nurses, devised one that they think fills the specifications. It is constructed on a new principle. It consists of layers of gauze between which cellophane is placed. The mask covers the nose and mouth and is held in position by loops of tape passing around the ears. The tape holds the mask against the upper and lower parts of the face but leaves openings at the side through which breathing air enters and leaves. The principle is deflection of air currents instead of filtration of air.

The method of making is as follows: A piece of moisture and air proof cellophane 6x8¾ inches and one-thousandth of an inch thick is placed between layers of gauze 32x30 mesh. This may be hemmed or not as desired; one-half inch cotton tape, 15 inches in length, is sewed to the two upper corners and similar tapes 3 inches in length are sewed to the lower corners. The free ends of these tapes on each side are so sewed together as to form loops. The loops run around the ears so as to hold the gauze firmly against the bridge of the nose and the chin but to cause it to stand away from the face in the region of the ears.

COLITIS.

From Across the Sea

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—The Irish Free State has had its own coinage system since 1926, when it arranged for eight coins similar in value to corresponding British coins which are still in circulation here. Three of the Irish coins are copper, two nickel, and the three larger denominations in silver. There is in addition paper money of ten pound, five pound, one pound, and ten shillings value.

Numismatists are concerned over the fact that there are none of these Irish coins for the years 1932 and 1933. This, it has been explained, is due to the fact that owing to the smallness of the issue required each year it would be uneconomic to go to the expense of altering the molds. For these years any coins required were made in the 1931 molds. It is not unlikely that these will be used for 1934 as well.

It is an interesting sidelight on the Free State's so-called war with England that the contract for the making of all Free State coins is still given to the royal mint in London. It would, of course, be altogether too expensive to set up a coinage department here owing to the small amount of coins required.

There is a large percentage of British money in circulation here, and this is somewhat of a grievance because a certain amount of profit accrues to the governments of all countries on their coinage in circulation. The late Cosgrave government stipulated that the British should take back a certain proportion of their coins each year, but this does not seem to progress so rapidly as originally intended.

The Free State banks hold a large quantity of copper coins in readiness to dispatch to England, but the British government makes a difficulty regarding the amount of money to be given in exchange for these.

CRANE COLLEGE STATISTICS.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—In Mayor Kelly's recent pamphlet issued in defense of the school board's policy of educational curtailment, of which the closing of Crane Junior college was a part, he says: "It appeared that almost 75 per cent of the student body were financially able to pay for such [collegiate] education elsewhere."

Not even the board makes any such claim.

As former chairman of the student loan committee at Crane, I had direct contact with needy students, and my own impressions were supplemented by personal observations made by the deans and other officers of administration as well as by fellow teachers.

I would say that 75 per cent of the students found the payment of our nominal registration fee of $5, together with laboratory fees and cost of books, a real hardship. There were hundreds of applicants for small loans to defray these costs and the costs of lunch and carfare. These we were able to grant only in part.

The best evidence of the incorrectness of Mayor Kelly's statement is the fact that an investigation has indicated that about 75 per cent of those in attendance at Crane last semester are now out of school—and unemployed.

This investigation further showed that the few now in college or university were enabled to attend only because of deferred and reduced tuition charges or because they were awarded scholarships covering tuition in whole or in part.

THE PEOPLE WILL DECIDE.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—The people will decide how they want their liquor, but it will take time.

Our state legislature and city council can help them by putting a gallonage tax on liquor. That will give restaurants, stores, and bars a chance to handle liquor and be able to pay the tax; also give the people a chance to demonstrate how they want their liquor.

If our state legislature and city council will agree to this sane method of taxation the sooner the people will be satisfied and temperance promoted.

THE MESSAGE.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Yesterday I turned with foreboding to the editorial page. There was complete silence on the President's message. Was that silence ominous of dissent? I feared so. On every other question, at home or abroad, I have long looked to The Tribune's editorial expression for guidance or confirmation of my own humble opinion of things of moment.

But I have been disturbed of late by a tone, it seemed, of derogation regarding the President and his works. It pained me, for from revolutionary times to the present, through countless vicissitudes and victories of service our country has meant everything to me and mine, and I feel conscious these times of every tremor in the public balances.

But I am now constrained to tell you what thousands must feel, that today's leader, "The Message," was well worth waiting for, and that we did have to wait for it is proof that it was deliberate and well considered.

God bless you.

Mrs. John L. Butler.

TREES IN NEED OF PRUNING.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Yesterday's issue of The Tribune had an article stating that executives who have charge of placing CWA men indorse the plan of using them to plant trees and shrubs in the parkways of the city's streets. May it not be in order to suggest that they also consider the matter of trimming and shaping those already there that are unsightly and distorted? M. Corbett.

CHILDISH DRIVEL.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Is it possible that The Tribune really thinks that its readers are so stupid as to be fooled by such childish drivel as its editorial of today entitled "Grand Larceny a Virtue"?

Such an article is a cowardly, left handed libel on the pluckiest and greatest President this country has ever had since Washington, bar none.

It would indeed be interesting to see an explanation, by the genius that was responsible for that editorial, why the 1918 dollar with the full constitutional amount of gold behind it, would only purchase in those days what we can now purchase for 30 cents—in spite of the depreciated dollar of 1934.

An American.

SALOONS IN HYDE PARK.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—You state in your issue of this date that the Hyde Park district is "generally from 43d to 53d street," etc. Hyde Park extends north to 39th street, and we residents of this district have understood that we were permanently protected from the inroads of saloons by the charter under which Hyde Park was admitted to Chicago. Is this charter no longer of any value? Can we put trust in anything any more? There are still a large number of citizens who do not welcome the saloon or the evils which come in its wake. I have yet to hear of any good connected with them. Call them by any name—they are still saloons.

WATER LEAK REPAIRED.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—A water main near the sidewalk on the vacant lot just east of our place is continuously leaking, forming an ugly looking pool. The water at times reaches not only the sidewalk but half the pavement, covering both for some distance on either side of the overflow. In freezing weather this is a dangerous area of sidewalk for pedestrians. C. N. B.

Please be advised that under date of Dec. 15 the south district water pipe extension excavated, located roundway, and shut off water at this location. This has apparently stopped all leakage. O. E. Hewitt,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BANK CHECKS.

Harvey, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If A gives B a check and B's check is returned from the bank to A marked N. S. F., and B just holds the check for over one year, can B still have a warrant issued on A, or is there a law that A must act in a certain length of time? H. J. Z.

The limitation period is three years, but the mere fact that a check comes back N. S. F. does not justify criminal prosecution unless value was received for the check. In other words, the giving of a bad check on a debt that is already due is not a basis for prosecution.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

SEEK NEW DELAY IN ADOPTION OF TRANSIT MERGER

City Will Ask Universal Transfers in Return.

The city council at its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon will be asked by the security interests of the traction companies to extend the pending 1930 unification franchise ordinance probably for six months. This was decided upon yesterday after a hearing in the federal district court of Judge James H. Wilkerson. At the hearing Walter L. Fisher, traction expert, reported to the court that the reorganization plan to merge the street car and elevated companies into one system had been agreed upon as to all its essentials by the first lien bondholders.

The present time limit for acceptance of the ordinance, which authorizes the consolidation of the two transit systems with an extensive improvement program, is Jan. 31, three weeks hence. Because of a series of court details involving the receivership and foreclosure sale proceedings it has been estimated by Attorney Fisher that six months will be needed to bring the merger to reality.

Must Show Sincerity.

The attitude of Mayor Edward J. Kelly and of Ald. James B. Bowler, chairman of the local transportation committee, has been that before any more time is given the traction interests must show that they are sincere in going through with the merger.

This same attitude was expressed by Judge Wilkerson in the hearing yesterday, when he stated decisively that no more interest would be paid to the first mortgage bondholders of the surface lines unless the proposed reorganization is carried through without any more "blocking."

It was learned yesterday that the city intends to demand concessions of a very definite character from the transit companies in return for any extension of time for acceptance of the ordinance. One city official declared that in all likelihood a universal service transfer between the surface and elevated lines to become effective on the date the extension becomes effective, that is to say Feb. 1, would be the chief demand.

Won't Dictate to Council.

"I am not going to dictate to the council as to what should be done," Mayor Kelly said yesterday. "There are a lot of new aldermen in the council who, I hope, will study and decide the best course to pursue for themselves as to questions of extending the ordinance."

Meantime, yesterday lawyers were preparing the extension ordinances and the petitions setting forth the major details of the agreement on a reorganization plan. One set of ordinances, those extending the expired 1930 franchise on a day to day basis, were being prepared by lawyers acting as counsel for the receivers of the two systems. An ordinance extending the time for acceptance of the 1930 ordinance was being drafted by the lawyers representing the investment firm of Halsey, Stuart & Co.

The actual petitions requesting the extension of time will be made by the Halsey-Stuart firm through Charles F. Clarke, vice president.

At the hearing yesterday a protest as to the terms of the financial reorganization plan by dissatisfied junior bondholders of the surface lines was stopped by Judge Wilkerson, who stated he would not listen to any objections at the present time. He announced further that any protests would have to be made in the proper manner, and that any serious attacks on the plan would not be considered unless an alternative and better plan were offered.

"I want to ask this question," said Judge Wilkerson. "Would the security holders be better off if no extension of time for acceptance of the ordinance were granted and the properties sold at foreclosure? The question is, wouldn't they be better off under this plan than otherwise."

"A large part of the objections, I believe, have been based on misapprehensions," Attorney Fisher said. "Some of those misapprehensions of inequalities will be ironed out when the plan is extended in detail. But it's no use going to the city hall for an extension unless we can say just how the company would operate under the plan. It would be silly to build a house of cards that can be blown down by the first puff of the big bad wolf."

Judge Wilkerson adjourned the hearing until Jan. 18. At that time the status of the ordinance extension will be reported to him. The court may also decide on that date if almost 2 millions of dollars' interest on the surface lines first mortgage bonds should be paid in the light of the reorganization status. The interest is due Feb. 1. Money for the payment of this interest is available in the hands of the receivers of the street car company.

Brooks to Get $500 Monthly as Co-Receiver at Stevens

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday fixed compensation of $500 a month for C. Wayland Brooks, co-receiver for the Stevens hotel, who succeeded Ernest J. Stevens in the position, following the conviction of the latter on a charge of embezzlement in connection with the operation of the Illinois Life Insurance company. Arthur Hall, the other co-receiver, is receiving a salary of $1,000 by court order. He also is acting as manager of the hotel.

SALES OF AUTOS BOOMING; SHOW ATTRACTS CROWD

New York Display Stirs Up Optimism.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Leaders of the motor car industry, launching their 1934 sales programs at the National Automobile show here this week, are in a mood approaching hilarity as contrasted with their long faces at this time in 1933 and in 1932 and 1931.

Looking back, they are describing 1933 as the year the depression broke. Looking ahead, they are foreseeing 1934 as the year of recovery.

They're Optimistic Now.

In business meetings, formal dinners and informal cocktail parties, words of optimism are heard on all sides. This industry, sometimes described as America's greatest manufacturing enterprise and largest customer for raw products, was cheered by the sustained buying during the usually dull months ending last year.

The attendance at the current show here is breaking all time records. Today, from all parts of the country, telegrams are pouring into temporary headquarters here from dealers and distributors throughout the country telling of heavy sales since 1934 models were announced on Saturday.

"Depression Ended"—Sloan.

The following dialogue, typical of experiences in reporting this year's automobile show, illustrates the attitude of the motor car executives:

"Hello, Mr. Sloan."

"Hello, CHICAGO TRIBUNE," replied Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation. "How's your World's Fair going over this year?"

"It'll go over bigger than last year if a boom replaces the depression."

"All kidding aside, I wouldn't be surprised if the depression has already ended. There's a world wide improvement that can't be denied," Mr. Sloan asserted.

Chrysler Sees Better Times.

Here's another opinion from another authoritative source, Walter P. Chrysler, president of the automobile corporation bearing his name:

"Don't let any one tell you things are not getting better. This year will be a good year in the automobile business. We expect it will be a year of solid substantial improvement in business generally."

Others Are Optimistic.

Here are some statements from others:

ROY D. CHAPIN, president, Hudson Motor Car company—Indications which come to me from all sections of this country as well as many other parts of the world show a generally improved feeling.

C. W. NASH, chairman, Nash Motors company—The facts of greatest significance to industry at this time are that the demand for manufactured necessities has caught up with the supply; and that confidence, hope and the will to go forward are uppermost in the public mind.

Plans Big Campaign.

A. J. CHANTER, president, Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company—Mobilized for the most determined drive for business in the history of its existence, the automobile industry moves into 1934 prepared to take a leading rôle in the general program of business rehabilitation.

CARLES D. HASTINGS, president of Hupp Motor Car corporation—Just at the time when the public has demonstrated its willingness to buy new cars, we enter into a really new era of car design.

The national automobile show, with its displays of advancements in engineering and styling, will be held in Chicago's Coliseum from Jan. 27 to Feb. 3 inclusive.

ROBBED OF $22 AND $1,000 COAT.

Two robbers yesterday took $22 and a mink coat valued at $1,000 from Jerome Katz, 755 Cornelia avenue, and his wife, Gloria, 24 years old, as they were walking near their home.

JOHNSON ADDS 5 HRS. WEEKLY UNDER CODE FOR AUTO FACTORIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson today approved a modification of the automobile code which will permit the motor plants to work their employes 40 hours, instead of the original 35 hours a week fixed by their codes.

Johnson justified this increase in working hours, the first action of its kind ever taken under an NRA code, by saying that increased purchases of cars next spring would, at the present 35 hour schedule, result in bringing to Detroit and other manufacturing centers an excessive number of workers who would have to be laid off immediately after the spring production rush had ended.

Johnson outlined the case in a special report to President Roosevelt. This paper carried reports from manufacturers showing that in September of last year employment was 150,756, as against only 73,411 in September of the preceding year and 194,274 in September, 1929.

"This table indicates," Johnson said, "that there were 77,345 more workers employed in September of 1933 than in September, 1932."

APPEALS COURT UPHOLDS U. S. TAX ON ASTOR TRUST

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The United States Circuit Cout of Appeals reversed today a decision of the lower court which directed the federal government to return to the Farmers Loan and Trust company approximately 17 million dollars, representing principal and interest of an estate and property tax collected after the death in 1919 of Lord William Waldorf Astor.

The bank represents the two sons, the present Lord Astor and Maj. John Jacob Astor, two Englishmen, to whom the father left estates in trust, consisting, for the most part, of real estate in Manhattan.

The federal assessment was based on the allegation that Lord Astor created the trusts in anticipation of his death. This is against the law. The bank contended that the trusts had been created in order to find relief from the oppressive income taxes in the United States and England.

Judge Francis G. Caffey, in the lower court, ruled that the sum collected should be returned. The opinion today of the Circuit court states that the government shall retain the money on the grounds that the trusts were actually created in anticipation of the death of Lord Astor, which took place two months after the trusts had been made.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $300,630, making a total of $99,983,490 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928	1929
Jan. 8	$ 25,095	$ 69,487
Uncollected	15,735,660	41,982,054
	1930	1931
Jan. 8	82,461	125,657
Uncollected	66,330,702	65,506,884

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $1,134.

Reports filed by 1,931 receivers in the Superior court show unpaid taxes totaling $4,489,387 for 1928, 1929, and 1930 on properties under their control. This was announced yesterday by Acting Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Superior court after a tabulation of the reports received to date. Judge Sullivan has indicated that as soon as reports are filed by all of the 3,000 receivers appointed in the court he will single out those receivers who have large cash balances on hand but have failed to pay taxes. These receivers will be asked to account for their delinquencies before the chancellors who appointed them.

AUTOMOBILE MAN PRAISES TRIBUNE EXPORTS SURVEY

Graham Sees Opportunity in Europe.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S enterprise in promoting foreign trade through its world's coverage with staff correspondents was lauded this afternoon by Robert C. Graham, vice president of the Graham-Paige Motors corporation and chairman of the national automobile chamber of commerce export committee. He presided at an "international day" luncheon and conference in honor of overseas visitors to the national automobile show.

"THE TRIBUNE through its announced program," he said, "can do much to aid American business abroad. Economic and political conditions throughout the world are changing so rapidly that commerce is having difficulty in keeping abreast of the times through ordinary channels for trade information.

Recovery Abroad Rapid.

"I have recently visited fifteen countries and found that recovery from the depression has made decided advances in the last two years, particularly in England and the Scandinavian nations. This advance has been so rapid that America has not as yet taken full advantage of its new export trade opportunities.

"These opportunities apply to those industries, like the automobile, where America by virtue of its large domestic market has a volume of production that enables it to export at low cost. The motor car exports increased in 1933 to 233,000 units, almost doubling the 1932 figure of 181,055 vehicles.

"But a still bigger market awaits the American automobile. In addition to improvements in economic conditions, there has been a world wide betterment of roads, particularly in Germany and Belgium, and roads create automobile markets.

For Tariff Reduction.

"If the United States will buy from overseas, we will be able to sell abroad. A 10 per cent reduction in our tariffs would do much to stimulate foreign commerce. The Roosevelt administration seems to be disposed to lower this trade barrier."

Samuel D. Post, vice president and exchange officer of the Guardian Trust company, told the luncheon guests—representatives of foreign automobile companies and foreign representatives of American automobile companies—that the cheaper dollar had given a pronounced boost to America's exports in the last few months. He also said that the flight of capital from this country had abated.

"American trade, however," he added, "is still handicapped by the difficulty of exchange in those countries where the markets are government controlled."

J. L. Merrill, president of All-American Cables, Inc., and president of the Pan-American society, said a new day was dawning in the relations between the United States and Central and South America.

TRY OUT PLANES DOING 200 FOR AIR LINES HERE

Increase Boeing Speed 20 to 25 Miles.

BY HUGH SEXTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—An increase of from 20 to 25 miles an hour in the cruising speed of the Boeing transport planes flying on United Air lines, which operate from Chicago to both coasts and to the southwest, will be put into effect this spring.

It will be done by adoption of geared motors similar to those installed on a Boeing airliner demonstrated publicly today for the first time in a flight from New York. With the new motors the airliners that now cruise at 171 miles an hour will cruise at almost 200 miles an hour.

According to George Wheat, vice president of Aircraft and Transport corporation, who was demonstrating the new type of motor gearing to newspaper men en route to the sixth annual all American air races, which open at Miami on Wednesday, the motors will also be equipped with controllable pitch propellers.

Meet Competition.

"United Air lines plans to replace the present Wasp 550 horse power motors with the same motor fitted with a reduction gear to the propellor, which will greatly increase propeller efficiency," Mr. Wheat said. "The planes' speed will be increased by 20 to 25 miles an hour.

"Through this improvement we plan to meet the competition of a southern transcontinental air line that is adopting new high speed equipment in an effort to route air travel away from the Chicago gateway."

This step is the second pioneering move made by United Air lines toward the accomplishment of high speed air transportation. Last spring sixty new Boeing planes placed in service increased the cruising speed on the air line from 125 miles an hour to 171 miles an hour, and cut travel time radically.

Engines Run Quietly.

Already engineers of the Boeing Airplane company have a new design for a faster transport plane nearing the construction state with which to replace present equipment.

Because of low hanging mist the trip today was made at a low altitude, where the full efficiency of the new motors could not be demonstrated because the superchargers could not be employed.

But in a few bursts of 200 miles an hour speed Benjamin Whealan, the pilot, brought out their capabilities. The motors run more smoothly and quietly than those now in use because they turn at higher speed.

AIR LINE AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR BIG NEW FLEET

Pan-American Airways system has awarded contracts which place under construction the largest fleet of motored aircraft in the world, according to J. T. Trippe, president. The construction work will cost more than $3,349,000. Employment has been provided under the contracts for 3,120 technicians and skilled laborers.

The new planes comprise twelve 200 mile per hour land transport planes of advanced design and twelve new high speed marine transports. Contracts for the former have just been awarded to the Douglas Aircraft company and the Lockheed Aircraft corporation. The latter twelve are already under construction.

In accordance with the plan of the Pan American Airways system to cooperate with the President's program for industrial recovery, the planes, originally scheduled for future development, are being constructed at once. In addition, the construction of an international marine airport at Miami, Fla., has been advanced.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

Bronchial Irritations Need Creosote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medical elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use.

What Movies Shall We See? Read Mae Tinee's Advice

Son Will Open Exhibition of Monvel's Work

Bernard Will Be at Arts Club Function.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHAT a gay Saturday night the 20th of this month will be! Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed is giving a dinner at the Arts club that night for Bernard Boutet de Monvel, who will be here for the tea the day before that will open an exhibition of his father's (Maurice Boutet de Monvel) drawings and water colors at the club.

And in yesterday's mail a number of socialites received intriguing invitations bidding them to a bal comique at the Saddle and Cycle club on the 20th. No one, at least no one with whom we talked, seems to know who is giving it, but acceptances [with checks inclosed] are to be sent to the Racquet club. That club yesterday disclaimed any knowledge of which member or members were to receive the mail addressed to the Bal Comique, and the Saddle and Cycle claimed to know no more about the party than that the club had been reserved for a supper-dance on that date.

The gay white invitations, ornamented with pink masques and carnival figures and lettered in gray, advise that "Your august and costumed presence is required to assist in the joviality of the Bal Comique, a midwinter corrective, on Jan. 20 at 10 o'clock at the Saddle and Cycle club."

You may be sure that every one who is invited who already hasn't accepted an invitation to Mrs. Goodspeed's party—she is noted for the chic and charm of her entertaining—will be there, for a bal comique gives one a chance to wear a ludicrous costume, and who can resist such a chance, especially at this time of year, when life seems rather drab after the gayety of the holiday season?

M. Boutet de Monvel is now in New York, where his late father's inimitable drawings and water colors are being exhibited. While here several years ago the son painted some of Chicago's loveliest ladies, including Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick.

Women Invited to Princeton Party.

For the first time in the social history of the Princeton Club of Chicago women have been included in the invitations to a club dinner. The reason is found in the person of the popular Harold Willis Dodds, new president of Princeton university, for whom the Princeton club is giving a reception and dinner on Jan. 24 at the Drake hotel.

Very likely the club members thought it would be a shame for their wives not to meet this brilliant politico-economist, especially as Dr. Dodds is going to be here for only forty-eight hours. Mrs. Dodds will not accompany her husband, for he has a strenuous tour of the west ahead of him before he returns to college routine.

Invitations to the dinner are to be mailed to the members of the Princeton club and their wives, to the parents of undergraduates at Princeton, to President and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, to President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, to the president of the Chicago Harvard club, and Mrs. Arthur Cable, and to the president of the Chicago Yale club and Mrs. Frederick L. McNally.

A short reception will precede the dinner. Receiving with Dr. Dodds will be Mr. and Mrs. William B. McIlvaine, Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Phillips [both Mr. McIlvaine and Mr. Phillips are former alumni trustees], Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart [Mr. Stuart is a life trustee of Princeton], Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates Jr. [he is president of the Princeton club], and Mr. and Mrs. David B. McDougal, the vice president of the club and his wife.

Dr. Dodds will be the only speaker. Dr. Dodds, though not yet 45, has been electoral adviser to the government of Nicaragua, the editor of the National Municipal Review, an instructor in economics at Purdue university, professor of political science at Western Reserve university, and professor of politics at Princeton since 1927.

Miss Mary Kay Downs Submits to Operation.

Miss Mary Kay Downs had an emergency appendectomy last night at the Illinois Central hospital, so the dinner dance Mr. and Mrs. Press Hodgkins were giving for her on Thursday is being postponed until the debutante has recovered.

The Chicago relatives of the former Ines de Soriano, now Mme. Gonzalo de la Gandara of Biarritz, received cables yesterday announcing the birth of a daughter to M. and Mme. de la Gandara on Sunday. The baby is the granddaughter of the Marquis and Marquise de Ivanrey [Italia Blair of Chicago], and of the Marquis and Marquise de la Gandara, and the great granddaughter of Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, who is in New York this winter.

A series of four lectures by Dr. Horace J. Bridges will provide Thursday morning interest during the next month for women both in Lake Forest and Lake Bluff. The local center of Infant Welfare is sponsoring the series for its benefit with the first lecture at 11 o'clock next Thursday morning in the Ferry hall chapel.

Dr. Bridges will speak on "Life Begins at 40 or When," this week. A week from Thursday his subject will be "Desire for Immortality," while the third lecture is to concern "The Greatness of the Victorian Era." The series will wind up with a talk on "Industrial Recovery and the Crisis in Character."

Mrs. Edward K. Welles, the newly elected president of the Lake Forest-Lake Bluff center, is one of the members of the committee arranging the lectures. The others include Mrs. John H. McIlvaine, Mrs. Knight C. Cowles, Mrs. H. Foster Straw, Mrs. Albert Henry High.

Relatives and Friends at Preview Event.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King, that charming person who is so busy most of the time with her pet charities, the Red Cross and the Visiting Nurse association, that she doesn't have much time for giving large and purely social parties, certainly is proving this winter that she is one of the most delightful hostesses in society.

A few weeks ago she gave a lovely tea at the Casino to introduce to society Miss Helen Hunter, the granddaughter of her good friends, the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, and yesterday she gave another highly successful tea at the Drake to introduce to society the pictorial studies of the Mitchells' youngest son, Clarence Buckingham, and her own son-in-law.

The same atmosphere of old family friendship and affection that every one felt at Miss Hunter's debut was apparent yesterday, for there, admiring young Mr. Mitchell's pictures and greeting him and his lovely young wife, the former Marjorie King, were dozens of old friends of his father and mother.

Every one was most enthusiastic about the photographs, which have been exhibited in Paris and other European cities and in Pasadena, where the Mitchells are living this winter. Mr. Mitchell always has been interested in photography, but it was only about two years ago when he and his wife and two little daughters were spending a year abroad that he took it up seriously.

Exhibit Will Be Open to Public.

Yesterday's opening was a preview by invitation only, the proceeds going to a local charity, but the exhibition will be open to the public without charge through Saturday.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine had a sort of pre-preview Sunday, for she has had a bad cold and her doctor forbade her being in a crowd. "Faith," a picture of a Bible, a crucifix, a candle, and an hour glass, pleased her so much that she purchased it and also several others. The proceeds of the sale of the pictures go to charity, too.

Pouring for part of the afternoon was Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, handsome in red and not very busy, for she was serving coffee and most of the "customers" gathered around the other end of the long table where Mrs. John L. Shaw [Barbara King] was drawing cups of hot and delicious mulled claret from Mrs. King's own silver barrel. Mrs. William H. Mitchell [Ginevra King] relieved her sister at the claret barrel later and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. took Mrs. Armour's place.

To list those who were there would be to list nearly all of society, old and young, masculine and feminine, for the Lord Nelson room was crowded during every minute of the tea.

Mrs. John P. Kellogg [Louise Mitchell] was there, of course, and so were "Billy" Mitchell and "Jack" Mitchell, older brother of Mrs. Kellogg and Clarence. Also, Miss Helen Hunter, Miss Kate Buckingham, for whose brother Clarence was named; Mrs. Ambrose Cramer Sr., who purchased several pictures; Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. Jack G. Stark of Santa Barbara and her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duell, who, by the way, were receiving congratulations on the recent birth of a daughter, Caryl; Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, and Mr. and Mrs. George

IF the sun is shining this morning, everything will be all right. If it's not, it is the thirteenth day without it, and the life of the Easter lily plants in the growers' establishments will be endangered.

A friend who stopped in at a grower's to buy a primrose plant yesterday learned about the plight of the Easter lilies. It seems the bulbs are put in the soil 105 days before Easter each year. This insures blooming plants for Holy Week. Twelve days is as long a time as an Easter lily can go without sunshine, so if the sun is not shining this morning, the thirteenth day without it, the growers will have had to turn artificial sunlight on the lily plants to save them. And that, of course, will mean very expensive Easter lilies.

MRS. CHARLES M. CARTWRIGHT of Evanston tells a little tale that proves New York has a heart. Proves something, anyway. It concerns an incident that occurred in an elevator at the Waldorf on a recent rainy day. A woman entered the elevator and on the way down asked the operator to be directed to the Bagby concert. As you probably know, the Bagby concert series is a subscription series attended by a very Knickerbockerish audience. At this point a gentleman in the elevator politely inquired if she were thinking of attending. The woman, unaware that it was a sold-out subscription series, said she was considering it—hadn't made up her mind, however. Then the gentleman gallantly asked her to sit in his box. Well, it turned out that he was Mr. Bagby, and knew there wasn't a seat left that day. He was delighted to have as a guest a lady from his native state, Illinois, he added.

EXPECTED in Chicago shortly is Mme. Melchior Palyi, wife of the German economist who is professor of economics at the University of Chicago. Those who have met her mention her charm. To one who never has, the item of interest about her is that the poor woman has been through four revolutions. She was in Leningrad at the time of the Kerensky revolution, and a year later she experienced the bolshevist revolution. Then she fled to Riga, only to be there during that bolshevistic uprising. Later she went to Germany and was in Germany at the time Hitler came into power, which certainly could be counted as a politico-economic revolution, at least.

MRS. BURT MASSEE, whose conversation is always worth a columnist's listening to with attention, related an incident that happened in the home of the Herbert Bradleys [Mary Hastings Bradley] recently. The telephone rang persistently late one night and Mr. Bradley went to answer it. His wife heard him say, "O, Mr. Pirie, is she very sick?" and then, "O, how dreadful," and she slipped on a robe, horrified at the thought of serious illness in the John T. Pirie home. She waited beside the telephone until the conversation was finished to find out whether there was anything she could do. When Mr. Bradley hung up he turned to her to explain:

"Gladys, the hippo, has a bad cold," he explained. And only then did Mrs. Bradley recall that Mr. Pirie, as well as her husband, is an official of the new Zoological park at Riverside.

WE like the story of a man named Frederick Kuhn who paid ten cents for a raffle ticket and won a canary. He went down town and bought a cage for it, and the cage cost him $25. Shortly after he got the cage home the canary flew out of an open window and was never seen again. Then Mr. Kuhn went down and bought another canary, for which he paid $20.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Walter Hampden, gallantly carrying a rich cargo of the classics over the land as if to challenge the ill omens of the theatrical times, began a fortnight's engagement in the Erlanger theater last night with Bulwer-Lytton's "Richelieu." This is the work with which Edwin Booth used to open his sessions in the brave days of old; which has kept its place in the repertory of great tragedians in rivalry with Shakespeare for eighty years; which contains some of the most famous lines of the English-speaking stage. It is a grand old play for whose revival the drama's loyalists should be grateful.

The actor-manager's portrayal of Richelieu in his old age, at bay against a dangerous group of powerful conspirators, matching his craft against a plot of assassination, is a rich character study in the colors of historical romance. It has power and tenderness and touches of ironic comedy. In all points, except that of eloquent utterance, it compares favorably with the Richelieu most easily remembered by this generation—the stately and sonorous cardinal of the late Robert Mantell.

It is my impression that Mr. Hampden does not launch the curse of Rome with the tremendous power that was Mantell's, whose voice was a noble survival from the old-school of theatrical declamation. Nevertheless, he makes this high point of the action—a discredited prime minister defying his king and invoking churchly authority to protect a girl from royal lust—vibrate with fierce sincerity.

Mr. Hampden decided that the text of "Richelieu" was in need for revision from a modern viewpoint, and accordingly he submits the play as a "new version" by Arthur Goodrich, the translator of his "Cyrano de Bergerac." I have not taken the pains to consult the standard text, but it strikes me that Mr. Goodrich has contrived to get some of the free-swinging rhythm out of the lines, no doubt with the idea that modern playgoers want dialogue that comes straight from the shoulder.

I missed the line that precedes the maxim: "The pen is mightier than the sword," now tossed off as a casual epigram without its effective "windup." I also felt that some of the vigor was missing from the cardinal's pronouncement: "There's no such word as fail." These omissions, plus a sense of choppy rhythms inherited from the Hampden "Cyrano," caused me to wish that Mr. Goodrich had not been given a commission to alter the style of a gifted, although old-fashioned, man of letters.

On the other hand, the Goodrich version has apparently clarified the outline of the plot, which is a complicated affair for audiences that have not been trained in the drama of intrigue. When both the conspirators and the cardinal began to chase "the papers" around, with the heroic De Mauprat playing quarter-back on both sides, I used to get slightly bewildered. But under Mr. Hampden's ministrations, it all becomes quite clear. Moreover, whether one is pro-Goodrich or anti-Goodrich in the matter, the play itself, in general outline and detail of dialogue, stands up nobly in revival. It will hold the attention and quiet the wisecracks of any cynical modernist.

Mr. Hampden's company, as revealed in this item of the repertory, consists of average troupers. John D. Seymour is alert and romantic as De Mauprat; Ernest Rowan is methodically villainous as Baradas; Sydney G. Smith is effective as the grim Huguet; and Dallas Anderson has authority as the king—not Louis XVIII. as the program says, but Louis XIII. This typographical error caused the scholarly first-nighters to go into a huddle between acts and threaten to pass resolutions.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

"Convention City" is certainly a libel on the honest papa who goes to conventions really to convench. AND—what a giveaway on the butterfly business man who regards the yearly gatherings from far and near of the members of his organization as just a great, big, beautiful bender, entirely surrounded by local beauteous bebbies . . .

The Honeywell Rubber company repairs to Atlantic City for its annual get-together. This has been the meeting place of the clan for some twenty years by will of the president of the company, a smug little man with a pretty daughter.

The Something or other Bandage company convention has just broken up and mayor and aids, gold diggers and their male assistants are right on hand at the station to greet the arriving "special" of rubber men who are already three sheets to the wind. (The peculiar feature of this opus is that everybody in it is either boiled or hard-boiled.)

The events—which caused the censors to tack an "Adults Only" sign on "Convention City"—start in immediately to happen . . .

The piece is fast and, because of clever acting, humorous in spots. But the average observer doesn't find wholesale inebriation an amusing sight—and this film specializes in scenes depicting imbibers before, after, and while taking. Filmed, apparently before repeal, the busy bootlegger is shown as a secretive and ingenious soul . . .

Most of the action is slapstick. George Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Frank McHugh, Adolphe Menjou, Grant Mitchell, Mary Astor, and Hugh Herbert give the most telling performances.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There is a particular reason and a little extra pleasure in making public the names of the artists who participated in last night's attraction of the Chicago opera season. It proves several things, but one of them, one believes not the least important, is that Chicagoland is able to do something of importance where opera is concerned. This is not the first nor the only evidence of such a fact. It is none the less a pleasing contribution.

If you happen to be in Joliet you may learn that Lucia Diano will answer to the name of Lucille Gowey. You will also learn that she was loudly, warmly, enthusiastically applauded by the citizens of both Joliet and Chicago when she appeared as Mimi last night. You will be informed correctly, for she appeared in the role, and she deserved what she got.

In the effort to be mathematically correct, one is inclined to refer to her as a semi-debutante, since she sang a performance of Nedda in "Pagliacci" with the Gallo company at the Auditorium last fall. But there are times when historical values are greatly outweighed by spiritual ones. Wherefore, and because Miss Diano was so much better last night than she had been on the previous occasion, the artistic fact must register that her debutanteship must be figured at least at three quarters, and perhaps even higher.

I wish to forestall all argument by admitting in advance that she is young, that several seasons of experience will teach her a number of things about stage technic, acting, vocal effectiveness, what not. But I also desire to suggest that youth is also one of her assets, that there is an appealing, yearning note in her voice that belongs to her because she is Diano and that no amount of experience will make better. In years to come she may be a better technician. But no number of years will make her any more persuasive, human, delightful than she was last night.

It was a smart idea of the Chicago Grand Opera company to present her in as good association as it did. Margery Maxwell is without doubt the ideal Musetta. She presents in the most certain form the brilliant, slightly hard boiled, slightly comic, and altogether lovable urchin of the streets, a singer in whom to take delight, an actress of real charm. Mr. Borgioli and Mr. Frigerio excelled as the poet and painter of the fine old musical drama. Mr. Sjovik became a marvel of a singer amid their scenes, Mr. Trevisan was nothing short of astonishing in his ability to bring out comic values at short notice. And you should have heard what Mr. Papi at the conductors' stand was able to do to the

Food Facts worth KNOWING

Many people wonder why it is almost impossible to get the delicious flavor of canned applesauce when it is made at home.

CANNED APPLESAUCE is a blend of apples of distinctly different flavors

This proper blending of apples assures flavor, consistency, and texture. It makes better applesauce.

Many people who can't digest raw apples, find canned applesauce easy to digest. It contains fruit acids which produce a mildly laxative effect.

There is splendid food value in canned applesauce. It is a zestful breakfast dish. Adds flavor to meats and fowl, when served with them. Makes many delicious, healthful desserts.

Buy a can of Applesauce and try this recipe for luncheon or dinner:

APPLE SNOW
¾ cup Canned Applesauce
3 egg whites
½ tsp. lemon juice
(yield 5 or 6 servings)

Beat egg whites until very stiff. Add lemon juice and then fold in the Applesauce very gradually. Pile lightly in glass dish and chill. Serve with custard or cream. May be garnished with Maraschino or Mint cherries or cubes of Currant or Mint Jelly.

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy an invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff stipulated that his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, were not to get a cent from the invention. While walking through New York's Central park one winter's morning Pomeroy is kidnaped and taken to a small island off the coast of Maine, where he is made a prisoner in a luxurious home, but kept on a starvation diet. His captor is Boris Orleneff, nephew of the inventor. Boris' cousins, Cyril and Olga Norrikoff, assisted in the abduction. They want Pomeroy to make a settlement. He refuses. Pomeroy is allowed to join the family circle. He manages to elude his guard. Grateful, but a raging storm makes escape impossible. Olga Norrikoff tells Pomeroy they are all starving. That the house was lent to them for the winter. Boris and Cyril hadn't been able to get work. Pomeroy arranges through Grateful to get food supplies from Andy Mason, the caretaker. He has fallen in love with Irma Orleneff, Boris' sister. Cyril's mother dies and his father commits suicide. Cyril had left before the tragedy in a leaky boat to get help from the mainland. Meanwhile, in New York, Barbara Schuyler, a witness to Pomeroy's abduction, comes forward. He traces the license number of the car that was used. It is owned by two brothers in Maine, of good reputation. Schuyler goes to Maine to see them. Pomeroy has put up a signal of distress on the island, which has been sighted.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

Bradley was suddenly very serious.

"They can't get off the island cause of the storm," he mused aloud, as the car started. "The bunch of junk they got out there wouldn't weather this sea five minutes. They ain't got no telephone either. Old man Crosby don't believe in 'em. But mebbe, if something happened, they tried to use that boat, anyhow. By heck," he cried sharply. "Mebbe the pieces of wreckage that come ashore was from their boat!"

"We won't worry about that yet." Schuyler attached little importance to the suggestion. "But step on the gas and let's get here."

On the way to town Mr. Schuyler was deeply occupied. His good spirits had disappeared and his brow was dark with foreboding. Gazing at the storm swept world through the car's dim windows he voiced a pregnant question.

"Bradley, how far out is that island?"

"'Bout three miles—p'raps nearer four."

"How long does it take to get there?"

"'Bout half an hour, mostly. Longer today, I reckon."

Schuyler shuddered.

"I'm not a good sailor," he confessed. "But my duty is my delight. Just dump me somewhere in the cabin during the voyage, and lift me out very gently when we reach shore. It will be a time, Bradley," he ended sadly, "for tender, ministering hands, but I know all too well that you haven't got them."

. . . . . .

Their task completed, the four men at the boathouse separated. Grateful walked back to Andy's cottage with the caretaker to wheedle even more provisions from him, Pomeroy suspected, while Orleneff and Pomeroy started for the house.

He almost had to shout to make his voice heard.

"Capt. Kidd was supposed to have made this island his headquarters for a time," Orleneff remarked as they plunged through the storm.

The words were taken from his lips by the wind and Pomeroy barely caught them as they whistled past his ears. Both men plodded doggedly through the storm, heads down, bodies braced against the force of the tempest.

"If he didn't it's probably the only island in the Atlantic that escaped him," Pomeroy muttered, closing his eyes for an instant to keep ice pellets out of them.

"O, I guess he was here all right. There are excavations all over the island where treasure seekers have been digging for hidden gold," Orleneff said absently. "There was a bunch of them here only twenty years ago."

He had clearly been talking against time. Now he brought out desperately, "God, how I hate to go back to my mother! I can't bear to see her so wretched. And all this must be playing the mischief with her nerves and her eyes."

"How is your sister taking it? I haven't see her today."

"O, Irma will stand up under it. She always does. And of course none of us really realizes yet what has happened. It's a cataclysmic thing, if Cyril is gone, too."

"I know."

They had reached the space in front of the house. Orleneff suddenly stopped, and planted himself like a panic stricken child.

"Look here," he said, "let's walk around a while. Do you mind?"

"No, I'm with you."

"I'll show you the island. It's very small."

Pomeroy reflected that there were more pleasing diversions for a day like this than a walk on a tempest ridden island out at sea. He thought of Irma and the library and its luring fire. But he understood how his companion felt.

"Good idea." He added as they turned from the house. "It will give us some air."

"It will do that, all right," Orleneff grimly agreed. They started around the house toward the sea, and the wind met them with a shriek of protest.

Orleneff was walking as if he had escaped some unseen peril. He followed the vague, drift obscured outline of the path leading to the summer house, and when they neared it Pomeroy spoke again.

"I fought a fist fight there with your cousin," he told his companion.

Orleneff stopped short, and stared at him.

"You did? When?"

"Friday."

Boris walked on and Bruce kept pace with him with difficulty. "I wondered what had happened to him," Boris said at last. "Did you lick him?"

"Yes—with a great deal of difficulty."

Orleneff was silent again. After a time he said he liked a good boxing match.

"I'll take you on myself some day, for the honor of the family," he added slowly, and broke out, "That fight was only two days ago, God!"

He pushed on toward the sea, through the clearing in the trees. Pomeroy gave him a quick side glance. He did not like the look in the other's eyes, or his nerve driven, headlong progress.

"Orleneff," he began, and found that he almost had to shout to make his voice heard above the howl of the wind and the crash of waves and tortured evergreens, "if I get one of my friends to offer you a job will you take it?"

"As office boy?" He caught the twisted, sardonic grin on the young man's lips.

"Not as bad as that. Something that will give you a living income to begin with, and a chance to go on up. How about it?"

"I'll take it." After an interval Boris added, "Thanks."

"My idea is to get you all back to New York as soon as we can leave here," Bruce went on. "I can arrange to get some cash when we reach the mainland. I'll stake you till you're on your feet, if you will let me."

"Thanks again. It's mighty decent of you. More coals of fire—and all that." There was another silence which Boris finally broke as if he had not observed it.

"I want to say while we're on the subject, that I'll try to make good. I think I've learned something this winter. I'd be an awful bonehead if I hadn't! Anyway, things look a lot different to me from what they did a few days ago. Another thing I want to say is that the trick I pulled on you was the lowest down thing I ever did. I've been trying ever since to understand how I could do it. I'll be ashamed of it as long as I live."

"You were desperate and half crazy," Pomeroy said self-consciously. "I know now what you were up against. Forget it."

"Look at the price we've paid for it," Orleneff brought out. "Do you know what's been ringing in my brain all day, as if some one kept shouting it at me? 'The wages of sin is death.' 'The wages of sin is death.' Cyril has paid those wages all right." Boris ended with a groan. "And so have I. Look at what I'm up against!"

"You're getting morbid, old man. Snap out of it. These deaths have nothing to do with your bringing me here."

"Go on thinking so. I'll never agree with you. The bill has been presented, and we've paid—in our different ways. I'd rather be where Cyril is than have that to think about the rest of my life."

"I never listened to such wild talk. Pull yourself together."

Mother-in-Law Deserves Some Kind of Regard

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have a mother-in-law, aged 45, who lives with us. I can't call her Mother because I do not love her. I do love her son, my husband, but he gives her his pay envelope. She pays the rent, cooks, does everything in the household. She manages well, I must admit, and is good natured enough, but she has peculiar ways and is sloppy. I just get an allowance per week!"

And so on. A whole raft of complaints, as would seem the privilege of a bride with a managing mother-in-law!

As in so many of the cases of in-law trouble, the kitchen stove becomes the issue between the two women. Mother wants to do the cooking; daughter doesn't like her methods. And the only solution under heaven is two stoves, removed a block's length, at least.

During the late depression years we have felt that mother-in-law more often got the wrong end of the deal than the younger woman. She was the one moved in on, her program of life altered to suit the newlyweds and very little appreciation volunteered for her sacrifice. Some of these older women stood by their children magnificently in the test. They took a good deal of punishment for their kindness, helped many a young couple to hold together during the trying days, and, as had been said, received little gratitude from the daughter-in-law.

But, perhaps, it is asking too much of a young daughter-in-law to don the appreciative habits of an older person, the considerate and the kindly attitude mothers-in-law, up against such problems, can afford more understanding. They can look back upon their newlywed days and consider how difficult it would have been to share their love with another woman. And, of course, the older woman has not been raised in ignorance of an unwanted mother-in-law's position. If she has failed to provide herself against such a day, it is her mistake, and hers to rectify. She must not look to a daughter-in-law for toleration. And the daughter-in-law comes first in the young husbands consideration. Hers is the right to the pay envelope.

Petunia Design Rewards Earnest Pick-Up Quilter

Petunia.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The reward of a bit of pick-up quilt work lies not only in the pleasure of making but in the joy of possession. Well adapted for such purposes is this comparatively new quilt block. Originally designed by a southern Illinois woman, it is appliqued in the soft pink of a petunia, gold green, brown, and light blue. It is a thoroughly feminine quilt and quite appropriate for a young girl's boudoir.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn street.

Mothers May Reduce Deaths in Childbirth

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

When the United States needs to be stirred up to do something about its high maternal death rate, it doesn't help matters any that an article should be written by the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association pointing out that "in the days of midwives and buggy doctors mothers got on fairly well, and in some instances better, than present day mothers." It is no wonder that the Chicago Medical society demanded that some discipline be meted out to the writer of such an article occupying an important position in the medical world.

Such a statement is absurd and harmful, at a time when we must rouse public opinion to the need of saving more of our mothers and babies from the dangers that now surround them at childbirth.

Think what a tragedy it is for a mother to die when her baby is born. First, what a pity for her to have gone through those long months and final pain to lose her life. Then what a sad fate for a baby—to grow up motherless. And what an overwhelming burden of grief and responsibility to be laid upon the shoulders of a father. Everything should be done to avoid such unnecessary and tragic consequences.

The report of the study mentioned yesterday in this column gave a number of the reasons for America's high rate of deaths due to childbirth. You may remember that of the 1,300 preventable deaths, only about 2 per cent were due to midwives, 65 per cent to the medical profession, and over 36 per cent were blamed on the patient—the mother herself.

The medical profession will have to bring about a change in these conditions. But the expectant mother must do her part ot save herself and her baby. In its report the Academy of Medicine made certain recommendations to expectant mothers. These will be quoted tomorrow.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

A MURDEROUS ATTEMPT.

Accustomed, as he was, to violent death, Prof. Fordney momentarily recoiled at the sight of the lifeless body of John Martin, the back of his head blown away, lying face down in the center of the room.

"Well," Sergt. Hill brusquely remarked, picking up the shotgun lying in back of Martin, "can't say I'm surprised. He's been in financial difficulties for some time and has made many enemies. That bird who made the anonymous phone call to us is probably someone who knew Martin was going to do the job. We'll make the usual routine examination, though, eh, professor?"

Fordney nodded abstractly. His keen eyes had taken in the scene and his attention was directed toward a small, glistening object on the rug in the left hand corner of the large, bare room.

As he bent down to pick it up a bullet hit the wall just over his head! Hill sprang into action and was out of the house in a moment. The criminologist continued his examination seemingly unperturbed by the attempt to kill him. He looked closely at the small object, muttered something to himself, and put it in his pocket just as Hill reëntered the room with word that the man who had fired at him had made good his escape.

"How do you know it was a man?" queried the professor.

"By the footprints!" was the reply. "It puzzles me, though, why anyone would want to bump you off while investigating a case of suicide."

"But it isn't suicide—it's murder," answered Fordney.

Snow Motif Is New Invader of Kitchen Arts

Many Frothy Dainties Are Thrilling to Cooks.

CORRECTION.

In the recipes for hollandaise sauce and for mayonnaise cream sauce printed yesterday ½ cup evaporated milk and ½ cup water should be substituted for 1 cup evaporated milk.

BY MARY MEADE.

Although, until rather recently, Mr. Weather Man has been mighty stingy with the snow, he can't deprive us of all the fluffy snow dainties that we can conjure up in our kitchens. No, not referring this time to snow sherbet which rural children like to make by mixing fluffy clean snow with orange juice and sugar. Such a delicate dish must be eaten immediately or there'll be nothing left but water.

Instead, I've in mind much more substantial snow foods. And, by the by, when we're serving these snow pies, puddings, and snowball cakes, a fitting table decoration would be the funny little marshmallow snowmen for which I've already given you directions. Write me if you missed them.

But, first, to prepare the snowballs, tear an angel food cake into balls with two forks. Dip into a boiled or seven minute frosting and roll in lacy shreds of grated cocoanut. These balls are gayly effective when banked around a mold of Bavarian cream or a brick of ice cream.

Then there is:

SNOW PIE.

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
1 baked pie shell

Boil the sugar and water together for ten minutes. Dissolve the cornstarch in a little cold water, stir into the hot mixture, and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add the vanilla and lemon extract and allow the mixture to cool. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into the baked pie shell. Spread with a layer of whipped cream.

LEMON SNOW PUDDING.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg whites

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes, then dissolve it in the boiling water. Add the sugar and lemon juice and chill until it begins to congeal. Now add the salt to the egg whites and beat them until stiff. Beat this into the pudding until very light, put the mixture into the refrigerator, and chill until set. Lightly pile large spoonsful of the fluffy pudding in sherbet glasses and serve with the following custard sauce, flavored with vanilla:

CUSTARD SAUCE.

1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat the yolks slightly and add the sugar and salt. Stir in the hot liquids gradually. Place the custard in the top of a double boiler and cook until it begins to thicken, stirring constantly. Add the vanilla and allow the sauce to cool.

Engaged

MISS MARIAN SYKES
[White Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Greenleaf Sykes of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Marian Chandler, to Andrew Longacre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Van Duzer Longacre of Yonkers, N. Y. Miss Sykes attended Smith college, where she was a member of the class of 1933. Mr. Longacre was graduated from Wesleyan university in 1926 and was a member there of the Phi Nu Theta fraternity. He received his Ph. D. from Princeton last June and is now an instructor in science at the Phillips Exeter academy.

Newest Scarf Is Inspired by Fish Netting

BY RHEA SEEGER.

They've used everything else for inspiration when designing trivial things to wind around your throatline, but the newest arrivals are the height of a new something. They look like hunks of fish net, preferably the best patch right out of the middle of the loosely woven net used by sea-going fishermen out for a big haul. The mesh is so huge you simply can't say it's a mesh. It's one big square hole after another. You can find them in gorgeous raw colors, rusty red, baltic blue, golden yellow and brilliant greens.

You'll never know just how swanky they are till you've knotted one casually under your curls at the back. They are worn with sweaters, wool blouses, tailored silks and all street or spectator sports clothes.

There's a fresh deluge of matching neck scarfs and small skull cap hats, frightfully dizzy things, of all patterns and plaids. They're even more eye-filling than the first affairs that you grabbed before Christmas. The hats are especially smart, made to fit supersmoothly. Each one is different, and some go in for mild topknots and scanty trimmings, arranged by some thoughtful person so that these rather casual knitted novelties can top a street suit with charming propriety.

Look for the heart warming checks and plaids, in smooth and rough wools. If you shop sufficiently you can find gauntlet gloves to match and thus evolve a very different outfit with the aid of a dark suit or wool dress. The newest combines are made of soft wool—velveteen and velvet have vanished—for these wool duets and trios can be worn well into spring. Clear white scarfs and hats will do grand things for a black or navy blue costume, and some very fetching models in either berets or pillbox and brimmed affairs are available for extremely modest sums.

Many on Vacations in Warmer Climes.

In warmer climes are many who feel the need of vacations and a change after the busy holidays. The young John V. Farwells have motored to Virginia to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Skinner Willing. . . . California bound are the J. Roland Histeds of Lake Forest with a stopover in Phoenix. Mr. Histed will return in a few weeks but Mrs. Histed will remain away several weeks longer. . . . Mrs. Gorton Fauntleroy and Mrs. H. Cameron Forster of Geneva have left for New York to sail for Mexico, where they plan to spend a month. . . . Two other Genevans will leave today for a motor trip to St. Petersburg, Fla., Mrs. George E. Michael and Mrs. Lawrence R. Davis. Mrs. Michael will be away about a month but Mrs. Davis, who is taking her two small sons, Bob and Pat, with her, plans to spend the rest of the winter where they can enjoy the southern sun.

Mrs. Harrison Manierre has gone away from home but not to a warmer climate, for she has gone abroad and expects to divide her time between Switzerland and Paris, returning home in the spring.

Also at home after a holiday visit with relatives are the Conway H. Olmsteds, who were in Pennsylvania with her parents.

The Vernon D. Beattys and their son, Robert, are at home after a six weeks' stay on a ranch in Bonita, Ariz.

Herndon's Collection on Youth of Lincoln Sold to Gabriel Wells

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The collection of writings by and about Abraham Lincoln formed by his lifelong friend and law partner, William H. Herndon, comprising nearly 2,500 items, practically unexamined by historians, has been acquired by Gabriel Wells, author and American collector.

"This material will necessitate rewriting the biography of Lincoln," Mr. Wells said in announcing the acquisition.

This vast amount of information about Lincoln—his childhood, early manhood, life in Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois, his work in the courts of Illinois, his activities in the federal courts and in congress and on the circuit up to his departure in February, 1861—has been delivered to Mr. Wells' office in the same safe in which it had been kept for years.

Mr. Wells acquired the collection from G. A. Baker & Co., who purchased it from the estate of Jesse W. Weik, literary assistant and executor of William H. Herndon. Upon the death of Lincoln, Herndon acquired the manuscripts and material of the law office in Springfield.

One outstanding sentimental item in the collection is part of Lincoln's homemade arithmetic.

Gentleman's Tip on Skin Care: Cold Water, Complexion Brush

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A certain gentleman of my acquaintance has a quality and color of complexion that any deb might envy. Clear, fine grained, with a reality flush of color underneath is the complexion.

Ordinarily, we do not query men on the how and wherefore of their good complexions. But this one tells me, blushing modestly at the good complexion charge, that the only thing he can lay it to is a scrubbing brush habit he's been working at for years. This, with the morning shower and not a cold shower, either.

He admits that he and cold water are not inclined to be friendly at all. But he started in ten or twelve years ago on the premise that since he couldn't take his water cold, he'd have to do something else to stir up the circulation. The brush seemed the answer. He began with a fairly mild bath brush, kept on changing until today he tells me he uses a brush that might do for floor scrubbing. So stiff and vigorous are the bristles.

It's a good tip for those who can't take the water cold. The object of the cold water is to stir up the circulation and if you can get it with a good scrubbing brush, it is just as effective.

This business of tubbing and scrubbing is becoming quite the most important feature of a charming girl's day. It always was, as a matter of fact, but bathing wasn't for Miss or Mrs. Average the luxurious thing it is become today. Bath salts, oils, and dusting powders and so on are contributions that only the affluent of earlier generations could afford. But before the luxuries of the tub, there is that scrubbing business that turns girl or woman out the charmingly clean dear that wins them repeat dances and compliments no end; also the poise one earns for herself when she knows all is sweet and right with herself.

It seems kinda silly talking the daily bath, with tubs the commonplace things they are and the daily tubbing habit an accepted daily duty. But women are accused of not being as conscientious daily bath addicts as men, which is a charge one does not like to hear against the sex.

Ricardo Cortez Weds Mrs. Christine Lee in Ceremony at Phœnix

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 8.—(AP)—A five months' romance led to the marriage of Ricardo Cortez, motion picture star, and Mrs. Christine Lee, New York society woman.

Whisked to the license bureau in the motor car of Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Maricopa county, who had made all arrangements for the ceremony upon the couple's arrival here yesterday, Cortez gave his age as 33 and Mrs. Lee said she is 27.

The setting for the double ring ceremony, which was read by Justice of the Peace, Nat T. McKee, was a flower bedecked room in a desert hotel on the outskirts of Phoenix.

As the couple entered the room for the ceremony, Cortez suddenly discovered he had forgotten his ring. He dashed to his room, returned breathless a few moments later and the ceremony was resumed.

Cortez said plans for the honeymoon would have to be delayed temporarily on account of his work.

score! The most ardent of the Puccini fans would have been willing to put in an extra cheer.

LIKE AN OPENING

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

If one did not know that last night was not the opening of the opera season one might well have thought so, for the Civic Opera house was filled nigh unto overflowing and the major part of the audience was in formal dress, especially that part of it seated in the boxes and main floor. The younger generation was there in almost as large number as its parents, and it was equally as enthusiastic.

The George Woodruffs were hosts in their box to the Clifford Caldwells, Mrs. Martha Bauer, Frank Black, and Nathan Wendell. Mrs. Woodruff was chic in a red and black crêpe dress—skirt of black and a cape-sleeved blouse of cerise banded with silver fox. Mrs. Caldwell wore flame crêpe and Mrs. Bauer added a short ermine cape over her royal blue frock.

Mrs. Hayden B. Harris and Mrs. John S. Coonley were hostesses to parties of ladies. With Mrs. Harris were Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Charles W. McNear, Mrs. Cary Wood Thomas and her daughter, Miss Hester Ann Thomas, and Miss Stella Webber. With Mrs. Coonley were Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mrs. Herbert Kennedy, and Mrs. Thomas Underwood. Mrs. Madlener, wearing a brilliant tiara with her black crêpe dress, joined her brothers-in-law, Otto and William Madlener, in the bar during the intermission. Otto Madlener was host in a box to his brother, William, the Prince and Princess Nicholas Galitzine, Miss Ruth Elting, and Miss Louise Brewer.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and her daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank, very attractive in Irish green satin, arrived a bit late and lamented the fact greatly as they took their places in Mrs. Laurent Novikoff's box. Also with Mrs. Novikoff were Dr. Hans Deutsch and Parker Wheatley.

Show Murals by Indians at Preview Tea

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Between the colorful murals done by Indians and the stunning lipstick red bagheera blouse worn by Mrs. James Waller Marshall, the interior decorating galleries at Field's fairly radiated good cheer yesterday afternoon despite the sullen skies without.

The occasion was a private preview of the murals done by the Hopi, Pueblo, and Navajo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona, brought to Chicago through the efforts of Mrs. Marshall and Roy H. Robinson.

"Velena is one of the best of the young Indian painters," explained Mr. Robinson as he discussed the various murals. "As the result of his painting, however, he is no longer allowed to live with his pueblo. The chiefs, his elders, have taken exception to his painting . . . they say he has given away some of their tribal secrets, so they no longer allow him to live with them."

The murals represent the first work of the Indians on canvas. For a dozen years they have done small water colors, but never before have they attempted the use of oil on canvas. Much credit for what they have accomplished must go to Olive Rush, mural painter, who has lived in Santa Fe among the Pueblo, Hopi, and Navajo tribes.

Beyond the galleries yesterday in an adjoining room a tea table was the center of interest for those who had already reviewed the exhibit. It was lovely spread with a Venetian lace cloth and decorated with a bowl of ranunkulas, a flower very much like the carnation, that were shipped from California for the occasion.

Mrs. J. Stewart Harvey, wearing a red woolen dress with epaulets of black chinchilla; Mrs. C. Warner Williams, in a wine velvet dress and black beret, and Mrs. Norman C. Pritchard, who wore a swagger leopard coat over her black silk dress most of the afternoon, took turns presiding at the tea and coffee urns.

Among the guests were Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr., Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Richard J. Barr, and Mrs. Albion S. Headburg.

BRITISH PLEASED BY FRENCH ARMS OFFER TO HITLER

Paris' Note to Berlin Wins Praise.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Prime Minister MacDonald returned to London today from his country home at Lossiemouth and immediately plunged into work. Within an hour of his arrival he was visited by J. H. Thomas, minister for dominions, and his closest associate in the cabinet.

Thomas conferred with the prime minister for more than an hour. He was followed by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, who made a long and detailed report to him on his disarmament conversations in Paris with Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, and in Rome with Premier Mussolini.

Simon's Report Optimistic.

What Simon told MacDonald has not been divulged, but it was learned his report was optimistic and that both he and the prime minister are much encouraged about the improved situation in Europe.

Simon reported that Mussolini has no intention of leaving the league of nations, but intends after the disarmament question is settled one way or another to propose certain changes in its constitution which will strengthen it and make it more effective.

On disarmament the British foreign chief feels a great advance has been made due to the last French memorandum to Germany. In this memorandum France agrees upon an immediate beginning of disarmament and an immediate increase in German effectives, but not a German increase in heavy armaments. France also offers to scrap half its own air force at once.

Offer Called Sincere.

This offer, although the French proposal has not yet been officially published, is a real one, British circles believe, and does not merely portend the scrapping of obsolete material, of which France has a large quantity. It is described here as being a real approach to disarmament and as bearing all the evidences of good faith.

On Wednesday the disarmament committee of the cabinet will meet to hear Simon's report. On Saturday the foreign secretary expects to leave for Geneva to attend the opening session of the league council on Monday. It has not yet been settled whether he will attend the meeting of the steering committee [bureau] of the disarmament conference which is expected to convene on Jan. 21. This meeting may be postponed, as the actual call has not yet been sent out by Arthur Henderson, president of the conference.

The date for convening the committee may be decided when Simon meets Henderson tomorrow.

140 Bombings Stir Austria to Vigorous War on Nazis

VIENNA, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss announced today a new campaign for "the ruthless suppression" of Nazi terrorism and propaganda.

The cabinet authorized immediate reinforcements for the Fascist auxiliary police and issued a proclamation to the people urging "all loyal Austrians" to coöperate with police n preventng terrorism and tracking down terrorists.

In this connection the government revealed there have been more than 140 bombings in various parts of Austria since Jan. 1.

Blasts Rock City Hall.

This was sensational news to the average citizen since newpapers, under rigid censorship, were permitted to make public scarcely a dozen of these bombings at the time they happened.

While the government "bomb list" was being drawn up three more exploded in the Vienna city hall and another was reported at St. Veit, Carinthia.

The government's communique did not specifically mention the death penalty provided for in a martial law decree which was proclaimed Nov. 10.

The list of bombings showed that property damage in almost every case was well over 200 schillings [currently about $34].

Blow Up Electric Lines.

This detail was important in view of a communique issued in December to the effect that bombings involving more than 200 schillings damage would be subject to the martial provisions.

The blowing up of several electric lines—also punishable by death if the martial law decree is enforced—was also listed.

Besides the bombings, the communique listed attacks with tear gas bombs in many shops and restaurants, the hoisting of Nazi swastika banners from factory chimneys and the like, the lighting of many swastikas on hillsides, and the painting Hitler slogans and emblems on hundreds of buildings—all since Jan. 1.

The Vienna public learned with particular surprise that a bomb only yesterday wrecked an empty car of the Vienna municipal railway.

"Patience at an End."

The communique pointed out that many of these bombings resulted in nervous shocks to persons, as well as property damage, and that in some cases lives were endangered.

"The patience of the Austrian government now is at an end," the manifesto asserted.

The proclamation was posted throughout the nation. It told the people that the government heretofore has been using only defensive tactics against Hitlerites, but that instead of appreciating this the Nazis launched new bombings, worse than the others, and new propaganda campaigns.

The government, the communique added, is therefore determined to proceed "ruthlessly" and "once and for all put an end to this terrorism."

ROXY RESIGNS; BUDGET DISPUTE HINTED BY HIM

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Roxy quit today. J. R. McDonough, general manager of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation and president of Radio City Theaters, Incorporated, announced Roxy's resignation as manager of the Radio City music hall.

McDonough made no comment other than to say that S. L. Rothafel—he's Roxy—had resigned effective Feb. 14.

There were reports, however, that the resignation was the result of a controversy brought on because Roxy did not keep within the budget set by the supervisory committee. Roxy will rest in Florida.

"No details," said Roxy. "But I can say this—I had a definite idealism and I couldn't go back on what I believe. I had the finest staff in the world. I cannot and will not betray them. I'm a tired man. I couldn't stand in very much longer."

McDonough said Leon Leonidoff, "who has produced the stage shows before and during Mr. Rothafel's term as manager, continues at his post." "Roxy," he said, "did not enter the active management of the theater until last April.

"He had previously produced the all-stage entertainment which opened the theater in December, 1932, and then was seized with an illness from which he did not recover for several months."

GERMAN POLICE DISPERSE CROWDS AT CHURCH DOORS

Pastors Roar Defiance at Nazi Dictatorship.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—"This is the worst crisis the Evangelical church has suffered since the days of the Thirty Year's war," the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, head of the opposition to the Nazi dictatorship of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, shouted tonight.

The Rev. Mr. Niemoeller, leader of the Pastors' Emergency federation, addressed five large protest rallies in the Protestant church war.

Police Disperse Crowds.

Meanwhile, police stationed themselves outside of the meeting places and ordered church members to disperse because the rallies were overcrowded.

Two more meetings were called by the defiant pastors. They were scheduled to be held in former Kaiser Wilhelm's cathedral and the historical Nicolaikirche, but when the crowds arrived the doors were bolted and barred.

Word was passed that the meeting would take place at the Philharmonie. The crowds rushed there only to find the doors blocked by police, who ordered them to return to their homes.

The ministry of propaganda, when queried on the church revolt, announced that the government had nothing to do with religious matters. Dr. Mueller's offices, however, admitted that the police force had been summoned to disband the crowds at the request of the church ministry.

Mueller Postpones Reply.

It was asserted in semi-official quarters that Bishop Mueller would postpone his reply to the defiant Protestants until Sunday. It was announced that he was out of the city.

At all pastors' meetings tonight attacks were concentrated on Dr. Mueller for "his unjustifiable violation of the freedom of conscience and duties of Evangelical pastors."

The defiant declarations of the Pastors' Emergency federation were read from more than 1,500 pulpits throughout the reich.

"Before God and this Christian congregation," the pastors read, "we protest against the reichsbishop's resort to force. His contradictory attitude has made it impossible to retain confidence in him. We must obey God before man."

Bishop Mueller, in setting himself up as church dictator last Saturday, issued regulations providing for the dismissal of pastors and disciplinary action against officers "who misuse the church service for purposes of political discussion."

BYRD FLAGSHIP MAKES 142 MILES IN FOG ON 15TH DAY WITHOUT SUN

ABOARD ADMIRAL BYRD'S FLAGSHIP EN ROUTE TO LITTLE AMERICA, Jan. 8.—Via Mackay Radio.—(AP)—Through a thick fog the flagship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition today crept slowly toward its destination.

"Doesn't the sun ever shine around here?" asked Capt. Verleger—who had predicted a sunny and windless voyage—as the inclement weather continued for the 15th day. Some comfort was found, however, in the fact that the vast number of huge icebergs sighted in these waters 12 days ago had vanished. The ship had made 142 miles since noon yesterday.

In an attempt to trace ocean currents in this vicinity the scientific staff started to set adrift several thousand bottles containing a blank form to be filled out by the finder. Meanwhile, the sudden death of Knake Pete, a red rooster, marked the complete extinction of the first Antarctic poultry farm. Of the expedition's livestock only the three cows and Iceberg, the bull calf born en route, survive.

MYTHICAL TALE OF BEING ROBBER BARES ROMANCE

Woodlawn police, investigating a crime mystery, uncovered a romance last night, much to the ultimate relief of Charles Listner, 27 years old, 642 North Dearborn street.

Listner, who described himself as a Northwestern university graduate and a one-time heir to a $14,000 fortune, started the mystery himself early yesterday when he walked up to Policeman James Capparelli at 63d street and Stony Island avenue. He handed Capparelli a revolver.

"Here, take this," he commanded the startled policeman. "I'm a robber. I held up men on Jan. 2, 3, 4 and 5. My conscience is bothering me and I want to be locked up."

Policeman Capparelli obliged, and Listner spent the night in a cell. Then Detectives Edward Nealon and James Deneen investigated his robbery story and found it false.

Listner broke down and admitted his story was a hoax. That ended the crime mystery and introduced the romance.

A year ago, Listner related, his parents died and left him $14,000, which he quickly dissipated, "living high, wide, and handsome." He met a girl, Miss Ethel Inks, 24 years old, 5113 Hutchinson avenue, with whom he fell in love. They became engaged. They planned to marry next month, Listner said. These plans were shattered shortly afterward, he continued, when he lost his job.

"I just couldn't bear to tell Miss Inks that I had no position, and therefore couldn't marry her," said Listner.

"What's that got to do with your holdup story?" asked a policeman.

"Well, I figured if I got myself arrested and sent to jail I wouldn't have to tell her I couldn't marry her," replied Listner.

Police took care of this problem right away. They called Miss Inks to the station, where she verified Listner's story of their contemplated marriage. Moreover, she promised that she'd still marry him next month, job or no job.

COOK GRANTED SEVERANCE IN RACKET TRIAL

The questioning of veniremen continued yesterday with little progress in the cleaning and dyeing racket conspiracy case before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in the Criminal court. One panel of jurymen had been tentatively agreed upon at the end of the session. The number of defendants was reduced from nineteen to eighteen when a severance was granted Mortimer Cook, business agent of the Laundry Wagon Drivers' union, who has heart disease. Among the other defendants are Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, economist and former director of the Cleaners and Dyers' institute.

Into the SEWER . . . $50,000 worth of drugs

Rather than let stale drugs get into your prescriptions, WALGREEN'S ACTUALLY THREW AWAY more than $50,000 worth in 1932-3!

In 1932-3 Walgreen's dumped over $50,000 worth of drugs into the sewer. They had lost their freshness and potency. Few would have done harm in a prescription. But none would have done the good intended.

A unique system of dating and checking perishable drugs protects the life and well-being of our customers and our own good name.

YOU know it when your grocer sells you stale bread. But you probably don't know which drugs get stale or how to "spot" them in a prescription.

We consider it our business to see that you don't get any stale drugs.

We have a unique and rigid system of control to make sure that every perishable drug in a Walgreen prescription is absolutely fresh. Here's how it works:

Laboratory Testing

We test drugs for freshness before they go to any of our stores in the first place. We spend thousands of dollars every year on this work in our analytical laboratories.

Dated Drugs

We also put the date on every container of those drugs that are liable to deteriorate, so that our pharmacists can see at a glance how old any such drug is. Then our supervisors make regular inspections of stock and reject drugs before they have stood on the shelf of any of our stores long enough to lose their potency or stability.

Some of these discarded drugs can be turned to other uses. The rest we deliberately throw away. In the last two years we have dumped more than $50,000 worth of stale drugs into the sewer.*

A Safeguard for Walgreen Customers

Fifty thousand dollars is a lot of money. But we gladly let it go rather than risk the life or well-being of our customers, or our own reputation as responsible pharmacists. "Saving at Walgreen's" is only one of many good reasons for trading at our stores.

* This incident in Walgreen history and all others reported in our advertising announcements are matters of record. Substantiating facts will be sent anyone interested.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS TO OPEN SEASON APRIL 17

ALL STAR GAME TO BE PLAYED IN N. Y. JULY 10

Sox Open at Home; Cubs at Cincinnati.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Mickey Cochrane will do his first major league managing at Comiskey park on April 17, when he brings his Detroit Tigers here to open the season. On the same day the new manager of the Cincinnati Reds, thus far not named, will be seeking to repulse the Chicago Cubs down in Cincinnati. And some time later, on July 10, to be exact, Al Simmons, Chuck Klein, and maybe a few other Chicago players will be in New York playing in the second annual all star game.

These items, with others, were revealed yesterday after President William Harridge of the American league and President John Heydler of the National league met in New York and agreed upon the first schedule in major league history which provided a quota of Sunday games in all big league cities.

Senators Start Early.

There will be one game on Monday, April 16. The Washington Senators will meet the Boston Red Sox at Washington, where it is planned to invite President Roosevelt to throw out one of the new uniform balls to get business under way. The first ball, of course, will not see any service. The one which Mr. Roosevelt threw out in the world series never got past Heinie Manush, who was standing right in front of the official box to see that it didn't get into play. It is probable that the first uniform ball will meet a similar fate, even though autograph fans have made ball players a little weary of the souvenir idea.

The openers on April 17, with Boston remaining in Washington, will be: New York Yankees at Philadelphia, Detroit Tigers at Chicago, St. Louis Browns at Cleveland, Boston Braves at Brooklyn, Philadelphia Phillies at New York, Pittsburgh Pirates at St. Louis, and Chicago Cubs at Cincinnati.

No More Conflicts.

The repeal of the Pennsylvania blue laws, as applied to baseball, made it possible for the schedule makers to map a perfectly balanced calendar for the first time, with each team drawing twelve Sunday dates at home. The only effect of this in Chicago was the cutting down of the Pittsburgh Pirates' Sabbath leaps into Chicago, a circumstance which each year caused two conflicts, giving Chicago games at both major league parks two Sundays a summer.

The original schedule, of course, provides for the convenient playing of the all star game. When the plan was originated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the Game of the Century last July 6 one of the most difficult phases of the planning was to find a date which would cause the fewest cancellations and the minimum of travel jumps. The schedule problem was made easy this year by booking all teams for double headers on July 12.

The first all-star game, as most fans throughout America know, was sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, the idea having been presented by this newspaper for the combined purpose of giving World's Fair visitors an outstanding baseball spectacle and to launch a fund for the home for the old time ball players.

Expenses for the game were underwritten by THE TRIBUNE, including the transportation and sustenance of every one connected with the enterprise, the expenses to be paid without assistance from baseball coffers in the event of bad weather or elements that might have marred the day. The contest, however, was played under ideal weather conditions, before a capacity crowd at Comiskey park.

Close Week Earlier.

The brilliance of the spectacle caused other newspapers in major league cities to start clamoring for the privilege of perpetuating THE TRIBUNE idea. One of New York's largest dailies was especially insistent that it should be granted authority to sponsor the second annual all-star game. At the major meetings here last month, however, the baseball magnates, impressed by the appeal of the Game of the Century and the smoothness with which all details were carried out, decided it should be baseball's show exclusively, and accordingly the July 10 game will be conducted as an inter-league affair.

While it has been decided to hold the second annual game at New York and rotate the attraction from year to year, it has not been decided whether this year's game will be played at the Yankee stadium or the Polo grounds. The site of the original all-star game was decided by the tossing of a coin.

The season will close Sept. 30, cutting a week off last year's arrangement, when the season opened April 12 and closed Oct. 1.

HAWKEYE TEAM RALLIES TO BEAT BADGER QUINTET

Wisconsin's Lead Is Short Lived.

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The undefeated University of Iowa basketball team put on a second half spurt to overcome a short lived Wisconsin lead here tonight and win, 32 to 26, before a record Big Ten crowd, estimated at 11,000.

The Hawkeyes led throughout the first half of the game, which ended 19 to 13, but the Badgers put on a second period rally that netted them nine points and the lead before the Iowans could score.

Trailing by 22 to 19 with five minutes of the last half gone, Coach Rollie Williams' men put on a rally that stretched their lead to 30 to 23 before the visitors could count again from the field. In the final moments the Hawkeyes played a slow, stalling game, which found them protecting their margin of victory to the end.

Moffitt Leads Hawkeyes.

Howard Moffitt, forward, was the leader in the Iowa offense with 10 points, but Johnny Barko and Howard Bastian were close behind him with nine and eight, respectively. The play of Johnny Grim and Ben Selzer, star guards, continued to be a big factor, as they held the Badgers to long shots and led the Iowa attack with their floor game.

Bobby Poser, Badger guard, was the best performer with the losers, with nine points to his credit, mostly on long distance shots.

The crowd broke the attendance record in the conference, which was set at Ohio State several years ago. Every available bit of space was filled and spectators massed around the court. The gates were closed 20 minutes before the game time. The biggest previous crowd here was the 9,500 which saw Iowa beat Ohio State a year ago.

MICHIGAN, 34; CHICAGO, 18

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Michigan showed a reversal of form by beating Chicago 34 to 18 in a Western conference basketball game here tonight. The Wolverines held a 19 to 3 lead at half time and continued to pull ahead until midway in the last half, when, with his team in front, 30 to 8, Coach Franklin Cappon started in his substitutes.

Michigan's shooting, erratic when it lost to Indiana Saturday, was accurate tonight. Allen, Jablonski, and Capt. Petoskey were hitting the basket from all angles. Allen scored 11 points and Petoskey 9. At the same time Michigan showed a defense that gave the Maroons few unobstructed shots, especially in the first half. Michigan was following in its shoots well, while Chicago made few attempts to take the ball off the backboard until given instructions between halves.

Peterson, with a field goal and four free throws, was the scoring leader of the Maroons. Bob Pyle and Bill Haarlow starred in floor work after the visitors had come to life in the second half.

MAC SMITH'S 280 WINS GOLF TITLE AT LOS ANGELES

Veteran Shoots a 68 on Final Round.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Macdonald Smith today won the Los Angeles open golf championship for the fourth time in the nine years' life of the event.

The silent Scot from Carnoustie, who will be 50 years old in two months, finished with sensational rounds of 69 and 68 to round out a 72 hole count of 280, even par for the distance over the difficult championship course of the Los Angeles Country club.

Has His Eyes on Greens.

Smith carried his years lightly as he hit green after green with rifle shot approaches and knocked in putts from all distances. He has been a competitor in golf in the United States for nearly a quarter of a century, but there was no youngster on his heels today who could come within many strokes of his score.

The winner received $1,450. The pros were playing for a $5,000 guarantee, but a big and enthusiastic gallery on the last day brought the total to several hundred dollars more.

Second place will remain in doubt until tomorrow. George von Elm and Willie Hunter were stopped by darkness after playing 16 holes of the fourth round. If Von Elm can play the last two holes in par fours, his 72 hole score will be 287 and he will slip a stroke under Bill Mehlhorn to take second place. Hunter has two fours to register 288 and go into a tie for third place.

With the returns incomplete, Willie Goggin of San Francisco and John Revolta of Milwaukee were tied for third with 289's, but there was a good chance that Von Elm and Hunter will intertere with this ranking tomorrow.

Dutra Takes a Nine.

Olin Dutra of Santa Monica, who led the brilliant field for three rounds, was in a three-way tie for fifth for the time being with scores of 290. Dutra started his fourth round with 211, leading by a stroke. He ran into one of the most distressing breaks in any golf competition on the seventh hole when he used up nine strokes on a par three hole.

His tee shot caught a trap and his recovery carried into heavy brush, leaving an unplayable lie and a penalty of two strokes. Undismayed, the big pro fired bravely for the green, but his ball struck a spectator and bounded the other way, leaving him five and still not on the green. His pitch did not reach the putting surface. Finally on in seven, he took two putts for a nine. Out in 44 strokes, he kept playing on the return journey and toured the last nine holes in a par 35 for a 79 and a 72 hole score of 290.

Except for the winner's share of the purse, no disposition of the prize money was made tonight. The other 24 prizes will be decided tomorrow after the playoff.

STONEHOUSE IS VICTOR

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Shooting a careful, steady game, Ralph Stonehouse of Indianapolis today won the Miami Open Golf championship.

The diminutive pro, who already holds the Eastern Indiana and the Tri-State titles, defeated Willie Dow, 48 year old Miami Scot, by a four stroke margin in an 18 hole playoff after tying at 279 to lead the field at the end of the regular 72 hole tournament yesterday.

Stonehouse carded a 36, one over par, on the outgoing nine, and shot the return side in a regulation 35 for a 71.

Dow, who seldom studied a shot and was erratic around the greens, was out in 38, one over par, and was only one stroke better on the incoming nine to post a 75. Quick stroking cost him a number of short putts.

The title alone was at stake today, the players having decided to split the first prize of $500 and the second place money of $350 for a purse of $425 each.

Talking It Over

OFFICIALS of the Amateur Athletic union are trying to interest Conrad M. Jennings, Marquette athletic director, in bringing the national track meet to Milwaukee next summer. . . . The hitch is a $10,000 guarantee. . . . Due chiefly to the success of Ralph Metcalfe, Milwaukee has become track minded. . . . More than 8,000 turned out for the central intercollegiate games there last June. . . . Nate Lewis, matchmaker at Chicago Stadium, was born in Elkhart, Ind., but nobody knows how many years ago. . . . Frank Lane, basketball official and assistant to Larry MacPhail of the Cincinnati Reds, says that Adolph Gorychka, Marquette forward, is the best ball handler he has seen. . . . Jack Meagher of Rice institute, who learned football at Notre Dame, and Madison Bell of Texas A. & M., who got his start at Centre college, are said to be the leading candidates for the head coaching job at the University of Texas. . . . Three of the five regulars on the Ohio State basketball team were in the starting football lineup. . . . They are Max Padlow, Ted Rosequist, and Capt. Conrad. . . . Padlow and Bobby Colburn, the Buckeye forwards, were teammates on the Dayton, O., Stivers High school five which won the state title three consecutive years. . . . Johnny Fischer, medalist in the national amateur golf tournament last year, may not return to the University of Michigan next semester. . . . He has been named on the Walker cup team. . . .

King's Sister Lena Halts Schmeling Go

Inability of representatives of King Levinsky and Max Schmeling to agree on financial terms yesterday caused concellation of their proposed bout at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 16.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, arrived during the morning to sign for 40 per cent of the gate receipts. Mrs. Lena Levy, sister-manager of Levinsky, demanded 30 per cent and inasmuch as the Stadium could pay only 60 for the match both were asked to take a cut of five per cent.

Neither would take less than a two and a half per cent reduction, Jacobs going down to 37½ and Mrs. Levy to 27½ so Schmeling's manager departed on a midnight train for Philadelphia where he expects to sign for a 15 round contest with Steve Hamas on Feb. 14.

May Change Plans.

Jacobs before leaving advised Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the Stadium that if Levinsky accepts the offer of 22½ per cent he should be advised by telegram upon his arrival at Philadelphia. In that event he will sign for the Chicago match.

After the Illinois Athletic commission approved the Stadium's application on the date and Chairman Joe Triner agreed to Jacobs' demand that the match must be 15 rounds, Joe Foley of the Stadium and Matchmaker

PURPLE'S EARLY SPURT DEFEATS GOPHERS 33-26

Fisher's Long Baskets Feature Attack.

Northwestern's basketball team showed a reversal of recent form by defeating Minnesota, 33 to 26, at Patten gymnasium last night. The game marked the Wildcat's first Big Ten win and its third victory in eight starts this season.

Only a brilliant first period in which they piled up a topheavy margin of 25 to 19, enabled the Wildcats to beat out the Gophers. In the last half the visitors flashed an attack that threatened to erase Northwestern's advantage.

In the first period the Wildcats connected repeatedly with long shots, an attack which the Gophers were unable to combat. In the second stanza the situation was reversed, with the Gophers flashing a fast breaking offense that repeatedly penetrated Northwestern's defense, and the closing minutes of the game found the men from the north gradually whittling away at the Wildcats' lead.

Cats Score on Long Shots.

Considerable credit for the Wildcats' victory is due to Lyle Fisher, lanky center, whose nine points gave him high scoring honors for the evening. Brewer and Culver, Northwestern's co-captains, each scored eight points.

Northwestern jumped into an early lead on field goals by Kopecky and Culver, the latter sinking two long shots from near midfloor to run the count to 6 points before Gordon Norman dropped in a pair of free throws for Minnesota's first points.

This was the signal for another Wildcat scoring spree, which didn't end until 10 points had been hung up. Fisher started the spurt with a tip in shot and Brewer added two more points when he made good two free throws on Kane's foul. He then pitched in two field goals from the side of the court which were followed by a long field goal by Fisher which ran the count to 16 to 2.

Shoots with One Hand.

Norman got his third free throw of the half at this point which were the lone points for the Gophers and the half was well along at this juncture. Sochacki broke loose and tossed in a field goal which was followed by a free throw by Roscoe who shoots with one hand. Ganske connected with three field goals from near mid-court to run the count to 25 to 9 at half time.

The Gophers were far from a beaten outfit and in the first eight minutes of the second half ran up 10 points before the surprised Wildcats could score. Roscoe and Svendsen each scored twice from the field and Norman and Sochacki sank free throws to trim Northwestern's lead to 25 to 19.

The Wildcats then unlimbered their long scoring attack, running the count to 32 to 19. Norman followed with a push in shot and Fisher sank his third field goal of the evening. Another Minnesota spurt which accounted for 6 points on field goals by Roscoe, Sochacki, and Aiken was ended by the final gun.

CHICAGO CUBS' OFFICERS UP FOR VOTE TOMORROW

The Chicago Cubs tomorrow will hold their annual meeting for the election of officers, with the indication that there will be no changes in the slate made public several weeks ago.

Under the plans reaffirmed last night P. K. Wrigley will be reelected chairman of the board; William M. Walker will become the new president, succeeding the late William L. Veeck; John O. Seys will be elevated from the second to the first vice presidency; Boots Weber will be made the new treasurer; Miss Margaret Donahue will continue as secretary, and Bob Lewis as traveling secretary.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BOYS' CLUB MOVEMENT.

THE Chicago Athletic association, we are informed, is having a Boys' club entertainment at the clubhouse Friday night. That is, the entertainment will be furnished by boys and girls from poorer neighborhoods, present nucleus of an organization which its sponsors hope will develop into a national body ranking with the 4-H clubs of farm boys and girls.

Before the Cherry Circle members and their children [children being especially invited] also will appear the Boys' club band, which won first place in a contest at A Century of Progress and which has received marked encouragement from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Significant, perhaps, is the fact, that no entertainment of this kind ever before has been presented at the C. A. A. Motivating those among the members who secured the date, no doubt, is the hope that interest will be developed which will elicit substantial interest and financial support for the project.

These Boys' clubs are based on a desire to help boys in unfavorable environment, or who otherwise might form undesirable connections, to become good citizens. Furnishing opportunities to become useful workers, rather than petty criminals, is one direct object. The whole purpose is too long for this space, but good citizenship covers the ground pretty thoroughly. Naturally, sports and recreation must figure in such a program.

Among those active in getting the subject before the C. A. A. are David B. Gann, Everett C. Brown, both of whom are former C. A. A. presidents, and A. C. Castle. Presence of Mr. Brown, who recently went on the board of the Boys' clubs, is noteworthy because of his past record in "big time" athletics.

Years ago he was president of the National A. A. U., Central A. A. U., member of the Olympic games committee, president of his club during an athletic regime, and chairman of its athletic committee. Finally, he became interested in constructive work for the masses, rather than highly specialized performers, developed in college and later competing under colors of various athletic clubs.

Mr. Brown then became president of the Public Schools Athletic league of Chicago, which had jurisdiction over activities of 450,000 youngsters. About 10 or 12 years ago he was one of the founders of the 4-H movement, which grew from a membership of 10,000 boys and girls until it now has 948,000 on the rolls in these farm boys' and girls' clubs.

In this growth of a rural body to such proportions, many persons think city boys and girls, perhaps needing such influence even more, have been neglected. It is with a view to remedying this oversight that C. A. A. members are to be acquainted with the Boys' clubs movement and the opportunities for fostering it.

84 ROMME CLUB MEMBERS SEEK SILVER SKATES

Conroy Chief Hope to Win in Senior Division.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Romme Skating club, with 84 entries in the seventeenth annual Silver Skates Derbies, which are scheduled this week-end at Garfield park, expects to make a determined bid for the Walter Eckersall Memorial team trophy. If all of the members of the Romme club were eligible there might be no question about the title, for Eleanor Theil, Mabel Swanson, and Eddie Schroeder are former champions in the senior divisions. Consequently they cannot compete, but their teammates are receiving the benefit of their coaching in preparing for the meet.

Art Conroy, Romme's ace in the men's senior division, already has won titles in two classes—the junior and intermediate. Violet Christenson, who finished second in the girls' junior division last year, will compete again in the same class. Melvin Barnett, the only colored star, won the class C championship in the recent indoor meet at the Coliseum. He formerly skated for Tilden Tech, where he was coached by Early W. Solem, who also is coach of the Romme club.

Other Teams Enter.

Other team entries received in the final batch of mail are: Emmet playground, Gustave J. Elste, instructor; Ryerson playground, H. M. O'Malley; Kohn playground, William J. Callahan; Henry Playground Skating club, John A. Mock; Mozart playground, John Gotz; Waters playground, G. C. Mueller; Delano playground, George H. Mummert; McCormick playground, John Nemec; Agassiz playground, P. A. Harris; Barrett Municipal playground, H. A. Smith, and the Carl Stockholm Athletic club.

The interest which these men, who direct the sports activities at these playgrounds, have in skating is reflected in their pupils. Annually from the playgrounds and parks comes a crop of contestants, many unheralded, who spring to prominence, and then carry on in the advanced age classes. These youngsters, who make up the bulk of entries in the Boys' Midget, Juvenile and Junior classes and the Girls' Junior class, receive their first training from this group of instructors and, with experience added to their fundamental teachings, help make Chicago the skating capital of the central states.

Shift Seems Likely.

Warm weather for the last ten days practically precludes holding this year's Silver Skates Derbies at the Garfield park lagoon. However, the tournament can be shifted to a playground or any location where skating is done on a flooded surface. Less time is needed to freeze such a rink. As a result, if there is a freezing temperature for two days prior to the meet, the Derbies can be held. Announcement of a change in location, if there is a change, will be made at the earliest possible moment.

The list of entries now in hand will determine eligibility no matter when or where the Derbies are held.

Kritter Bids for Removal of Kalteaux

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—An action seeking to remove Frank M. Kalteaux of Chicago as head of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States was begun here today by William Herbert Kritter, who resigned as president of the Wisconsin Skating association Saturday night following a controversy in which Kalteaux, Judge Newton Evans of Oconomowoc and others took part.

Kritter said that the board of control of the A. S. U. has the right to suspend, expel or discipline an officer. Kritter has three charges against Kalteaux and said he planned to submit these to member associations of the skating union. One of these has to do with Kalteaux's suggestion to appoint a commission to rule skating in this state after the Wisconsin Skating association, according to Kritter, successfully has promoted three national meets since 1930 in Oconomowoc.

Another concerns the predominance of Chicago officials on the list selected for the 1934 North American championships, which will be held at Oconomowoc later this month. A third, Kritter pointed out, involves the selection of a person in employ of a skate company to serve as an honorary official, such selection being in violation of the rule passed at the A. S. U. convention here in November.

Illinois Western Skaters Race for Places Tomorrow

After waiting for several weeks to hold the races which would give the local officials an opportunity to select the leading skaters to represent the Illinois Western Skating association at the national championships at Minneapolis Jan. 20-21 and the North American championships at Oconomowoc Jan. 27-28, enough ice has been found to conduct these trials this week.

Harry Berz, president of the association, yesterday ordered all the class A men skaters to report at Wells park, Western and Montrose avenues, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, when they will start a two day meet to select the four skaters scoring the greatest number of points in the seven events, ranging from the 220 yard dash to the five mile event. The races in the National and North American championships are in addition to the above, the 440 yard dash, the half mile, the three-quarter mile, the mile, the two mile, and the five mile.

At present there are four inches of ice in Wells park, and Bud Cronin, manager of the park, is keeping the course free from skaters until the trials have been completed.

Cod Liver Oil Is Delicacy to Zoo Bears

BY BOB BECKER.

Take eight slices of white bread. Soak them thoroughly in cod liver oil. Garnish with two pounds of raw, fresh caught herring, and then take the platter to the bear dens in the Lincoln park zoo and you'll hear the grizzlies, the brown bears, and other species give three cheers for this dish, which is to them ice cream and cake.

All the bears are keen about cod liver oil and every one of the fat, well fed animals that visitors see in the bear dens at Lincoln park gets a bread and oil ration every week. And they lick it up just like a child devours an ice cream cone.

They're Worth Seeing.

Because the bears are kept outside all winter, and winter days usually not very inviting for sightseeing, the bears in Lincoln park do not get as big a "play" from visitors as the animals kept in warm, heated buildings. However, the members of the Ursidae family on exhibition are well worth a visit, especially the polar bears and the big brown European bears. When you stop in front of those heavy set, big fellows with their thick winter coats you can remember that ten loaves of bread, two pounds of herring, and a little fresh meat make up a meal for an adult bear, sufficient reason for him to grow a swell winter coat of fur.

It's lucky for the Lincoln park zoo and the visitors that the bears here do not hibernate. If they did, the exhibition dens would be devoid of bears from early winter to spring. In the north the bears go into dens and sleep most of the winter, which is a smart way to beat board bills and avoid worry about where the next meal is coming from.

Southern Bears Hibernate.

It's a curious fact that even the little black bear of Florida retains a hereditary instinct for hibernation and retires to its den in January for quite a long sleep. Florida is warm, so there is no climatic necessity for hibernation, but the southern bear goes through the motions. In the Lincoln park zoo visitors can see the occupants of the five bear dens 'most any time during the winter and they are always ready for their cod liver oil ration.

Just a stone's throw from the bears the visitor sees a fine collection of guanacos from the South American Andes. When you stop to look at these well insulated animals, which are closely related to the llama of South America, you are gazing at one of the last surviving members of the camel family, which was numerous in the new world hundreds of thousands of years ago. Six years ago the zoo had a pair of guanacos. Today they have eight on exhibition.

Guanacos Like Winter.

Being accustomed to the bitter winds which sweep down from the high, snow capped peaks of the Andes, the guanacos don't mind winter. A heavy coat of fur gives them perfect insulation against Chicago's cold weather.

Golden Gloves Call Sounded for Hundreds

Golden Gloves tournaments! This phrase is the call to action for hundreds of Chicago's boys who will seek the glory and honor of championships in the country's greatest amateur contests.

To those who have seen any of the hundreds of bouts in Chicago's sectional meets, who have watched the inter-city scraps between Chicago and New York or who have attended the international tournaments against the champions of France, Germany, and Ireland, Golden Gloves means entertainment as well as support for those charities which profit from the receipts of the meets.

Condition Is Important.

Although the first qualifying tournament in Chicago, that on the west side Feb. 12, 13, and 14, is more than a month distant, all boys who wish to compete for the gold, silver, and bronze prizes and the right to become one of the 24 boys who will travel to Madison Square Garden in New York in March must begin training now. Whether you expect to compete in the Open division for experienced boxers or in the Novice class, condition is all important.

In recognition of the importance of training and condition, the tournament officials this year have adopted a new entry plan. For this to be a complete success the coöperation of all contestants is required.

Veterans Turn Pro.

All boys, upon receipt of their tournament instructions, will be required to report at the Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue, for a complete physical examination. Your record will be taken and you will be assigned in the proper division.

Last year's Chicago team, which whipped New York 10 bouts to 6 and which defeated the champions of Ireland before a crowd of 48,000 at Soldiers' field, 6 to 2, was composed largely of veterans. Five of Chicago's eight champions now are fighting professionally. This means that the field is practically wide open for those who believe they have the skill and courage to win the diamond studden golden glove.

Boys who start now to prepare for the tournaments will have a better chance than those who wait until the week before the first meet gets under way.

Clip the entry blank and mail it to Wilfrid Smith, sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and assure yourself not only the choice of the section in which you wish to compete but an early start on the other fellow.

CARNERA'S PILOT PLEADS GUILTY TO TAX DODGE

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—William J. Duffy, Primo Carnera's American manager, today pleaded guilty before Federal Judge John C. Knox to an indictment charging him with failure to file an income tax return for 1930.

The government claimed he received a net income of $34,000 for that year.

Sentence was deferred until Feb. 26. The offense charged is a misdemeanor punishable by not more than one year in prison and not more than $10,000 fine.

Flying Tackle Exponents on Arcadia Card

The flying tackle will be the principal offensive weapon on display Friday night when Gus Sonnenberg and Buckets Goldenburg appear in two wrestling matches at the Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway.

Sonnenberg, who won a championship shortly after introducing the tackle to wrestling, will meet Jack Smith of Chicago in a one fall, hour and a half time limit return bout. Goldenburg's opponent will be Jack Zeravitch, a newcomer.

Goldenberg avers his tackle is much more effective than Sonnenberg's. He uses the tackle much more freely than the former champion. He is likely to go into the headlong rush from any angle and figures that it is not essential to score a direct hit.

Kansas Five Opens Big Six Title Defense

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Kansas and Oklahoma, champion and runnerup, this week plunge into the Big Six basketball championship race which got under way with Nebraska's victory over Iowa State and Missouri's triumph over the Kansas State Wildcats.

The Champion Jayhawks begin their title defense at Lincoln tomorrow night against the Nebraskans, who gave Iowa State an opportunity to win at the free throw line by committing 15 fouls—an opportunity which the Cyclones passed up. The Huskers sent the game into overtime with a late rally and took the decision, 37 to 2[illegible].

Two Games for Iowa State.

Iowa State faces Kansas State at Manhattan Friday night and plays Oklahoma at Norman Saturday in the Sooners' conference opener.

After defeating Kansas State, 32 to 20, Missouri's opponents for this week are the Cornhuskers of Nebraska, Saturday night at Columbia.

The only other contest is an exhibition Wednesday at Norman between the Sooners and Oklahoma A. & M.

The potentially strong Jayhawkers, who are likely to keep the title for the fourth straight year if the team develops as expected, kept their exhibition slate clean last week with an easy 37 to 21 victory over Kansas Wesleyan, the Kansas conference champion.

Kansas, Oklahoma Unbeaten.

Kansas and Oklahoma are the only undefeated Big Six quintets, the former with four victories and the Sooners with two.

The standing:

	W.	L.	T.P.	O.P.
Missouri	1	0	32	20
Nebraska	1	0	37	31
Iowa State	0	1	21	37
Kansas State	0	1	20	32

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Today—Kansas vs. Nebraska at Lincoln.
Wednesday—Oklahoma vs. Oklahoma A. & M. at Norman.
Friday—Iowa State vs. Kansas State at Manhattan.
Saturday—Nebraska vs. Missouri at Columbia and Iowa State vs. Oklahoma at Norman.

Pacific Coast Baseball League Raises Admission

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Admission prices to Pacific Coast league baseball games were increased by the directors of the circuit today. Bleacher prices were boosted from 25 to 40 cents, and grandstand tickets from 60 to 75 cents, including tax. The league rule barring spitball pitchers was waived to enable Jack Picus Quinn, former major league hurler, to negotiate for a place with one of the coast clubs. He was released recently by the Boston Red Sox.

CITY PREPS TO BEGIN BASKET SEASON TONIGHT

Lightweight Teams Play in 15 Games.

The city high school basketball race opens today along four fronts in the lightweight division, fifteen games being scheduled. Hyde Park and Harper will not start until tomorrow.

The campaigns in the sections differ noticably from those of the past in that the rivals will meet but once this year instead of a double round robin.

Ten New Schools.

This was made necessary by the addition of the ten high schools which were elevated to the senior grade with the opening of school last September.

Hyde Park, for many years a stronghold in athletics in the central section, will compete in the south group; Harrison Tech, which won its share of glory in the west section, is now in the central section, and Schurz, formerly a north section outfit, will play in the west group.

Heavies on Thursday.

Most of the lightweight games will be played on Tuesdays and the heavies on Thursdays. All contests will start at 4 o'clock and conclude by 5 o'clock as the gymnasium must be closed at that hour.

The schedule:

NORTH SECTION.
Senn at Lane.
Sullivan at Waller.
Von Steuben at Amundsen.
Lake View at Roosevelt.

SOUTH SECTION.
Morgan Park at Bowen.
Hirsch at Calumet.
Fenger at Parker.

CENTRAL SECTION.
Kelly at Harrison.
Englewood at Phillips.
Tilden at Farragut.
Manley at Lindblom.

WEST SECTION.
Marshall at McKinley.
Foreman at Austin.
Crane at Tuley.
Kelvyn Park at Schurz.

AMATEURS WILL GO INTO HOCKEY FINALS TONIGHT

Butterfingers Must Win to Stay in Fight.

One of the final games in the first half of the season in the Big Four group of the Chicago Amateur Hockey association will be played tonight when the Butterfingers meet the Blue Ribbons at the Coliseum rink at 8:30 o'clock.

It will be the last game for the Butterfingers, who are tied for the lead with the Baby Ruth six, and the Yellow Jackets must win to at least tie for the title. If the Butterfingers win tonight while the Baby Ruths lose their final to Nestor Johnson they will be crowned champions of the first half of the split season.

Bernard Brusin, a youngster from Duluth, Minn., will make his debut with the Butterfingers.

Warren Rip Williams is another acquisition to the Butterfinger club. He is only 20 years old and weighs 165 lbs. He also is a Duluth product and will play either center or right wing. Williams last year was the leading scorer in the Minnesota Senior Amateur league.

It will be a double-header tonight at the Coliseum with the two best local community teams, Egan Shamrocks and Whiting Macks clashing in a preliminary game.

The lineups:

BLUE RIBBONS.		BUTTERFINGERS.
Hopper	Goal	Halvorsen
Lunde	L. D.	Beda
Heliste	R. D.	La Prairie
Peterson	L. W.	Manderfield
Kuzma	C	Arnold

CHARLIE CONACHER LEADS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 8.—Equaling the season's record for individual performance when he scored four goals against Ottawa, Charlie Conacher of the Toronto Maple Leafs drew into a commanding lead over all National Hockey league players over the week-end, according to official statistics issued last night from the office of Frank Calder, league president.

Conacher now surpasses any other goal scorer, with 16 to his credit, which with 8 assists gives him a total of 24 points. Canadian section scoring is far in advance of that in the league, for the leading trio of Canadian division is far ahead of its rivals in the American division.

Roche, Clancy Next.

Conacher is five points up on Earl Roche of the Ottawa Senators, and Frank Clancy, defense star of the Leafs. Clancy has 19 points, which is three more than compiled by Nels Stewart of the Boston Bruins, who is leading the American division with 10 goals and 6 assists. Stewart is one point in front of his captain and teammate, Marty Barry, and Johnny Gottselig of the Chicago Blackhawks, each of whom has 15 points.

The return of Red Horner, Toronto defense player, to the game after a lengthy suspension in the Shore-Bailey case, saw the big red head acquire further penalties to swell the total to 75 minutes, almost double that of the American section leader, Lionel Conacher of the Hawks, who has served 40 minutes.

HAWKS RETAIN LEAD

With clubs in the National Hockey league steaming along toward the half way mark, interest in the race in the American division is reaching a high point. The Chicago Blackhawks still lead, but their margin has been cut to one point. They are only half a game in front of the Detroit Red Wings; a game and a half in front of the Rangers, and two and a half ahead of the Boston Bruins.

Detroit, by beating the New York Rangers tonight, can overtake the Blackhawks. On the other hand, if the Rangers win they will be within half a game of the Hawks. Boston plays the Americans at Boston. Anything may happen within the next few days, but the Chicago club still has the advantage, as the Blackhawks meet the Boston Mruins here Thursday night and then tackle the Americans here next Sunday night.

Meet Bruins Thursday.

Just now the big problem of the Hawks concerns the Boston Bruins, who have scored one victory over the Hawks this season.

It is possible that there will be another shakeup in the Chicago lines of attack for Thursday's game against Boston. One or two of the Chicago players have been in a scoring slump and a switch may be made, with a view to bringing about a change. Manager Gorman concentrated in yesterday's workout at the Stadium at shooting practice, and made it plain that he was far from pleased over the manner in which some of his players missed scoring opportunities in Sunday's battle against the Rangers. Gorman thinks Leroy Goldsworthy is all he was cracked up to be, and may put the youngster on his front line. Mush March has scored only two goals with the season half way through. The midget will have to snap out of his slump if the Blackhawks are to maintain their lead.

King's Sister Lena Halts Schmeling Go

Lewis, Jacobs and Harold Steinman, representative of Levinsky, went to the office of Charles Bidwill, president of the Stadium Operating company, to confer on financial terms.

Match Is Off—Lewis.

When a two hour conference produced no agreement, Schmeling's manager returned to his suite in the Morrison hotel and Levinsky's representatives and Stadium officials went to the west side building for another huddle. After a long discussion Mrs. Levy stepped out of the picture, saying it was up to her two associates, Steinman and Pete Reilly. Reilly could not be reached by telephone in New York, so Schmeling's manager started packing for his trip to Philadelphia.

Matchmaker Lewis said he considered the match was as good as off.

JOHNNY PHAGAN LOSES

FREIGHTER FIVE DEFEATS RENO TEAM, 48 TO 46

The Chicago Freighters defeated the Renos from Hutchinson, Kas., 48 to 46, last night at the Arcadia Gardens in the first Missouri Valley basketball league game to be played in Chicago. A capacity crowd of 2,800 attended.

At the end of the regulation playing time the score was 40 to 40, and with less than half a minute of the overtime period left the count was tied at 46 to 46. Then Gruenig, the Freighter center, dribbled the entire length of the floor and shot the winning basket. Five seconds later the final gun was fired.

Johnson did some spectacular work for the Hutchinson team, throwing four long field goals to tie the score in the closing minutes of the regular playing time. The Freighters had been leading by 13 points with six minutes to go.

The score at the half was Hutchinson, 19; Chicago, 17.

Izzy Goldstein, Chicago featherweight; Keith Graves, Peoria welterweight, and Joe Puerta, Champaign 126 pound boxer, have entered the second annual Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing tournament Jan. 23 and 24.

Goldstein and Graves were alternates on last year's Golden Gloves team. Goldstein was eliminated by George Van Der Hayden in the semi-finals at the Stadium. Graves won the Peoria sectional title and was chosen as an alternate on the intercity team.

Others from Peoria and Champaign are expected to join Puerta and Graves in an effort to win the team trophy. The Catholic Youth organization was awarded the trophy last year.

It was announced yesterday by Johnny Behr, athletic director, that preliminary and semi-final matches have been set for three rounds at two minutes each. Final contests will be three rounds at three minutes. Entries close Jan. 20.

St. Nicholas Is C.Y.O. Hockey Victor, 2 to 1

St. Nicholas Tolentine opened the first Catholic Youth organization hockey season with a 2 to 1 victory over St. Adrian. The amateurs displayed a fast brand of hockey as they opened their play for the first annual C. Y. O. ice hockey championship.

Joe Lutz, left wing of the St. Adrian team, opened the scoring after 11 minutes and 15 seconds had elapsed in the first period when he counted from well out on the floor, unassisted. With Lutz in the penalty box St. Nicholas took advantage of the opportunity to tie the score in the second period when Joe Poko scored at 4 minutes. Six minutes later Joe Kalmanek, St. Nicholas, scored the winning goal from 3 yards out on a pass from Steve Roman.

St. Anthony of Cicero skated off the ice with a 2 to 1 win over Holy Rosary of Pullman in the second game.

In the last game of the evening, Evanston C. Y. O. and Our Lady of Grace battled to an overtime 1 to 1 tie.

Blue Ribbons Risk Lacrosse Lead Tonight

The Chicago Blue Ribbons are now perched happily on top of the National Lacrosse league, but tonight a group of Mohawk Indians shuffle in from Buffalo with evil intent. These Mohawks are the real McCoy, as another generation was wont to designate the genuine article. In these days, when even wooden Indians are a thing of the past, the Indian on a Buffalo nickel is the only red man most of us know—that is, on those auspicious occasions when we have a nickel.

The Buffalo Indians hail from the Brantford, Ontario, reservation, and have elected to represent Buffalo in the National Lacrosse league. Chief Martin really is an hereditary chief of the Mohawks.

A feud developed between the teams in Buffalo on the opening night of the schedule, and when the same teams tangled here in the Chicago opener the Blue Ribbons spent more time fighting than they did scoring. As a result, the Indians won easily.

Tonight the Blue Ribbons expect to reverse the result. The lineup:

CHICAGO.		BUFFALO.
McArthur	G	Little Elk
Hatton	R. D.	Deerfoot
Plummer	L. D.	Big Jack
Piper Bain	C	Chief Martin
White	R. F.	Running Deer
Braden	L. F.	Silver Heels

Alternates—Chicago—Barron, Baldwin, Kingdon, Sanderson, Stephenson.
Buffalo—Tecumseh, Longboat, Mount Pleasant, Young Deer.

Arrange More Seating Room for Polo Games

Officials of the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league met yesterday to discuss plans for enlarging the seating capacity of the 124th field artillery arena, 52d and Cottage Grove avenue, which on Saturday will be the scene of the second round of championship games.

Fort Sheridan will meet the 124th Cardinals in the junior division game, with the North Shore Polo and Hunt club and Maj. Richard Hunter's 124th Field Artillery outfit playing in the senior division.

The opening attendance reached 7,000, or more than double the number of fans that viewed the major portion of the 1933 series. This was enough to convince Col. Charles G. Haffner Jr. that as the new tournament progresses a seating capacity of at least 15,000 will be required. Bleachers on the floor level likely will be installed.

Last year the turnouts increased in total from about 3,500 in early season to 12,000 for the finals.

KIPKE ON HIS WAY TO YALE, NEW YORK HEARS

Williamson Gets Freshmen Post with Blue.

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Harry Kipke, coach of Michigan, will coach the Yale football team in 1934, or, if contracts prevent, will lay the groundwork for his appearance at New Haven in 1935, the New York News announced tonight.

The long debated and awaited solution to the grid problem appeared at an end today. Ivan Williamson, captain and end of the Michigan 1932 team, held a conference with Malcolm Farmer, chairman of Yale athletics.

The Yale Athletic association announced that Williamson came to the Connecticut city to confer with Farmer last Friday, but it was decided to wait until today to release the news. No announcement as to the result or nature of the conference was made officially, although it was understood that Williamson will become a freshman football coach. In this manner Williamson can prepare for the Kipke punt and prayer system.

Marvin Stevens Quits.

Marvin Stevens, last year's freshmen coach, has resigned and will not be with the squad in 1934. He was head coach in 1932. The present head coach, Reggie Root, has not had his contract renewed.

Kipke, who developed the Big Ten champions last autumn, is said to have demanded the transfer of his entire staff from Ann Arbor to New Haven. This will involve salaries of $25,000 and the moving of such tutors as Jack Blott, Frank Cappen, and Wally Weber. It also means the removal of Adam Walsh and two additional Root men.

Williamson who captained the Michigan team in 1932 announced in Toledo tonight he had been appointed assistant freshman football coach at Yale for next season. At the present time he is athletic director and football coach at Roseville High school a suburb of New York.

"MIGHT ACCEPT"—KIPKE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—While insisting that he had not received any offer or did not know of any offer from Yale univeristy, Coach Harry Kipke admitted late tonight that he might accept one if it were sufficiently attractive.

"I believe there are opportunities there," he said.

Asked if the offer would have to represent a considerable increase over the amount offered him for next year by the athletic control board, he answered affirmatively. It is understood he has been offered $7,500 to coach here next year and it is said that he has been told by the board that the figure is the maximum amount he can expect to receive.

YALE CAPTAIN EXPLAINS

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Robert Lassiter Jr. of Charlotte, N. C., who captained Yale's 1933 football team, wants to set things right about a remark attributed to him that he "played football for fun and not to win."

Here as a Rhodes scholarship candidate from North Carolina, he explained the situation to newspapermen today.

In a speech at the Yale football banquet, he said, he touched on Yale's losses, some of them in spite of playing "reasonably good football" and added that "winning wasn't everything in football."

"I merely got up and said," he went on, "that I personally had enjoyed the associations made in the game and the fun of playing as much as that of winning, of which opinion I still remain."

DESCRIBES CURE FOR 'HOPELESS' BIRTH INJURIES

New York Surgeon Once Invalid Himself.

Proper mental and muscular education can make useful citizens of many persons rendered seemingly helpless by birth injuries, Dr Earl Carlson of New York City told the second annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic surgeons yesterday at the Palmer house.

There are 100,000 children in the United States destined to become charitable charges because of physical handicaps which could be corrected if treated promptly, he declared.

Doctor Helpless at 9.

Dr. Carlson himself was a victim of birth injury. At the age of 9 he was helpless, not even able to walk; at 18, when thrown on his own resources at the death of his parents, he scarcely was able to feed or dress himself. He now is director of the department of reëducation for the birth injured at the Neurological institute of New York city, devoting his life to the development of the science that helped him.

The new field for treating the sympathetic nervous system to relieve or cure diseases of the blood vessels and various circulatory disturbances was discussed in another session.

Australian Cure Discussed.

Two Australian surgeons developed this field in treatment of men with tightened muscles as a result of nerve injuries. They found the disease traceable to the blood supply in many instances. It then was learned that pressure could be relieved by cutting offending nerves of the sympathetic system to permit easier and greater flow of blood.

Bone diseases caused by lack of balance in distribution of calcium were considered in a seminar conducted by Dr. Richard H. Jaffe, professor at the University of Illinois medical school and director of pathology at Cook County hospital. The study of bones as storehouses of calcium drew the attention of another seminar, conducted by Dr. Dallas B. Phemister, surgery professor at the University of Chicago.

Rubin Daar, 61 years old, 4707 North Albany avenue, was fatally injured at Albany and Lawrence avenues last night by a car which afterward sped away. Daar died several hours later in the Edgewater hospital. Police said the license number of the car as obtained by witnesses traced ownership to Harold Meier, 209 West Randolph street.

One other death yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 36. The victim:

Isaac Sheward, 51 years old, 745 West 48th place, a motorman for the Chicago Surface lines. Died in the German Deaconess hospital of injuries suffered New Year's day when he was struck by an automobile as he alighted from a street car.

An inquest was continued to Jan. 23 yesterday to await the recovery of Miss Eleanor McCaffrey, 19 years old, 2325 Leland avenue, who was injured when three others riding in the same car were killed late Sunday night. The automobile crashed head-on into a surface lines car on Milwaukee avenue at Raven street. The dead were Miss Eleanor Ericksen, 5042 North Oakley avenue; William Kline, 30 years old, 3311 West North avenue, and Gustave Kruty, 30 years old, 4929 North Kedzie avenue.

LEHMAN DENIES POLITICS SAT ON LA GUARDIA

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Gov. Lehman, in another letter to Mayor La Guardia tonight denied the mayor's charge that his opposition to a financial "dictatorship" for New York City was motivated by politics.

The governor invited the mayor to a conference on the method of balancing the city's budget to be held Tuesday afternoon or at noon Wednesday.

The governor wrote the New York City mayor Saturday that his proposal for a "dictatorship" if granted by the legislature ultimately would lead to "chaos." Last night the mayor replied that he proposed to end a fiscal dictatorship set up by previous administrations, and not to create one.

He said the governor was motivated by political considerations.

"I reaffirm, without qualification, my opposition to the legislature granting you the extraordinary powers you ask be lodged in you alone," the governor said in his letter tonight.

Prior to that the partner was Joseph McDonnell, a brother of the man robbed, he said.

T. H. WHITNEY, U. S. WORKS AID, IS DEAD IN N. Y.

His death was caused by pneumonia, following an embolism at the base of the right lung. Mr. Whitney collapsed at his desk last Saturday and then, recovering slightly, had insisted upon giving directions to his assistants in the civil works administration before he would submit to his removal to the hospital for an operation.

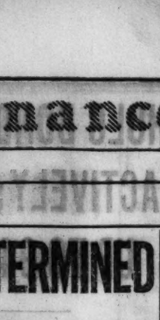
RFC DETERMINED TO ELECT BOARD OF CONTINENTAL

Jones Claims Rights in Chicago Bank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—Power to select an entire board of directors for the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and for all other banks in which the RFC has large preferred stock holdings was demanded today on behalf of the RFC by its chairman, Jesse H. Jones.



C. B. BORLAND.

As one of the first steps in carrying out this policy the RFC appeared ready today to use its preferred stock voting rights to elect Walter J. Cummings, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, as chairman of the Continental Illinois bank and to send in also a hand picked board of directors.

Directors Ask Self Rule.

This morning and again tonight in sessions held behind closed doors in a smoke filled hotel room here, a committee of directors from the Continental Illinois bank laid before Jones their request for freedom from RFC intervention at the stockholders' meeting on Jan. 12, and explained to him their plans for the bank.

Apparently still far from any agreement on who should fill the chairmanship left vacant by the resignation of Stanley Field, the directors and Jones emerged from the hotel room close to the stroke of twelve tonight with the comment that "negotiations were still going on," and would continue tomorrow. Nothing had been decided, they said.

During the morning session, Jones excused himself from the bankers' gathering long enough to announce at his regular press conference that he considered it the primary duty of the RFC to participate in the election of directors in every bank in which the corporation holds preferred stock.

Applies to Continental.

Asked if this policy would be enforced in the Continental Illinois National bank despite the directors' plea, he said it would. Because the RFC holds a majority voting control in the bank since the purchase of 50 million dollars' worth of its preferred stock, the RFC's approval or disapproval on all directors and the chairman will be final.

How far the RFC intends to use this power toward making over the present board of directors was not revealed today. Policies rather than personnel were discussed at the morning meeting with the directors, Mr. Jones said.

Despite the new policy of "coöperating" in the election of entire boards of directors for preferred stock banks, Mr. Jones insisted that there was no clash between himself and the Continental Illinois directors' committee.

"There is no difference in opinion over who should be directors," he declared. "The people out there are interested in good management and so are we."

Won't Talk on Resignations.

He refused, however, to comment on the resignation from the board of directors of Sewall Avery, head of Montgomery Ward & Co., who retired because the RFC was interferring with the election of a chairman of the bank.

A committee of the directors had agreed upon George A. Ranney, vice chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company, but the RFC refused to approve Mr. Ranney's candidacy. At that time the RFC brought forward Mr. Cummings, a close personal friend of Mr. Jones, and Jones said today that Cummings was still on the list of candidates whom the RFC considers acceptable.

Directors of the bank who met with Mr. Jones today were James R. Leavell, president; Alfred Cowles, C. B. Borland, W. F. Hayes, Herman Waldeck and A. A. Sprague.

At his press conference today Mr. Jones revealed that the RFC had bought preferred stock of capital notes in 5,146 banks at a total cost of 876 million dollars. In addition, he said, the RFC has loaned 600 millions to 1,503 closed banks.

Family Banks Prove Strength of Good Name

BY HOWARD WOOD.

This week and next the managements of most of the banks of the country will face their stockholders at the regular annual meetings to give an account of their stewardship during the last year, which in many ways has been the most trying in the history of American banking.

Annual meetings during the last few years have been severe ordeals for bank officials, for the stories they have had to tell have been about chargeoffs, shrinking assets, and declining business.

This year many of the old faces are missing. In bank after bank new management has succeeded the old, and the officers who will arise on bank meeting day to tell their stories will not be the officers who were responsible for the heavy losses to be recounted.

* *

Difficult stockholders' meetings, however, are by no means universal. Notable exceptions are banks whose managements and stockholders are largely identical—"family" banks whose control has passed down from father to son and whose stock is closely held.

Not much is heard about these banks because most of them have followed conservative policies and have weathered the storm in good shape and have followed the even tenor of their ways.

The "family" bank has been a corner stone of sound banking in the United States for decades. There have been exceptions, such as the Bain banks, where family institutions have departed from conservative practices and became part of the new era; but most of them have come through in good shape. And, despite the popular sentiment against concentration of wealth in families, these banks have won recognition from the public in the shape of increased deposits.

* *

The First National Bank of Englewood has recently been in the limelight because of the refusal of its president, J. M. Nichols, to join the guaranty of deposits fund.

When Mr. Nichols as manager of the bank meets himself as owner of 1,200 of the bank's 2,000 shares of stock at the annual meeting he will have no difficult task. Deposits have risen from $4,413,149 at the close of 1932 to $6,257,000 on Dec. 31, 1933. This bank is nearly 100 per cent liquid.

* *

The two largest "family" institutions in Chicago are the Northern Trust company and the Harris Trust and Savings bank. The Northern Trust has been known as the "Smith" bank for years. Solomon A. Smith, the president of the Northern Trust company, is a member of the third generation of a Chicago banking family.

The Northern Trust was founded in 1889 and by steady growth had up to 1919 acquired 41 millions of deposits. During the last four years the bank has enjoyed such a phenomenal increase in business that it has almost outgrown its banking quarters. In the last three months alone its deposits increased 20 millions to a total just short of 200 million dollars.

The Harris Trust is controlled by the Harris family, with Albert W. Harris chairman of its board of directors. This bank was incorporated in 1907, but was originally organized May 1, 1882, as N. W. Harris & Co.

In 1920 deposits of the Harris bank were about 32 millions. At the close of 1933 they were nearly 134 millions, an increase of more than 13 millions in three months.

* *

In New York City the First National bank is a leading "family" bank. George F. Baker Jr., its present chairman, succeeded his father in that position. The strength of the Morgan bank, another family controlled institution, was revealed last summer when the senate banking committee made public some of the bank's balance sheets.

In Pittsburgh the Union Trust company and its subsidiary, the Mellon National bank, both controlled by the Mellon family, have demonstrated their great strength while weaker institutions around them were succumbing to the forces of depression.

The Kountze family in Denver have for years run the Colorado National bank, one of the leading institutions in the west. In Kansas City, E. F. Swinney, at 77, still runs the First National bank, an institution which has long been controlled by the Swinneys and the Abernathys.

* *

Strong "family" banks are by no means peculiar to big cities. In many smaller communities banking families have demonstrated a combination of shrewd insight and conservative management which has brought their institutions through with flying colors.

The Tootle-Lacy National bank in St. Joseph, Mo., is now being run by the second and third generations of the Tootle family. The Merchants National of Indianapolis has always been known as the "Frenzel bank." It has deposits of more than 15 millions and during the last five years has kept its liquidity above 80 per cent.

The Exchange bank of Warren, Ind., which celebrated its 75th birthday during the moratorium, has been operated by the Good and Jones families for three generations, and is starting on the fourth. In Kendallville, Ind., state and national banks and trust companies have failed, but Campbell & Fetters, private bankers, have continued to operate for fifty years.

* *

One of the few banks that held out against the guaranty fund was the Cresco Union Savings bank, Cresco, Ia., now operated by the third generation of the Thomson family, and an outstanding bank in northeastern Iowa. The Toy National bank, Sioux City, is now being run by the second generation of the Toy family.

In Illinois the list of outstanding "family" banks includes the McLean County bank at Bloomington, run by the Rust family; the Milliken National bank of Decatur; the Bank of Dwight at Dwight; the First National bank and the Central National Bank and Trust company, both of Peoria, and the Illinois State Savings bank at Pontiac. There are many others.

NEW BANKRUPT ACT USED FIRST TIME ON REALTY

Avoid Reorganization Woes on Bonds.

BY AL CHASE.

How Uncle Sam can help Chicago clear up and simplify its real estate mortgage bond situation was shown yesterday when advantage was taken for the first time in this city of the amended federal bankruptcy act. Two bond issues, totaling $300,000, were reorganized under federal court supervision with the usual woes of refinancing completely eliminated.

There was no foreclosure and no receiver was appointed. By order of the court the bondholders' committee was obliged to surrender the list of bondholders to the owner, who will continue to manage the properties under jurisdiction of the federal court.

Extended at Reduced Rate.

This first reorganization for distressed properties effected in this district was completed under section 74 of the recent amendment to the federal bankruptcy act, when Referee Edmund D. Adcock entered an order confirming a plan for extension with reduced rate of interest on two Evanston bond issues.

One is for $175,000, paid down to $139,000, against the Marlborough Court manor, a twenty-four apartment building at 1826-32 Michigan avenue, with 160 bondholders. The other is a $125,000 bond issue, reduced to $116,000, and held by eighty-eight bondholders, against the Sheridan Square apartments, at 620-38 Sheridan square.

Creditors and Debtor Agree.

Last August the owner of these, Simon Johanson, through his attorneys, Johnson & Swanstrom, of which George E. Q. Johnson, former United States district judge is senior partner, filed his petition in the United States District court for "composition and extension" under this new law. The matter was referred to Referee Adcock, before whom most of the proceedings were conducted.

The court ordered the bondholders' committee to surrender the list of bondholders to the owner. Then the bondholders were called to a meeting with the owner and after looking into the owner's financial condition and the earnings of the properties, the creditors and debtor agreed to an extension of the maturity dates of the entire issues for five years and a reduction in interest from 6 per cent to 3½ in one issue and 4 on the other.

Minority Can't Block Action.

"Under this new bankruptcy law such a reorganization can be effected by a majority of the creditors in number and amount in coöperation with the owner," said Luther D. Swanstrom. "Since the Federal court takes exclusive jurisdiction upon the approval of the debtor's petition as properly filed no single bondholder and no minority of bondholders can control the situation and tie up the properties against the wishes of a majority. It further contemplated that the bondholders themselves and the debtor shall meet and arrive at the terms of an extension or composition."

GOLD PURCHASES BY GOVERNMENT PASS 75 MILLION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Government gold purchases have exceeded $75,000,000 of which $20,887,000 was newly mined domestic metal. Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, today gave these figures to newspapermen shortly after the price of $34.06 an ounce had been posted for the fifteenth successive time.

Jones corrected the figure of more than $24,000,000 which he gave last week as the total outlay for domestic gold, explaining it was erroneous.

Secretary Morgenthau said today the treasury has received $2,810,002 in gold since his order of Dec. 28 calling in all monetary stocks outside the federal reserve banks and Reconstruction corporation.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—Radical members of the farm adjustment administration appeared today to have failed in their effort to bring the nation's commodity exchanges under rigid regulation by the federal government.

Proposals advanced by certain AAA experts for drastic governmental regulation of the exchanges have not been written into the grain exchange code, it was learned, although a number of changes have been made in the pact preferred originally by the grain trade.

Indications today were that the code may be announced within the next fortnight.

Only Few Details Remain.

Secretary Wallace said the AAA has completed its revision of the pact except for a few minor details. He declined to disclose the nature of the changes.

It was learned, however, that the code as now drawn is not objectionable to the grain trade. None of the changes made by the AAA were opposed by the trade, and unless drastic last minute modifications ar made the exchanges are prepared to accept the pact voluntarily.

During recent public hearings on the code spokesmen for the trade declared flatly that they would not accept the extreme regulatory provisions suggested by the more radical AAA experts.

Suggested Radical Changes.

Among these suggestions were proposals for a definite limitation on the length of lines and a plan to write existing exchange rules into the code, thereby giving them the full force of law.

Neither of these proposals has been adopted by the farm administration, it was understood. The code as it now stands, according to reports, follows the general outline of the code proposed by the grain trade and contemplates self-regulation of the exchanges under government supervision rather than strict federal control.

STEEL INDUSTRY IS UP TO 30.7% AS WEEK BEGINS

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The steel industry is operating at a higher rate this week with production at 30.7 per cent of capacity, against 29.3 per cent last week, according to the weekly estimate of the American Iron and Steel institute.

The estimate is based on reports from companies representing 98.1 per cent of the industry's operating capacity. In terms of output the gain over last week amounts to 4.8 per cent, the institute reports. A month ago the rate was 31.5 per cent.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE REPORTS BIG UPTURN IN NOVEMBER PROFIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—Net operating income of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in November was reported today at $1,288,643, compared with $218,646 in the corresponding month a year ago. Gross at the same time increased to $7,290,850 from $6,602,274 in November, 1932.

For the first eleven months of last year the company enjoyed a gross of $79,268,473, as compared with $81,387,159, and net operating income for the period was $11,808,529, against $7,050,678 in the corresponding 1932 months.

The figures reported today cover only the operating earnings of the company and are exclusive of dividends and interest.

According to the company's report to the interstate commerce commission, message tolls in November were $4,390,069, compared with $3,653,321 in the corresponding 1932 month.

GENERAL MOTORS SHIPMENTS RISE 110% FOR MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—The General Motors corporation today reported world shipments of 21,295 units for November. The figure revealed an increase of approximately 110 per cent over the 10,384 for the previous month, but were substantially below the total of 53,942 for the corresponding month a year ago, due entirely to the fact that the company swung into production of new models much earlier in 1932 than it did last year.

Sales last month to consumers in the United States totaled 11,951 units, compared with 35,417 in November and 19,992 in December, 1932. Dealers in this country took 11,191 units compared with 3,483 in November and 44,101 in December, 1932.

World dealer sales for the full year 1933 aggregated 869,035 units compared with 562,970 in 1932, while sales to consumers in the United States during 1933 totaled 755,778 units, against 510,060 in 1932.

Sales of General Motors cars to world dealers in 1933 showed an increase of 54 per cent over 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States during the year showed the same percentage of increase, while the volume to consumers in this country disclosed an increase of 48 per cent.

DOLLAR VALUE RISES AS FRENCH FRANC IS SOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—The dollar rose 53 points in gold value today to 64.28 cents as a result of a 5 point decline in the local quotations for the French franc to 6.09½ cents. The range was narrow for the day, between 6.10¼ and 6.08 cents.

Danger of another cabinet overthrow and the shock to public confidence by last week's Bayonne pawnshop scandal were regarded as responsible for the falling of the franc.

Sterling declined 2½ cents to $5.09, and other foreign currencies declined accordingly.

The domestic price for gold was unchanged at $34.06 an ounce.

Direct Trade Loans by RFC Not Favored

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—Direct loans to industry by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a proposal advanced by members of congress and business men, probably will not receive the administration's approval, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, indicated today.

At the same time Jones declared that in his opinion the lending power of the RFC, which is due to expire on Jan. 22, should be extended for the duration of the national emergency which President Roosevelt has declared.

Would Let President Decide.

Jones said he believed congress should vest in the President power to terminate the RFC's active life by proclamation, thus avoiding the possible necessity of having to extend the lending power too frequently.

In addition to frowning on direct loans to business by the RFC, Jones ventured the prediction that the proposal did not command a majority in either house of congress. He admitted, however, that there was a strong group in favor of it in the house of representatives.

Only Discount Agency.

That the RFC should help business get credit "until banks get over their fear or hesitancy or whatever it is that is holding them back," Jones admitted, but he said that the RFC should merely be the discount agency, leaving to some buffer organization the work of surveying credit risks and servicing loans.

Manipulation of the domestic gold price by the government, Jones said, had, in his opinion, no effect on thawing or freezing credit. Loosening of bank credit as a result of federal insurance of deposits had not yet had time to show itself, he explained.

Several Banks Pick Directors; Officers Later

Directors of the Northern Trust company were reëlected by stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday. They are: Sewell L. Avery, A. Watson Armour, Albert B. Dick Jr., John T. Pirie, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Harold C. Smith, Walter Byron Smith, John Stuart, and Soloman A. Smith. The reëlected directorate will select officers at a meeting today. It was said several changes were contemplated.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Title and Trust company four directors whose terms expired were renamed to the board. They are Noble Brandon Judah, Nathan G. Moore, F. Stanley Rickcords, and Albert H. Wetten.

Personal Loan Election.

All directors of the Personal Loan and Savings bank were reëlected, but vacancies caused last year by the resignations of Louis A. Ferguson and George Pick were not filled. Officers will be named at a meeting Jan. 18.

W. Homer Hertz, president of the Morden Frog and Crossing company, was elected a director of the Upper Avenue bank. The following directors resigned in accordance with provisions of the new banking act: Chester A. Cook, Charles R. Holden, James B. Kaine, William S. Kline, Wheeler Sammons and Warren Wright. All other officers and directors were reelected.

Thor R. Thorsen was elected president of the Western State bank of Cicero at a meeting of the directors yesterday to replace John W. Jedlan, who resigned to return to his law practice. Jedlan will continue as a director. The stockholders were to have held their annual meeting yesterday, but will meet Jan. 15 instead.

Stockholders of the Avenue State Bank and Trust company last night reëlected eight of the nine directors. J. C. Williams resigned and the vacancy was not filled.

Wilmette Elects Two.

Two members were elected to fill vacancies on the board of the Wilmette State bank. They are Charles Ware and Charles S. McCoy. Other directors, who were reëlected, will meet next week to select officers.

Stockholders of the First Trust and Savings bank of Riverdale elected Peter Kern a director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Horace Holmes. Other directors were reëlected. John Harms Jr., cashier, said the directors' meeting, originally scheduled for yesterday, has been indefinitely postponed due to inability of all members to attend.

Stockholders of the La Grange State Bank and Trust company last night accepted the resignations of eleven of the seventeen directors. The stockholders decided to reduce the number of directors to seven and reelected six of the original seventeen and James A. Walkor, formerly a director. Those reëlected were Fred K. Vial, Arthur Sanquist, Henry B. Kilgour, Arthur B. Hall, Edward J. Farrell, and Edward E. Barrett. The directors will hold their meeting within a week.

Approximately 30 other banks and financial institutions are scheduled to hold annual meetings today.

Stock Exchange Seat Sells for $126,000; Down $9,000

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a stock exchange seat for $126,000, a decrease of $9,000 from the last sale.

CENT. REPUBLIC OWES 61 MILLION ON LOAN BY RFC

Report Shows Debts Being Reduced.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company at the annual meeting yesterday heard a report on the institution's financial position as of Dec. 30, 1933, ratified a reduction in the number of directors from 20 to 7, and authorized a new contract with the City National Bank and Trust company for the handling of the company's trust business.

W. C. FREEMAN.

The report on financial condition submitted by the board of directors disclosed that the officers of the bank which is, in effect, a liquidating institution, the deposit liability having been turned over to the City National, collected $10,021,479 during 1933. The operating expense for the year was $303,399. There also were legal and other collection expenses of $100,887.

Owes $61,000,000 to RFC.

Bills payable, which include loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and Chicago banks, stood at $63,305,721 on Dec. 30, 1933, compared with $70,243,902 on Dec. 31, 1932, a reduction of $6,938,180. Of the bills payable at the end of December, approximately $61,000,000 was owed the RFC and the balance to loop banks.

With the exception of $291,091, all the company's assets are pledged as collateral for loans. The collateral in the hands of the RFC is given a book value of approximately $81,000,000. On this amount an income is being obtained from $33,000,000 and none is being received on $48,000,000, it was stated. The income is used to help liquidate the obligation to the RFC.

At the end of December $1,027,791 interest had been paid on the RFC and bank loans, leaving a balance of $2,189,646 of interest due which was not paid in 1933.

New York, Jan. 8.—A sharp rise in German bonds which carried the prices of many issues up fractionally to more than 6 points, with the consequent firming up of other foreign loans, contrasted with heavy selling of United States government issues and irregularly lower quotations on domestic corporation bonds today.

Trading in the listed bond market was heavy, aggregating $15,736,100 of which dealings in long-term United States government issues totaled $6,962,100.

Germans Buy Bonds.

Specialists in German loans reported that much of the buying was of German origin with the net result that of the 50 German issues traded on the stock exchange nine touched higher prices than in more than a year. Other strong sections of the foreign list included the obligations of the commonwealth of Australia, the French government, Kingdom of Belgium, and most of the Scandinavian countries.

Pressure against United States government bonds sent prices generally lower on the day. Losses ranged from 1-32 to 17-32 point. New lows on the current movement were established in several instances.

Guaranty Hint Is Factor.

The losses were believed due to intimation last week of the administration's plan to have the principal as well as interest on bonds of the Home Owners' Loan corporation and farm credit administration guaranteed by the treasury.

In the Domestic corporation group, utility bonds were the weakest, while the rails showed the best strength. Many of the more speculative issues of the latter group advanced a point or more in moderately active trading and the group as a whole averaged higher on the day.

Both domestic and foreign bonds pointed higher on the Curb exchange.

Tennessee Products.

Investors' Guide: Tenn. Prod. Corp. first s. f. 6½s: I hold a $1,000 bond of this security, and since the default last July have heard nothing as to when interest payments will be resumed.—H. B. T.

Answer: Tennessee Products corporation manufactures various types of iron. It also produces chemicals, including such items as wood alcohol, tar, pitch, etc. Coal and coke, by-products, constitute an important source of supplementary revenue.

In 1932 loss before interest was $562,000. Final net loss was $758,000, against loss of $443,000 in 1931. The company earned only 60 per cent of interest charges in 1930. In 1929 charges were earned 3.84 times, against 3.82 times in 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1932, current position was not impressive. Current assets, including cash of $102,000, amounted to $1,152,000 and current liabilities, including notes payable of $679,000, were $1,008,000.

Funded debt aggregated $2,306,000. The $1,023,500 first 6½s, due 1936, are secured by a first mortgage on fixed assets. Sinking fund requirements are $75,000 a year. The company took advantage of its 60 day grace period for interest payment on the issue, and the July 1, 1933, interest was not paid until Sept. 1, 1933. If you will send your July 1 coupon through it will be honored.

The bonds are more a speculation than an investment.

Mississippi Valley Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: As a daily reader of your paper I would like to ask you for infirmation in regard to Mississippi Valley Life Insurance. I filed a claim with the insurance liquidation bureau, but have not received any word to this day as to adjustment. What has become of it?—M. R. H.

Answer: We have the following data from P. B. McHaney, counsel for the insurance department of Missouri:

"Relative to Mississippi Valley Life Insurance company liquidation, we are informed by Mr. Caulfield, co-receiver, that the assets of the company were in a deplorable condition at the time that he, together with the former superintendent of the insurance department, took the company over as ancillary co-receivers. Said assets consist largely of real estate loans in southeastern Missouri, where taxes are high and the land at this date practically worthless. So far little of the land has been sold. From what I can ascertain, there is little likelihood of a dividend being paid before next June.

"The above information is based largely upon what Mr. Caulfield has stated. This department changed its personnel last July, and so far we have been unable to investigate into the affairs of the company as much as we would like to and will within the coming two or three months."

STOCKS DROOP IN DULL TRADE; A. T. & T. STRONG

Motors and Liquor Shares Are Best Liked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—Trading in stocks idled down to the slowest gait of the new year today, turnover falling to less than three-quarters of a million shares. The market's lassitude was in keeping with an acute lack of incentive in the day's news for speculation. Save for a little flurry of buying in some of the liquor shares, a few of the motors and a specialty or two, the day's activities were without a redeeming feature.

Closing prices showed a mixture of inconsequential price changes, largely within fractional limits, with the main drift toward slightly higher levels.

Opening Is Firm.

Opening prices disclosed a firm tone, but quotations for leading issues were virtually unchanged from previous finals, and trading volume was at a snail's pace. There was scant increase in activity as the market drifted through the day without objective. In the last hour the ticker stood still for intervals of two or three minutes.

American Telephone was an individual standout on the slow moving tape. Buying of Telephone was in response to the company's November earnings report showing a substantial gain in gross and not revenue over 1932. The stock at one time sold up nearly two points, but later encountered profit taking and closed up a quarter point.

Other utility stocks of the communications division were laggards, International Telephone and Western Union taking fractional losses on the day. Power and light shares were lifeless save for Consolited Gas, which eked out a trifling gain in light volume.

Chrysler Sells Off.

Chrysler dropped below 53 for a loss of more than a point, and General Motors took a fractional loss, but shares of independent automobile companies were bought in fair sized blocks as traders sensed the inordinate interest aroused by the show and preparations by the industry for a spring business upturn. Hupp, Graham-Paige, Pierce-Arrow, and Reo were active and strong.

Bullish buying of liquor stocks was a feature throughout the day, with resultant net gains of fractions to a point in leaders like American Alcohol, National Distillers, Schenley, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Chemicals also were given a little play for gains in Allied Chemical and Commercial Solvents. Du Pont, however, was among the losers by a fraction.

Rails lacked a following and moved hardly at all. Canadian Pacific was strong. New York Central was unchanged.

U. S. Steel held part of an early gain, as did most of the industrial leaders, American Can being an exception.

NEW AUDIT CUTS PROFIT REPORT OF ATLAS TACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—An independently audited statement of Atlas Tack corporation for Sept. 30 published today shows several changes from the report issued last month and discloses a reduction in depreciation and amortization rates for 1933.

Net profit for nine months ended Sept. 30 was shown as $61,200, equivalent of 65 cents a share on 93,560 shares. Previously net income had been reported at $71,700, or 76 cents per share, on 93,551 shares. This was before federal and state taxes of $10,500. Depreciation and amortization charges were $9,500 less than for the same period of 1932.

Testimony linking the Bay State corporation of Boston, with Harold B. Hale, secretary to Philip H. Philbin Jr., who made $600,000 profit trading in Atlas Tack stock, was offered today at the inquiry of Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., in the market activities of the stock.

Ralph Alexander of the Boston Better Business Bureau testified that Hale, a missing witness, had made deposits to the account of the Bay State corporation. He said he had received information that the Bay State corporation had negotiated for the purchase of a financial service, which is alleged to have "tipped" Atlas stock.

WOOLWORTH CO. IN BRITAIN PAYS 80% DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 8.—New dividends, bringing the total for the year to 80 per cent, as compared with 70 per cent in 1932, were declared today by the British Woolworth company. This is hailed here as still another sign that business is definitely on the upgrade.

Net profits amounted to approximately $22,620,000 after expenses and depreciation, but before taxes, which came to $5,000,000.

With a surplus balance of around $29,500,000 directors cut a melon for the second time with a final dividend of two shillings six pence on 15,000,000 ordinary shares of 5 shillings each. A dividend of 1 shilling six pence was paid earlier in the year.

COTTON REACHES HIGHEST PRICES SINCE LAST JULY

Cotton prices yesterday reached a new high for the present upturn and closed around the best of the day. A heavy accumulation of buying orders, combined with purchases by the far east and Wall street, nearly absorbed moderate profit taking.

Reports of the increased demand for cotton goods pushed up prices to the highest levels since July 19. Japanese trade is liberal, with the highest production in the history of the yard industry there. Japan is buying both American and Indian cotton.

At the close futures in Chicago were 3 to 16 points net higher, New York 10 to 14 points and New Orleans 12 to 15 points. In the spot market New Orleans was 15 points to 10.65 cents, New York 10 points to 10.55 cents, Houston 15 points to 10.65 cents, and Galveston 10 points to 10.60 cents. Prices:

Prices Are Irregular in Small Turnover.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The monetary situation overshadowed all other influences in the grain markets yesterday and the trade as a whole adopted a do nothing policy until conditions become clearer.

Wheat prices fluctuated erratically within a range of 1 cent and the close was unchanged to ¾ cent lower, with May at 84¼ to 84¾ cents. Corn was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher; May at 51¾ to 51¾ cents. Oats were ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher; May at 37¼ cents. Rye closed the same as Saturday, at 57⅝ cents for May. Barley was off ½ cent, with May at 51¾ cents.

Crops Lightest in 50 Years.

Total production of crops in the United States in 1933, in proportion to population, was the smallest in fifty years, according to Nat C. Murray. The first effect of the feed shortage, he says, is reflected in the heavy marketing of live stock in the effort of farmers to adjust the number of live stock to the reduced feed supply.

"What we are doing," said Murray, "is consuming our reserve supply of foodstuffs. The effect of the shortage of feedstuffs on our foodstuffs will be felt later.

"An inference from this analysis of our crop situation is that we may be headed toward another period of high cost of living, as existed fifteen years ago."

The corn market is commencing to feel the effect of the government loans to farmers. The domestic visible supply decreased 749,000 bushels last week, at a time when normally stocks are accumulating rapidly. The total supply in sight at present is 65,945,000 bushels, compared with 28,929,000 bushels last year.

Distillers Buying Corn.

Distillers are reported as scouring the interior for supplies of corn and finding little for sale, with the result the basic price bid in the country is the highest relative to the future deliveries at this season in years.

B. W. Snow of Bartlett, Frazier & Co. said the corn demand from distilleries is insistent and increasing. He expects the visible supply to start decreasing long before the normal time as a result.

The country sold 59,000 bushels of cash corn to arrive yesterday, while local handlers sold 135,000 bushels for shipment.

Routine news had little effect on wheat and trade was mainly of a local character. Mills, however, were seeking supplies and bought 67,000 bushels of cash wheat here and 100,000 bushels were said to have been sold in store.

Winnipeg eased ¼ to ⅜ cent in Canadian funds, while Liverpool was unchanged to ⅜ cent lower.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Cotton goods were firm today, with the advances made in print cloths at the week-end fully sustained. Wide goods for industrial purposes showed improvement, and rayon fabrics were in good demand. Sales of worsted dress goods for prompt shipment broadened, and spring lines of men's wear increased. Most of the business was in goods selling at $2 a yard or lower. Burlaps were firm. Buyers were looking about for new silk printed lines.
